DEAL IN 'CAMCO' STOCK BECOMES CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Roosevelt an Early Director.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

While President Roosevelt is denouncing "economic royalists" his opponents are sending out copies of the stock offering circular of Consolidated Automatic Merchandising corporation ["Camco"] on which Mr. Roosevelt's name appears as one of the original members of the board of directors.

"Camco," in which thousands of small investors lost an estimated $11,000,000, was recognized as a hazardous promotion even in the boom days of the late 'twenties when the whole nation was buoyed up on a wave of optimism.

Now that Mr. Roosevelt is attacking business men who oppose him as "economic royalists" the opposition is making such a point of Mr. Roosevelt's own connection in 1928 with this unusual stock selling scheme that "Camco" promises to become a major issue in the campaign.

SEC Officials Refuse to Talk.

To discover to what extent Mr. Roosevelt was himself an "economic royalist," this writer sought the opinions of officials of the federal Securities and Exchange commission concerning the stock selling operations and business activities of "Camco."

These officials, however, when questioned, refused even to discuss "Camco," contending that any questions concerning that company were purely "political."

Commissioner George C. Mathews, acting chairman of the SEC in Washington during the vacation absence of Chairman James M. Landis, was asked to explain in what ways the literature accompanying the offering of "Camco" stock in 1928 would have violated the securities act of 1933 if that law had been in effect in 1928.

"You have indicated that your query is of a political nature," he replied. "We decline to be drawn into it."

Kennedy "Not Concerned."

W. McNeil Kennedy, in charge of the Chicago office of the SEC, evaded the same query by saying:

"I am in charge of enforcement of the act in this district. I am not concerned with anything that happened prior to 1933."

This disclaimer of concern with corporation financing prior to the enactment of the 1933 statute is in direct conflict with the policy which the SEC has followed of investigating financial operations of previous years under the guise of developing remedial legislation.

How intensely the SEC is interested in prowling through the records of other concerns to discover mistakes and indiscretions of the very period in which the as yet uninvestigated "Camco" was operating is seen in the current SEC investigation of investment companies. Business men who were even remotely interested in investment companies before the depression are being called to testify at the hearings in Washington.

"Camco," 44 Violations.

Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors, was called to Washington recently for questioning despite the fact that the records showed he was merely an investor who lost $240,000 in the stock in question when the market collapsed.

The SEC is busy digging up the

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

PAMPLONA, Spain, Aug. 24.—(Monday.)—Spanish rebel officers reported today execution of five Frenchmen fighting for the loyalist government and warned that other French nationals who join in the civil war may expect the same fate. Accusing France of aiding the Spanish Socialist regime, the Fascist officers asserted the five French volunteers were captured in a battle near Oyarzun and put to death.

BULLETIN.

VALLADOLID, Spain, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The insurgent Fascist command here asserted tonight a fleet of 21 rebel airplanes had flown over Madrid today and bombed the Getafe and Cuatro Vientos airports. The statement said the rebels' planes met no resistance.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TANGIER, International Zone, Africa, Aug. 23.—Twenty-three carloads of war materials brought to Portugal by the German steamer Kamerun for delivery to Spain were dispatched across Portuguese territory today in the direction of Badajoz and Salamanca.

Another thirty-three carloads will be required to complete the shipment across Portugal, which virtually adopted the status of a belligerent in Spain's five weeks old civil war when she allowed the Kamerun to dock after Spanish loyalist warships halted and searched the vessel last week and refused to let it land at Cadiz, a rebel stronghold.

[After an armed party from the Spanish loyal cruiser Libertad boarded and searched the Kamerun on the high seas, seven and one-half miles out of Cadiz, the German fleet commander warned Madrid he would meet "force with force" and Berlin sent seven more warships to join the nine already in Spanish waters. Berlin made a semi-official denial that the Kamerun carried munitions.]

Another Ship Lands Fuel.

The Kamerun was relieved of its cargo of small tanks, air bombs, guns and hand grenades as well as dismounted airplanes at Santa Polonia docks. Along with it appeared another German vessel the Wisberg, with a cargo of gasoline for plane fuel. The Wisberg was sent to a small port across the Tagus river called Montijo, and there was unloaded with the greatest secrecy.

I have come out of Lisbon by airplane to write this. Any dispatch at all out of the Portuguese capital is held up by the censorship for nine or ten hours, and no dispatch of any interest ever seems to get out at all.

I flew to Lisbon Thursday with two things in mind. The first was to try to have a look at Badajoz, where the greatest massacre of this bloody civil war to date took place ten days ago, and the second was to check on certain alarming rumors about Portuguese neutrality.

This is what I found: Prime Minister Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's government has gone the limit. Today was the climax, but it has done other things which would be of the gravest import if Madrid did not at the moment have its hands full.

Refugees to Firing Squad.

The Portuguese government is handing over Spanish loyalist refugees, both Marxists and republicans, who have sought asylum in Portugal, with the result that they are being shot wholesale. This I was able to confirm myself at the frontier between Elvas, Portugal, and Badajoz, where Mayor Madronero of Badajoz and Nicolas de Pablo, a Socialist deputy, were turned over by the Portuguese "international police" to rebel troops at the frontier. They were shot later in the day in the main square of Badajoz at a public execution of six prominent members of the Spanish Popular Front [government coalition], which took place in the presence of 3,000 people while a band played.

FAIR EXCHANGE IS NO ROBBERY

—OR—

A TALE OF TODAY

June Jellico, the radiant daughter of the Hon. Jason Jellico, lay ill in the twilight of her pleasant chamber. And her illness weighed with unmistakable anxiety upon the shoulders of her father. And, for that matter, it was a subject of some concern to the most persistent of her suitors, young Mr. Frank Furter, a leader in the youth movement, a precocious repository of the sciences, a veritable one-man republic of letters; in short, an individual brain trust of omniscient ken, scan, and wot.

The Hon. Jellico was a leader of the New Deal. He was a man of stern yet kindly features. He was an orator of distinction. He was gifted with ease of expression, with a soothing choice of words and a compelling personality. It is not discreditable to reflect that, as a boy he recited poetry. As a youth he was likely to be found in a small but earnest group of thoughtful persons. In that vigorous era he had been the devotee of Silas Meek, the great soap-boxer who long since had vanished from the scenes of radical thought. He became a champion of the common people after he had analyzed the situation and concluded that most people are common. He did not emphasize the point that many of the uncommon people are in asylums. Hon. Jellico was devoted to the notion that everybody ought to divide everybody else's money. This grew out of his discovery that everybody likes money. The Hon. Jellico earned some very comforting sums by his radical oratory. He divided his earnings between his various bank accounts. Hon. Jellico was surpassingly human, however, in one specific respect. He was adoringly attentive to his daughter, June. And June was very ill.

June was a gift from the gods. The Hon. Jellico knew this from the very moment he first saw her in the arms of the nurse when she was only a pink infant infatuated with the preposterous notion that she could stuff both her tiny feet into her mouth. As he watched the progress of this dazzling miss through the hazards of measles and algebra and piano lessons up to windblown bobs and red-lackered finger nails he was certain that she deserved something better.

Now the Hon. Jellico sat in the sickroom thoughtfully and anxiously appraising every rise and fall of the coverlet as the labored breathing of his daughter betokened a mounting fever.

"June," he said, breaking the silence, "I am afraid it's appendicitis. I hate myself for leaving you tonight, but I must make my speech before the New Deal forum." He paused, raised himself to tiptoe, and concluded with clenched fist upraised against a hateful though imaginary foe. "I have determined to exterminate Henry North, that captain of money. Exterminate him, I say. Tonight is the night."

June smiled faintly but courageously. "Please don't think of me," she said.

Frank Furter glanced up alertly. "Certainly you must go, Mr. Jellico," he said. "You owe it to the people. Henry North must be displayed before the public for the rich man that he is."

And Mr. Furter thrust forth his under lip while carefully adjusting the thumb and fingers of one hand to the thumb and fingers of the other. This was a favorite gesture of the young pundit who only the year before had left college with a burden of merits. Indeed, he was the winner of the celebrated Sheldon scholarship. This was a scholarship founded by the daughter of the eccentric Enos Sheldon. Indeed, the eccentricity of the father had been visited upon the daughter in that she believed the greatest good would come out of educating young men to improve the world's processes.

"Definitly," pursued Mr. Furter, "you must go. And I am only sorry that your old associate, Silas Meek, can't be with you. By the way, whatever happened to Mr. Meek? Years ago, so I am told, he was the king of soap-box orators."

The Hon. Jellico was lost in thought for a moment. "Silas Meek was a great weapon against the classes," he said presently. "I haven't seen him in years. He knew how to strike a blow for the division of wealth. The Great Radical, they called him."

Frank Furter pursued the task of fitting the ends of his fingers. On occasion he could articulate from three to four thousand words on the Socratic method, on transcendental analysis, on introspection into the subliminal self, on syllogism, enthymeme, sorites, and dilemma until you had a feeling that you would like to destroy him with fire and instruments of hideous cruelty.

"Good night, June," said Hon. Jellico, rising. "I wish it could be avoided."

As he spoke he saw a look of pain, almost of terror, come into June's eyes. "What is it, June?" he asked. His voice was almost a moan.

"The pain," she gasped. "It's dreadful."

"I was afraid," said her father. "Appendicitis. Frank," he turned in alarm to the young scholar, "an ambulance! The telephone, quick!"

There was a brief interval of tense preparation. In a surprisingly short time there was the sound of a gong. Two hospital assistants appeared bearing a stretcher. The Hon. Jellico tramped heavily down the steps to the street.

"I want the best surgeon," he kept repeating half hysterically, "the best surgeon. June! My child! I want the best surgeon that money can get."

Nudists' Rigid Social Cliques and Creed Told

A middle aged Chicago railway executive of athletic build bounded up the hill and into the midst of a group of men and women sipping tea in the nude on the screened porch of a lakeside cottage.

"Did I leave my shorts here, old man?" he asked the owner of the cottage.

"I don't believe you had them on when you were here, Jim," spoke up a lady in the group, balancing a cup of tea on a roomy knee.

"No, I didn't; but I was carrying them because I have to go down to the clubhouse," he explained. "O, well, I can walk back to my cabin and get some clothes."

The Angular and the Cursive.

The conversation of the group returned to the origin of angular and cursive hieroglyphics, and the talkers, some of them notably angular or cursive themselves, stayed with this remote topic until one man started an argument on whether Jack Dempsey in his prime could have beaten Joe Louis.

This closeup is an introductory short cut into the actuality of the every day practice of nudism as witnessed at the Lake o' the Woods camp southeast of Valparaiso, Ind., 55 miles from Chicago.

This camp is rated as one of the best, socially, among the 85 nudist groups affiliated with the International Nudist conference and was the host Saturday and yesterday to 150 conference delegates holding their annual convention.

Nudism as It Is.

Reaching the camp ahead of the delegates, a reporter viewed the ordinary routine of a nudist colony. Treated as a first visitor who had not decided whether to make the plunge into nudism, the writer was assigned to the cabin of a professor, his wife, and daughter. There was no lapse in courtesy when the visitor persisted in wearing clothes and

CULLINAN, WHO FOUND FAMOUS DIAMOND, DIES

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Aug. 23.—Sir Thomas Cullinan, discoverer of the famous Cullinan diamond, died here today at the age of 74. A self-made man with little schooling, he began life as a bricklayer in Cape Colony. He became one of the biggest builders in Johannesburg, a considerable landowner and, with the discovery of his mine, the possessor of a fortune estimated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Cullinan bought a farm which he believed to contain diamond deposits for $225,000 and in less than six months the $5 shares by which the deal was floated readily sold for $500 apiece. It was on this farm that the white diamond bearing his name was found in 1905.

The stone was more than three times the size of any previously known diamond. It weighed 3,025¾ carats, or more than one and one-half pounds. It was bought by the Transvaal government in 1907 and presented to King Edward VII. of England. It was cut into nine large stones and a number of small brilliants at Amsterdam in 1908.

Hoodlum Runs Amok and Kills Policeman Foe

Policeman John Freichel, 42 years old, of the Marquette station was shot and fatally wounded yesterday afternoon in front of a tavern at 759 South Kedzie avenue by Sam La Sasso, 30 years old, 3313 Flournoy street, a minor hoodlum.

La Sasso, who has a police record dating to 1926 and several times had been arrested by Freichel, ran a half block away and shot himself, probably fatally.

According to relatives, La Sasso had vowed to kill himself. Apparently he ran amok when he encountered Freichel, against whom he had a persecution complex, and decided to take the policeman with him in death.

Victim Off Duty.

Freichel, who was off duty and in plain clothes, drove up to the tavern in his car shortly before 4 o'clock in the afternoon. According to the bartender, Jerry Flanagan, the policeman had a glass of beer and then walked to the front of the tavern and opened the screen door to the street.

At that moment La Sasso was entering. He drew a gun and fired three shots into Freichel's back. La Sasso fled east on Polk street to the alley running behind the tavern.

Shoots Self Three Times.

La Sasso raced north to Lexington street and west to Kedzie avenue. There he stopped, pointed the gun at his head and fired one shot, and two more into his body.

Freichel was taken to the Bethany hospital where he died. La Sasso is in the County hospital.

At La Sasso's home his sister, Emily, 17 years old, told police her brother had been unsuccessful in seeking a job. "He told me he was disgusted with life," she said.

Freichel, who lived at 3243 West 62d place, was married and had a daughter. He had been on the police force for fifteen years.

Mme. Emilia Bourgue, director of the Little French school, 43 East Elm street, a which 20 children of Gold Coast families were pupils last year, sat by while chloroform fumes ended the life of her husband, Arthur Lynch, a former prohibition worker. Then she scribbled a note, covered her face with a towel soaked in the anæsthetic, and joined Lynch in death.

The two bodies were found yesterday morning in their home at the Elm street address, two floors of which were used for the French kindergarten class. Apparently the couple had been dead since last Wednesday. Three emptied chloroform bottles were beside the bodies. An early theory of double suicide was doubted by police, who were unable to find evidence that the husband had participated in such a pact.

Lynch, a press agent, was in 1932 nursed through a prolonged spree by Mrs. Beata Brucer, 2426 North Hamlin avenue, then president of the Cook county chapter of the W. C. T. U. Lynch had been employed by Mrs. Brucer in anti-liquor propaganda, and the disclosure caused Mrs. Brucer's resignation from the W. C. T. U. post.

Papers found in the home yesterday indicated that Lynch lately had been engaged in promotion work in behalf of anti-communist organizations, and that he had incurred the displeasure o Mrs. Harry Atwood, executive director of the Constitution Education association, and of Sterling Morton, president of the Morton Salt company.

Husband's Life Erratic.

Lynch, always promoting something new, went on frequent drinking sprees and left his wife several times for other women, according to friends of the family. The wife's school, however, prospered, according to information given to the police by an assistant, Miss Dorothy Fernandez, 1161 North La Salle street. Among the pupils at the school was Ira Couch, young son of the Ira L. Couches, 1350 North State street, and Rufus Dawes, son of Charles C. Dawes, 69 East Division street, and a grandson of Rufus Dawes, who was president of A Century of Progress Exposition.

W. H. Howell, 52 East Elm street, whose daughter, Joan, 3 years old, was one of Mme. Bourgue's pupils, said the teacher was formerly employed at the Latin School for Girls on the north side. She used the name of her former husband instead of Lynch's for professional reasons, it was explained.

Find Notes Beside Bodies.

One note found in the room near the two bodies read:

"This mess is too much. I quit."

It was signed "Emilia," but underneath that name there was also the name "Art," but it appeared to be in the same handwriting, police said.

The second note, apparently written by the wife read:

"We decided to die and he is gone and I am still alive. I am—what I was afraid of—going now. E."

When the bodies were found on the bed her left hand was clasping his right.

LANDON SPENDS DAY AT SCENES OF CHILDHOOD

Trip Into New York Starts Today.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

West Middlesex, Pa., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Gov. Alf M. Landon spent today amid the scenes of his childhood. Perhaps, like the late President Coolidge, who found rest and renewal of life in the quiet of the Vermont hills, the Republican candidate gained strength in the town of his birth for the strenuous days ahead in his campaign for the presidency.

Tomorrow morning Gov. Landon will leave on his special train for his invasion of New York state. He will deliver the second important speech of his campaign at Chautauqua Lake tomorrow evening and the third at Buffalo Wednesday evening.

Town Little Changed.

There has been little change through the years in West Middlesex, which was founded in 1796. Perhaps that was the charm of it for Landon. The elms on Main street had grown larger. Their branches now sheltered the roof of the old red brick church where his grandfather, the Rev. William H. Mossman, preached during civil war days. The house of his birth was still sturdy and plain, a white frame structure four houses away from the church. The old woodshed and barn had been displaced by a garage.

The governor attended church and had roast beef dinner with his old nurse, Mrs. Mary [Aunty] Baird, and several friends. He visited with relatives during the afternoon and returned to New Castle in the evening.

It was a hectic Sunday for West Middlesex, a drowsy old town on the cross-roads, surrounded by fat farm lands. The church bells rang as usual and the smell of Sunday dinner was along the main street, coming from the comfortable old houses under the spreading shade trees.

Flags Drape Church.

But in front of the church, usually a decorous scene of mothers and children going to church and Sunday school, with a sprinkling of men, there was something unusual, even of historic importance, going on. The church itself was draped with flags and had in front of its door a cluster of silver trumpets which carried the voice of the preacher all through the town. Plenty of Sunday naps were disturbed by this and by the arrival of the Republican nominee, who had chosen to start his campaign from this place.

The Rev. Henry G. Schilling, pastor of the Methodist church, a former garage mechanic, had a powerful sermon for the occasion. Mrs. Wade Walker, the soprano singer and choir leader, had a special song.

"Am I nervous," said the organ player, as she passed through the line of state police and the roped off stairway to take her place in the little loft.

Door Is Broken Down.

Just before the service there was a commotion in the corridor outside the Sunday school room. The janitor reported that a man had gone into an anteroom, locked the door, and had not come out. Some of the men got hammer and chisel and worked away at the door. They expected to find some strange miscreant or a dead man inside. They finally broke the door down to find the room empty. How it had been locked from the inside and then deserted remained a mystery.

This was but one incident of the morning, which was the most interesting ever experienced along Main street. Gov. Landon, accompanied by his personal aid, J. M. Nye, and his great-aunt, Mrs. Emma Lininger, and his "Uncle Bill" Mossman of Pittsburgh passed up the alle at 11 o'clock and entered a pew which had been draped with red, white, and blue ribbon. The governor was dressed in white, for it was a hot morning. He soon sought a palm leaf fan and tried to keep his aunt Emma and himself cool.

Three Ministers on Platform.

There were three ministers on the platform, which was brightened with vases of tall red gladiolas named especially after Landon. Sunflowers were relegated to the stairway. The blackboard on the wall showed that 87 had attended Sunday school that day, as contrasted with 90 a year before. On the other hand the collection was $3.21 as contrasted with

WE THOUGHT WE HAD IT ANSWERED

"A lady asked Dr. Franklin, 'Well, Doctor, what have we got, a republic or a monarchy?'

"'A republic,' replied the Doctor, 'if you can keep it.'"

From the notes of James McHenry, delegate to the constitutional convention, dated Sept. 18, Philadelphia, the day after the signing of the constitution.

Only 72 days remain in which to save your country. What are you doing to save it?

$2.08 a year ago. This would indicate an increasing prosperity in the community.

The seats behind the governor's party were filled with thirty or more newspaper men, who perspired through the long service. Microphones had been installed in the small pulpit. The ministers with the Rev. Mr. Schilling were the Rev. W. J. Holmes and the Rev. H. B. Harshaw of the Presbyterian churches of the community.

Mencken Among Listeners.

"We are in a religious service and expect you to reverence the house of God in every way," said the minister.

Among the repertorial listeners was Henry Mencken, Baltimore writer, who is noted for the caustic criticisms of the beliefs of the fundamentalists in religion.

Hundreds who were not allowed in the church were seated on the lawns outside, listening in more comfort to the words that came out of the loud speaker. The minister formally welcomed Gov. Landon and his party to the church and then proceeded to preach them a powerful sermon of the old fashioned kind, long in text and fervent in appeal and faith. His subject was "The Christ of the Ages." He said it was the kind of a sermon he would preach to his own people and that he would make no deviation from the service.

Hears Same Hymns.

The hymns were the same that Landon heard as a boy, when he often came to this church while on a visit to his grandfather. They were "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Abide With Me," and "Onward Christian Soldiers." The text of the sermon was from the first and second verses of the first chapter of Hebrews: "God hath in these last days spoke unto us by his Son."

After service the governor left first, passing through a lane of people with his Aunt Emma on his arm. They walked up the street, bowing to hundreds of old friends and entered a car to go to the home of Mrs. Andrew A. Young on the edge of town.

Here Aunt Mary Baird had been superintending the preparation of a succulent roast and everything was in readiness for a great spread for this son of West Middlesex who had not come home for 40 years.

Nurses Attend Dinner.

Others at the Sunday dinner were women who had known this governor as a baby. They were Mrs. Lizzie Buckalew of nearby West Viriginia, who had helped care for this baby in the minister's home; Mrs. Mollie Jennings of Pulaski, who made the baby clothes; Mrs. Harry White of Sharon, Pa., who looked after Landon when he was two years old and Mrs. Wash Dunham, who also was a nurse to him at times.

The governor stood on the lawn in the midst of this group of old ladies and had his picture taken and then went in to dinner.

SAILOR PRAYS TO DIE AFTER KILLING HIS SWEETHEART

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Detectives quoted Winston B. Gardiner, 23 year old sailor, as praying today for the death penalty when he faces trial on charges of strangling to death his 19 year old sweetheart, Muriel Lucille West.

"I am praying every minute for a death sentence. I have nothing to live for any more," detectives quoted him.

They said Gardiner blamed the slaying on desperation when the girl sought to end their two year romance. Her body was found in the apartment of Gardiner's sister, Mrs. Ted Deering, last night when Gardiner summonded aid.

NEW VOLUNTEERS DRIVE BY WOMEN TO START TODAY

Several hundred south side women will meet at the headquarters of THE VOLUNTEERS on the 17th floor of Tribune Tower today for instructions on carrying forward THE VOLUNTEERS' patriotic movement in their various neighborhoods. They also will receive enrollment supplies.

In the spirit of THE VOLUNTEERS, whose object is the election of Landon and Knox and the restoration of sound tenets of American government, the women will be representative of all groups and all factions. Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, leader for the women's division of the far south side wards, reported yesterday that several thousand members have already been recruited to the VOLUNTEERS for speaking, singing, house to house canvassing, and watching at the polls in the November elections.

Women Report Progress.

Leaders of women's units in other parts of the city also reported progress and mounting enthusiasm. Mrs. A. H. Johnson, 5410 Fulton avenue, prominent clubwoman and head of the west side division, is organizing VOLUNTEERS in her home ward, the Thirty-seventh.

She is also spending several days a week at headquarters to keep in touch with other west side groups.

Tomorrow, Mrs. Leona M. Rohen, 4419 Monroe street, widely known in the business and professional world, will bring to headquarters a group of women VOLUNTEERS from the 30th ward. This evening, Mrs. Charles Krutckoff will explain the movement at a meeting of the Fourth Ward Women's organization at 4905 Cottage Grove avenue. Mrs. Krutckoff already has set up a VOLUNTEERS' booth in the Fourth ward Republican headquarters and is helping in the formation of units in the Second and Third wards.

New Groups Formed Daily.

New VOLUNTEER groups of women are springing up daily in the west and northwest suburban areas. Mrs. Elnore Arps Foster of Palatine, Illinois department president of the Women's Relief corps, has offered to organize units in the northwest towns and has already started work in Palatine.

Miss Jean Armstrong, a supervisor of Leydon township, is giving her time to spread the VOLUNTEER movement through Elmwood Park, River Grove, Franklin Park and Schiller Park.

Past 80, but Young.

Mrs. Jones is past 80, but has asked to be listed "as about 42." She is an impersonator of opera and stage stars and will work with the music department of THE VOLUNTEERS. Mrs. Jones was accompanied to headquarters by Miss Herma Clark, author of the "When Chicago Was Young" column, appearing in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Miss Clark also signed up as a VOLUNTEER.

From Ottawa, Ill., it was reported that the La Salle County Women's Republican auxiliary signed 3,000 memberships in THE VOLUNTEERS at a rally.

SENATOR HARRISON FACES 'FIGHT OF LIFE' AT POLLS TOMORROW

The veteran Mississippi lawmaker, seeking a fourth term, must overcome the combined forces of former Gov. Sennett Conner, his opponent, and Junior Senator Theodore G. Bilbo to continue as an important New Deal cog in congress.

The campaign closes tomorrow night with Harrison, Conner and Bilbo firing last-minute broadsides.

BLANTON LOSES CONGRESS SEAT TO RURAL JUDGE

Texas Veteran Beaten in Runoff.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A rural county judge new to state and national politics today stood elected as congressman from the 17th disirict of western Texas, unseating the veteran campaigner, Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene.

Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland, long experienced in stumping the Post-Oak country but never before entered in a political contest more than county wide, wrested the Democratic nomination—tantamount to election—from the fiery Blanton who had held the post for two decades with one brief interlude.

Judge Ahead Nearly 2 to 1.

Returns to the Texas election bureau today gave Blanton 18,218 votes to Garrett's 33,314 in the runoff primary.

Blanton conceded the election and announced he would return to the practice of law.

Last hours of the campaign were enlivened by a dispute over a telegram purporting to give Blanton the indorsement of James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Farley denied sending such a message and Blanton charged political enemies had sent it to embarrass both himself and Farley.

Garrett campaigned on a platform advocating "more jobs and less dole," adequate care for veterans of all wars, establishment of the merit system for postmasters, and reduction of franking privileges for congressmen.

McFarlane Holds Lead.

In another congressional race involving an incumbent, Representative W. D. McFarlane of the 13th district had 28,995 votes to 26,280 for his opponent, Ed Gossett.

Col. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the railroad commission, was reelected over Frank S. Morris of Dallas. Returns today gave Thompson 444,137 votes to his opponent's 228,213.

J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, who ran on a platform advocating coöperation with New Deal farm policies, was reëlected over George B. Terrell, former congressman, 414,769 to 287,140.

DROUTH PARLEY STIRS QUESTIONS ON 'ETIQUET'

Landon-Roosevelt Meeting Brings Posers.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Arbiters of etiquet in this tall corn capital were worried tonight about what to do when President Roosevelt meets his Republican campaign rival, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, here Sept. 1.

The two will come together at a conference of governors of drouth stricken states called by the President.

What should be done, Iowa civic and political leaders in charge of arrangements were asking each other:

Speech Provides Question.

Should Gov. Landon be invited to sit on the speakers' platform and listen?

Even though Landon's supporters have indicated the Republican nominee desires "to remain in the background," should or shouldn't he be called upon at least for a few words?

Should Landon and the other governors be introduced, and if so, should Landon be introduced also as the Republican presidential nominee?

"Of course," said a chamber of commerce director, "if Roosevelt didn't speak and neither he, nor Landon, nor the governors appeared in public, that might solve those problems.

Solution Spells New Problem.

"But it would just make another.

"The Iowa state fair will be in full swing.

"There'll be 200,000 people, Democrats and Republicans, in this town bent on seeing Roosevelt and Landon. If some way isn't arranged for them to do it there'll be the worst trafic jam you ever saw around the statehouse and the hotels where the candidates will stop.

"Maybe the best idea would be a parade.

"But then, will Roosevelt, Landon, and the others agree to parade? And will the secret service allow a parade?

"And if there is a parade, how are we going to hold one without showing favoritism?"

HOOVER DROPS FISHING ROD TO MAKE SPEECH AT REPUBLICAN RALLY

Bend, Ore., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover took time out from a fishing trip on the Deschutes river to tell a Republican rally in Oregon's Second congressional district that America stands at a crossroads today.

The former President, who came here by automobile to fish central Oregon trout streams, said the problems of today in America are no greater than those which preceded the civil war. He referred to the "situation in Europe" as growing out of the same forces that "have been moving in the United States."

"The country is rich and probably could absorb losses that are occurring, but it never can absorb loss of our self-respect," he said. He predicted that if those forces continue to grow "we shall yet see an America that will be engaged in crucial strife."

VETS' HOSPITAL HEADS TO BUILD BIRD SHELTERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Managers for eighty veterans' hospitals and homes have a new job—the establishment of wild life sanctuaries.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines today said he had suggested to all managers of veterans' institutions that they conserve bird, fish, and wild animal life. Need for economy would prevent an expensive conservation program, Hines said, but bird shelters and raised platforms could be built to draw song birds to the reservations.

Nancy Jo Landon Grieves; Dog Killed by Accident

Estes Park, Colo., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Nancy Jo Landon, 4 year old daughter of the Republican presidential nominee, was an unhappy youngster today. Her pet, Jerry, 8 month old Blue Kerry dog, was accidentally run over and killed by the Landon's chauffeur at the ranch near here where the Landons are vacationing.

TOWNSEND PLAN ELECTION TEST IS DUE TOMORROW

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Townsend pension organization tonight made ready for a preliminary strength test in its home state by urging members to vote for twenty selected candidates in Tuesday's congressional primary.

The political fortunes of at least one high Townsendite official, Congressman Clarence Dan Downey, were at stake. Downey, now attorney for Dr. F. E. Townsend, pension plan founder, sought to defeat Representative Frank H. Buck for the Third district Democratic nomination. Buck has been singled out by the Townsendites as particularly hostile to their plan.

State Manager E. J. Margett, whose name figured in the congressional Townsend inquiry, predicted thirteen of the twenty endorsees would be nominated.

RUSSIA TO SHOOT 16 MEN FOR PLOT TO KILL STALIN

Terror Ring Must Face Firing Squad.

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Sixteen Russians, convicted of conspiring to overthrow Dictator Josef Stalin and the soviet régime, were sentenced early today to death before firing squads.

Surrounded by blue capped soldiers, some with bayonets drawn, the defendants stood as the chief judge, V. V. Ulrich, read the ten minute long verdict.

It left them only the hope that Stalin and other soviet higher-ups would relent and grant them executive clemency. The sentence of execution can be carried out any time within 72 hours after formal conviction.

Confess Plotting Terror Reign.

All the prisoners had confessed at the opening of the trial last Wednesday to plotting a reign of terror to seize power and bring Leon Trotzky, former co-leader of communism, back from his Norway exile to direct the U. S. S. R.

Many of them—including the once powerful Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamenev—had admitted they "deserved" the death sentence. Some of them, in their confessions, had even exceeded the prosecution's charges in what was considered an unprecedented series of self accusations.

"All the defendants are sentenced to the highest measure of social defense by shooting," the sentence read.

The prisoners all blanched, and several slumped into chairs. They were led silently from the room by bayoneted guards.

Verdict Creates a Stir.

While the verdict was expected, it created a deep stir among the populace, for it was the first time that bolsheviks had ordered the execution of men who had once marched with them as comrades.

Zinoviev and Kamenev, both of whom bid for the soviet dictatorship after the death of Nicolai Lenin in January, 1924, were found guilty of having organized a united center for individual terroristic acts on instructions from Trotzky.

The others were convicted of joining the venture and plotting the death of Sergei Kirov, chief assistant to Stalin, who was assassinated at Leningrad in 1934, or of bringing in instructions from Trotzky, or attempting to carry them out by killing Stalin and others.

Zinoviev and Kamenev had been in jail since January, 1935, when they pleaded guilty to complicity in Kirov's murder.

Willing to Die, Leaders Say.

The two former soviet leaders, in stirring, hour long orations, told the court at its last session last night that they were ready and willing to die. They unhesitatingly confessed they had conspired with Fascists to overthrow the government with a reign of terror, staking their hopes for success on the hope of throwing the soviet union into war.

They denounced Trotzky as Russia's most implacable, bitterest, and most dangerous enemy.

Their amazing attitude was summed up by Kamenev, Trotzky's own brother-in-law, when he declared:

"The death sentence for myself and all of us sitting here is fully justified and we have more than deserved it. To be confined to prison, to look at soviet progress through bars, is worse than instant death. I prefer the latter!"

Check Trotzky, Prisoner's Plea.

Of Trotzky he cried:

"Trotzky is leading the enemy, working for war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. After my death and that of Zinoviev, Trotzky will remain the only person to organize, guide, and supervise terroristic activities. The sooner his hand is checked the better."

Calls Self a Traitor.

"Before you," he told the hushed court, "stands a former enemy and traitor, a most dangerous, violent foe. I want my example to serve as a lesson to all who continue to teach Trotzkyism. Let them know I died repentant."

"My name will not enter history by the side of the names it might once have been linked with. It will go down in history together with the name of Trotzky. But I hope it will be said somewhere that Zinoviev at the last minute repented and died, a former but not a present enemy."

T. Smirnoff, another prominent defendant, did not recant when his turn came to make a final address. He said he had opposed the rapid collectivization of farms, but declared he never had consorted with terrorism.

Denies He Was Plotter.

"I was in jail during all the time the plots were hatched," he said, "and I cannot be held responsible for crimes committed. However, I shall accept my sentence, whatever it is."

K. Berman-Yurin, another prisoner, asserted:

"I ask the court to believe but one thing: my real regret is that Trotzky is not here with us."

Edward S. Holzmann and Nathan Lourier refused to make statements, but Moses Lourier broke out in a violent attack on Zinoviev and Kamenev.

"You devils!" he cried, spitting at them.

Pronounces Own Obituary.

Fritz David, a defendant who admitted he tried unsuccessfully to shoot Stalin at the last comintern congress, was the last prisoner to stand before the court and pronounce his tacit obituary.

"I shall never say one word in my defense," he said tearfully. "My guilt is unlimited. I want to tell my 4 year old daughter not to follow in my footsteps, but to live for the welfare of her great fatherland."

PRINCESS ALEXANDRINE LOUISE.

Niece of King

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The list of those eligible for the rôle of queen-consort for King Edward VIII. of England was narrowed today by announcement of the engagement of Princess Alexandrine Louise of Denmark.

The attractive, dark eyed 21 year old princess, who has frequently been mentioned as a possible queen of England, will marry Count Luitpold Zu Castell-Castell, her family announced.

Princess Alexandrine Louise is the daughter of Prince Harald, brother of King Christian of Denmark, and of Princess Helena, whose eldest sister is the present Princess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Germany.

Count Castell-Castell is 31. He is a member of a prominent Bavarian family and lives in Munich, Germany.

John M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, was severely injured and his wife, Mrs. Alice Nichols, was slightly hurt yesterday when their automobile ran off highway 14 and overturned a mile north of Harvard, in McHenry county. Both were taken to the Harvard Community hospital.

They were driving from their summer home at Lake Geneva to their Chicago residence at 10411 South Seeley avenue. Mrs. Nichols said the accident occurred when her husband, in trying to pass another car, drove on a soft shoulder of the road and lost control.

The banker is known as 100 Per Cent Nichols because of the high degree of liquidity at which he maintains his bank. He has become known nationally through his opposition to the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the New Deal.

QUEEN MARY BREAKS OCEAN SPEED RECORD

New York, Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Establishing herself as the speed champion of the Atlantic, the Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary passed Ambrose lightship at 11:12 o'clock tonight, with an elapsed time of 4 days 7 hours and 12 minutes for the voyage from Cherbourg.

The Queen Mary's average speed was 30.01 knots, it was announced by the Cunard-White Star offices. This exceeded by .35 knot the previous mark of 29.64 knots set by the French liner Normandie, the previous holder of the blue pennant that is the badge of Atlantic speed supremacy.

The time was 1 hour, 25 minutes faster than the best previous westward crossing.

The previous elapsed time mark was 4 days, 8 hours and 37 minutes, set by the Queen Mary in a voyage which ended last July 26.

Fog Cuts Early Average.

Before her arrival the Queen Mary had radioed that she had passed Nantucket lightship at 4:48 p. m. with an average speed to that point of 30.08 knots. Fog and unfavorable weather conditions reduced this average somewhat before the ship reached Ambrose light, which is the official terminus of the westbound voyage. The start of this run is Cherbourg breakwater.

After passing Ambrose, the Queen Mary continued on to Quarantine, where she dropped anchor to lay till morning. She will dock at 8:30 a. m.

Passengers keenly interested in whether the huge British liner would establish a new speed mark, were following the rises and falls in the average speed with as much interest as the officers, Purser Charles Johnson declared. Johnson said the weather had not been "really good" at any stage of the crossing.

Skipper Drives on Through Fog.

At 8 p. m. a broadcast from the liner declared that a pea-soup fog continued, but that Capt. Sir Edgar Britten was driving his ship forward, with every confidence of surpassing the speed average of the Normandie.

Neither the Cunard-White Star line nor the ship's officers made any claim to the speed pennant at the end of the Queen Mary's voyage of May 26, when she made the crossing in the shortest "elapsed time." Instead they pointed out that the average speed of the Queen Mary was slightly lower than the figure set by the Normandie. The French liner's average, set in June of 1935, was over a longer route from Southampton nab to Ambrose light.

Other Famous "Greyhounds."

The Normandie therefore continued as the holder of the blue pennant, which had been won from the previous holder, the Italian liner Rex. Before the Rex the title holder had been the Cunard-White Star liner Mauretania, whose mark of 26.06, set in 1910, remained unbroken until the Rex steamed at an average of 28.92 knots in a passage from Gibraltar to Ambrose in August, 1933.

PRANK CAUSES YOUTH'S DEATH IN CEDAR LAKE

Stanley Piotrowski, 21 years old, 2248 Ward street, was drowned yesterday in Cedar lake, near Lake Villa, in Lake county, while attending a parish picnic of St. Mary's church, Wood and Courtland streets.

Stanley, with two other young men and three girls, were in their swimming suits in a row boat. As a joke, Stanley threw the oars into the water, then dove in after them. He was seized with a cramp and sank despite efforts of the others to save him.

Ward Wright, 22 years old, 542 Edgewood place, River Forest, drowned Saturday near Sturgeon Bay, Wis., while swimming in Green bay, according to a dispatch last night. He was the son of Wilbur H. Wright, principal of the Austin Senior High school.

YOUNG WOMAN HURT IN PLUNGE FROM A TRAIN

Miss Della Zanella, 25 years old, 601 6th avenue, Hurley, Wis., was injured yesterday afternoon when she leaped or fell from the rear platform of an eastbound Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric train between Summit avenue and the Villa avenue station in Villa Park. She suffered a scalp injury and burns on the leg as she touched the third rail. At Elmhurst hospital it was said she would recover.

Members of the train crew and other passengers were not aware of the accident, and after making a regular stop at Villa avenue the train went on to Chicago. A passerby saw Miss Zanella sitting between the double tracks and notified the Villa Park police, who took her to the hospital.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zanella, said the young woman was on a vacation in Chicago, visiting her sister, Mrs. M. G. O'Connor, 540 Wellington avenue. The parents and Mrs. O'Connor said they knew of no reason why Miss Zanella might attempt suicide.

CHARGE RAIDING OF TREASURY BY HIKING OWN PAY

Reveal Evidence of WPA Graft in Ohio.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Citing names, dates, and figures, the Republican national committee today charged that high administrative officials of the WPA in Ohio have "raided the federal treasury" by boosting their own salaries to approximately three times the amount they originally received.

The WPA officials in Ohio have voted themselves three general increases in salaries and "the hiking of salaries has been particularly marked in recent months, with the election approaching," the Republican committee charged.

Republican investigators found that the WPA program in Ohio was inaugurated under Dr. C. C. Stillman, state administrator, who is professor of sociology at Ohio State university, and who favored for administrative positions persons trained in sociological service. Graduates in that branch of study were said to have been given preference.

From $140 to $350 Per Month.

Some of the cases of salary boosting under Dr. Stillman's administration, as cited by the Republican committee, follow:

"L. L. Henninger of Chillicothe first was appointed assistant field representative at $140 a month. He held this position under the FERA, and when Dr. Stillman became state administrator of WPA, Henninger, in July, 1935, was given a position as district director, stationed at Chillicothe, at a salary of $275 a month. His salary as of July, 1936, was $350 a month.

"Another case involves Morris Klynn, director of WPA employment at Columbus. A social worker in Cleveland, he was made transient director for that city, under the FERA, at a salary of $175 a month. He was made WPA employment director for Ohio on July 1, 1935, at $4,200 annually. Several months later his salary was increased to $4,800 annually, and still later to $6,000 annually.

Salary More than Doubled.

"Robert O'Leary of Ashtabula, a social service worker and a graduate in sociology at Ohio State, was appointed case supervisor in Ashtabula county at a salary of $135 a month. Later he was appointed labor relations supervisor in Richland county at a salary of $275 a month.

"Earl Minderman, formerly a reporter on the Columbus Citizen, resigned his position to become assistant publicity director of WPA in Ohio at a salary of $3,600 yearly. His chief, Edward A. Evans, former editor of the Columbus Citizen, receives a salary of $5,000 yearly.

"G. J. Kane was loaned to the old CWA by the state highway department of Ohio at a salary of $225 a month. During FERA his salary was increased to $275 a month. He was appointed chief engineer of WPA in July, 1935, at $4,800 a year, and during July, 1936, appeared on the pay roll at $6,800 a year.

$100 a Month, Then $4,000 a Year.

"Arsene Butts, administrator's assistant, started in under CWA at a salary of $100 a month. He later was moved into the position of FERA personnel director by Dr. Stillman and his salary was raised to $150 a month. He remained at that salary three months, until July, 1935, when his salary was increased to $4,000 a year.

"Arch Gray, procurement director, and originally a CWA mail clerk, earned $100 a month in that capacity. He later was appointed CWA disbursing officer for Ohio, and when Dr. Stillman appointed him procurement officer he was given a salary of about $250 monthly. When WPA came into existence Gray remained procurement officer, but his salary was increased to $6,000 yearly."

While obscure social workers and political hacks were enjoying this abundant life on the administrative pay rolls of the WPA, the Republican committee charges, "clerks, stenographers, accountants, and others in the lower salary brackets were obliged to content themselves with pay raises of from $3 to $10 a month and to work overtime." The committee investigators found that in other federal agencies in Ohio no general increases in pay were made during the year in question, July, 1935, to July, 1936.

WOMAN DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE MEMBER JOINS LANDON DRIVE

New York, Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Miss Sarah Conley, who served from 1930 to 1934 as a member of the Democratic county committee from the Thirteenth Manhattan Assembly district, has been appointed to the women's staf of the Republican national committee, it was announced today by Miss Natalie Couch, director of the women's campaign for Gov. Alf Landon in the eastern states.

Miss Conley, who is a native of Georgia and has taught in women's colleges in Alabama, will serve as an adviser to independent voters, aiding Miss Helen Varick Boswell, chairman of the speakers' bureau.

"I am an American before I am a member of any political party and I think the time has come to clean house at Washington," Miss Conley said. She has been strongly opposed to the New Deal for two years, she declared, despite her traditional background as a southern Democrat.

COLBY, WILSON CABINET AID, BACKS LANDON

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in President Wilson's cabinet, declared his support of Gov. Alf M. Landon in a statement today to the Jamestown Post.

"While I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting him I am looking forward to doing so tomorrow and to hearing his address," Colby said. "Gov. Landon's candidacy carries the hopes of every American who knows what America stands for, and who respects the principles which have brought us to greatness as a nation, and preserved our liberties as self-governed people.

"The thoughtful and independent Democrats throughout the county—and their number is formidable—are determined in this election to rebuke the betrayal of their party by the administration in Washington."

Louis C. Seaverns Named G.O.P. Committee Treasurer

Perry B. McCullough, chairman of the Illinois Republican state central committee, announced yesterday that he had appointed Louis C. Seavearns of Chicago as treasurer of the committee.

DEAL IN 'CAMCO' STOCK BECOMES CAMPAIGN ISSUE

skeletons of scores of predepression promotions, but the sensational "Camco" fiasco has been studiously ignored by the investigators.

Although officials of the SEC dodged the "Camco" question, inquiries among a number of attorneys specializing in the new securities laws disclosed that the misleading literature accompanying the offering of "Camco" stock in 1928 would have violated the securities act of 1933 in at least 44 particulars if the law had been in force at that time.

Material Facts Omitted.

Furthermore, it is the opinion of attorneys that the "Camco" directors, if they had offered the stock after the act was passed in the manner in which they offered it in 1928, could have been sued for liability to the extent of the estimated $11,000,000 of purchasers' losses, because of omission of material facts in the offering literature.

Under section 11a of the securities act of 1933, as amended, every person who signs the registration statement; every person who is a director or partner in the corporation at the time of filing or is named as about to become a director or partner; every individual making an authoritative statement in the registration statement, and every underwriter may be sued by any person buying the securities of the corporation, unless it is proved that at the time of the purchase the purchaser knew of the untruth or omission on which he bases his suit.

The suit may be either to recover the consideration paid for the security with interest—less the amount of income received—or for damages if the person suing no longer owns the security.

Penalties under the act for willfully making an untrue statement or omitting a material fact in a registration statement provide for a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment of no more than five years, or both, upon conviction.

Directors of "Camco" at the time it was launched in July, 1928, besides Mr. Roosevelt, were Albert C. Allen, executive vice president of United Cigar Stores Company of America; Robert E. Allen, vice president of the Central Union Trust company of New York; Albert M. Chambers of F. J. Lisman & Co.; A. Granat, vice president of United Cigar Stores Company of America; F. J. Lisman, chairman of General Vending corporation; Saunders Norvell, president of Remington Arms company; Stanley Nowak, vice president of General Vending corporation; A. J. Sack, chairman of "Camco"; Joseph J. Schermack, president of Schermack Corporation of America; Nathan A. Smyth, New York attorney, and Robert P. Sniffen of New York.

Shortly after the corporation was launched Roosevelt withdrew from the board of directors on being elected governor of New York.

$44,837,338 Earnings Predicted.

In the offering circular on which Mr. Roosevelt's name appears as a director a statement signed by the management predicted earnings of $44,837,338 for the following five years. The promised earnings were distributed as follows:

1930	3,853,849
1931	7,811,415
1932	12,241,844
1933	18,719,303

Instead of bearing out these rosy forecasts, however, "Camco" began a steady string of losses, failing, even in 1929, to show a profit. Losses in the five years ended in 1933 totaled $4,016,000. Another loss of $643,000 was recorded in 1934 and then the company was reorganized under the amended bankruptcy laws. In the reorganized company the original stockholders' equity was reduced to practically zero, one hundred old common shares being exchanged for only one new $1 par common share.

"Camco" was the result of a merger of a group of vending machine concerns. The offering circular fairly bubbled with optimism about the coming of the "Automatic Age." About the only factual information contained in the four pages was a brief balance sheet.

Following are 21 of the 44 specific ways in which, according to attorneys familiar with the law, the offering circular of "Camco" would violate present securities laws if used now:

1. Failure to show underwriting discounts.
2. Failure to show the proceeds to the issuing corporation.
3. Insufficient information on the business of subsidiary companies.
4. Failure to outline material franchises and concessions.
5. Lack of information about funded debt.
6. Inadequacy of information regarding each class of stock.
7. Lack of information regarding warants and rights, to show to what extent, if any, there had been private deals between officers of the company and other individuals.

Other Failures to Explain.

8. Failure to explain the nature of the affiliation between the issuer ["Camco"] and the underwriter.
9. Failure to state material provisions of the underwriting contract.
10. Failure to show persons or classes of persons to whom securities were to be sold at prices varying from the public offering price.
11. Failure to give itemized statement of expenses in connection with the sale of the issue.
12. Failure to give five year business history of principal executive officers.
13. Failure to disclose nature and extent of directors', officers', or underwriters' interest in any property acquired within the preceding two years by the company outside the ordinary course of business.

Remunerations Not Listed.

14. Failure to state aggregate remuneration of each director, each officer, and all employés of issuer receiving more than $20,000 annually.
15. Failure to disclose name and amount of securities sold by issuer to persons other than employés within preceding two years.
16. Failure to disclose interest by experts preparing or certifying any statements in the circular in any property of the issuer.
17. Material deficiencies in the income statement. No information concerning writeups, writedowns, revaluations, chargeoffs, and similar accounting items.
18. Signatures of directors missing.

This Material Objectionable.

Material in the offering circular which would be objectionable under present laws includes:

1. "Puffing" language.
2. Attempt to solicit sales on a preliminary circular.
3. Statements of opinions rather than facts, as shown in estimates of future earnings.

Standard Statistics, one of the leading financial rating agencies, said in October, 1928:

"The stock of Consolidated Automatic Merchandising corporation offers a speculation of the most radical type. No statements of the profits of the consolidated companies or indication of present earnings capacity are available."

LEHMAN REVEALS GEOGHAN DENIAL IN DRUKMAN CASE

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Gov. Lehman made public without comment tonight the categorical denial by District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Kings county of charges that he "demonstrated negligence and gross incompetence" in the handling of the Samuel Drukman murder case.

Geoghan previously was called on by the governor to defend himself against the removal charges, filed with the governor by members of an extraordinary grand jury. A public executive hearing will open here Wednesday.

Addressing the chief executive, the Brooklyn prosecutor in a documented statement covering 134 printed pages denied each of three main charges and twenty subordinate specifications, asserting they were "not only false, but are known to be false by those who made them."

Charges Made Public.

Geoghan insisted that the grand jury itself "took no official action" against him.

"We find 21 men, members of that extraordinary grand jury, who, not in their official capacity but in their 'individual capacities as citizens, residents, and taxpayers' stand forth as my accusers," he said.

The detailed specific charges against Geoghan, covering 18 printed pages, also were made public tonight by the governor.

The three main charges were:

"1. The district attorney demonstrated negligence and gross incompetence in the investigation and prosecution of the Drukman murder case.

"2. The district attorney, in disregard of his obligation under the state constitution, failed to investigate specific charges of bribery of public officials in the Drukman case, brought to his attention by the police commissioner of the City of New York and others.

"3. The district attorney's associations with certain persons are incompatible with the proper discharge of the duties of his high office and they seriously impair public confidence in his conduct of his office."

Included in the charges was a recital of the facts of the Drukman case.

3 Seized in Slaying.

This included the information that Drukman, an employé of the Luckman Brothers trucking concern, was found slain in the Luckman garage in Brooklyn on March 3, 1935, and that police arrested Harry Luckman and Fred J. Hull inside the garage and Meyer Luckman nearby.

The grand jury described the presentation of the case to the April, 1935, grand jury, which returned no indictments; resubmission of the case to another grand jury last November, which indicted the trio for murder, and their subsequent conviction of second degree murder.

NEW QUIZ SHOWS COURT FUNDS AS BAIT FOR THIEVES

Money Held, Contrary to Law, Since 1862.

How unclaimed escrow funds have been held for many years by the court clerks of Cook county in violation of an Illinois statute—and have served as tempting bait to swindlers—was shown yesterday as members of the state's attorney's staf entered the third week of investigation into court frauds that are expected to total $100,000. Some of the escrow accounts, records revealed, originated during civil war days.

In the loop branch of the state's attorney's office yesterday were assembled nine prisoners who have been arrested during the last two weeks in connection with fraudulent withdrawals of funds. They were put through a new session of questioning as investigators sought additional details of the gang's methods. Confessions that have been made by the prisoners from day to day were repeated yesterday in the presence of all.

Conroy Aids Investigators.

During this session, at which Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright and Investigator Eugene O'Connor presided, Circuit Court Clerk John E. Conroy aided the prosecuting officials. The discovery of the loooting of a $9,451 fund in his office some time ago started the investigation that resulted in admissions that 76 similar funds had been fraudulently obtained by members of the "ring."

Mr. Conroy revealed that some of the funds held, or supposed to be held by the Circuit court, have been unclaimed for many decades. The Illinois statute provides that after seven years the court clerk shall turn unclaimed funds over to the county treasurer, who shall hold them for an additional twenty-one years, after which they revert to the state.

One Account Dates to 1862.

In 1862, said Conroy, there was deposited with the Circuit court clerk $19,968 in the case of Wilbur vs. Stone, an estate partition suit. After several withdrawals, the last in 1878, a balance of $106 remains, but the file containing the legal documents cannot be found.

In 1881 $31,298 was deposited in escrow in the case of Semons vs. Ayres, a personal property suit. The last withdrawal of record was in 1888 and $158 remains unclaimed.

In 1889 $58.50 was deposited with the court clerk in the case of Parel vs. Smith. It is still there, though the files have disappeared.

The city of Chicago is party to a suit in which $2,110 was deposited in escrow in 1908 in the case of the city vs. Green. The suit apparently has not been disposed of and the money is, or should be, in escrow.

Amounts Now Held.

On March 2 on this year the escrow funds under his jurisdiction totaled $129,000 and consisted of over 400 accounts, Mr. Conroy stated. Of that total $18,000 had been held more than seven years.

The Superior court's escrow balance is about $225,000, Investigator O'Connor said, of which $25,000 has been held more than seven years. These two balances represent more than $350,000 tied up in litigation. It was at these various accounts that the conspirators were sniping, Mr. O'Connor declared.

Mr. Conroy declared that when he took office in 1932 he asked authority from the judges to turn over to the treasurer the escrow funds held over seven years. The authority was denied him, he said, because of an injunction in the Jacob Glos estate litigation issued in 1926 by Judge Ira D. Ryner, who has since died. O'Connor surmised that a similar reason kept the clerk of the Superior court from following the law.

The prisoners acquired some of the escrow funds by pretending to be the litigants. They appeared before a judge and stated that an out of court settlement had been reached. They obtained lists of the cases in which there were unclaimed funds—supposedly from a former court employé, O'Connor said, though it is also said that the county board published lists recently which gave the conspirators all the information they needed.

Arrest of a new suspect was revealed yesterday. Rocco Davicci, 30 years old, a WPA worker, was brought to the prosecutor's office with eight other prisoners for the "joint confession" session. Davicci, according to the prosecutor, posed as a litigant in helping the "ring" to collect escrow cash.

The two alleged heads of the ring, Clarence A. Bales, 53 years old, licensed a: an attorney in Tennessee but not in Illinois, and James Tilton, 74 years old, a disbarred lawyer, were reported to have called each other a "double-crosser" at the session.

Others at New Quiz.

The other persons present were Sherman T. Kimbell, a tax title research expert; Ernest Eckels, tavernkeeper; John A. Dicks, acting cashier in the Circuit court clerk's office; Arvil [Slim] Nichols, tavernkeeper, and Benjamin Shear, a WPA worker, all of whom have confessed, and Fred Roberts, a retired undertaker, who denies guilt.

Mrs. Margaret Allister, 28 years old, 6420 South Peoria street, sister-in-law of Nichols, who admitted representing herself as Mrs. Vera Beryl Williams, a litigant, to enable the others to collect $9,451 from the estate of Mrs. Williams' divorced husband, Weir Williams, was not present. Nick Juffra, former Capone beer boss, who was indicted for his part in cashing the $9,451 check, is out on bail.

Mr. O'Connor gathered the nine in one room and had each [with the exception of Roberts] make accusations against the others. He said the investigation is proceeding slowly because of the many acts of fraud instigated by Bales and Tilton, and the part each person played in the whole scheme was difficult to surmise.

DR. TOWNSEND QUITS SPEAKER'S PLATFORM; TALKS FROM SHADE

Columbus, O., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The blazing sun drove Dr. Francis E. Townsend from the speakers' platform at an Ohio rally today at which 5,000 to 6,000 persons heard the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith assert that the Roosevelt administration planned to embroil the United States in a world war in support of Russia.

Dr. Townsend, who said he had not yet recovered fully from an illness which prostrated him in Chicago, abandoned the speakers' platform at the state fair grounds to speak briefly in the shade of a huge screen used during the night program.

Smith, self-styled heir to leadership in the late Senator Huey Long's "share the wealth" movement, declared political issues in the United States had changed in the last three years through "economic panic, patriotic panic, world conflict between communism and private ownership."

COUPLE FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN FOREST AREA

Mrs. Esther Amsden, 41 years old, 6538 Ellis avenue, mother of two children, and John Anderson, 38 years old, an auditor formerly employed at the First National bank, were found shot to death in the forest preserve near 145th street and 93d avenue, Palos Park, yesterday. Investigators believe that Anderson fatally wounded the woman and then committed suicide.

The couple had been dead for several days. A .22 caliber revolver with three empty cartridges was found near Anderson's left hand.

Their identities were learned when police traced the ownership of their auto to the dead woman's sister, Mrs. Margaret Bernhard, with whom she lived at the Ellis avenue address.

Mrs. Bernhard said her sister had been separated from her husband, Cruise Amsden, a musician, for six years.

Mrs. Mary Moss, sister of the dead man with whom he lived, said that her brother had been suffering from mental depression since he lost his position at the bank last January. Anderson was divorced several years ago.

NO MAN'S LAND LIQUOR SALES ARE HELD LEGAL

Master's Opinion Hits N. Trier Ban.

The sale of beer and liquor in New Trier township has been held legal in an opinion of Master in Chancery Harold E. Sullivan of the Circuit court, it was learned yesterday. The master's finding, made in an injunction suit Saturday, was that the sales were legal because the dry referendum held by residents of the township in 1934 is void..

The township includes No Man's Land, the unincorporated strip between Wilmette and Kenilworth. The sale of liquor in the unincorporated strip, wedged in between the two bone dry communities, as well as in other rural portions of the township, has been bitterly contested by state and county authorities.

Liquor Referendum Possible.

Should the master's findings be approved by Judge John Prystalski and upheld on appeal, the sale of intoxicating beverages cannot be banned at this time in unincorporated portions of the township. Court attachés pointed out, however, that a legal referendum on the dry issue might be held at the election in November.

Master Sullivan made his finding in recommending an injunction to restrain the state and county liquor commissions, the state's attorney, and the sherif from interfering with the business of Herbert Smith, owner of a tavern in an unincorporated area of the township at Dundee road and Hohfelder lane, north of Glencoe.

Smith contended successfully that the dry referendum is void, since the petition which called for a vote on the issue was filed with the election board 41 days before the April, 1934, election, and not 60 days, as required by law.

Try to Block Liquor Sales.

Since the referendum, civic interests and police authorities have waged a campaign to prevent taverns, cafes, restaurants, and public clubs from selling beer and liquors. Smith and six cafe owners in No Man's Land have been the chief targets of the drive.

On Aug. 20 they were held to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Albert J. Sengstock of Morton Grove on charges of selling liquor unlawfully in dry territory. Police had arrested them previously on several occasions.

Joseph L. De La Cour, secretary of the state liquor commission, warned wholesale liquor distributors last June to stop their deliverys of beer to New Trier township taverns. The county board also refused to issue licenses to roadhouse owners in No Man's Land.

The No Man's Land cafe owners who will be affected by the ruling in the Smith case are: Wilbur Burns, George Lomax, Frank Lulias, John Immanuel, William J. Murphy, and John Anton.

Copies of Master Sullivan's opinion will be received tomorrow by attorneys representing the various interests. Their objections are to be presented on Wednesday, following which the master will submit these and his findings over to Judge Prystalski.

MISSING SAILING SHIP WITH 40 ABOARD SENDS RADIO CALL FOR FOOD

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Pacific Queen, full rigged vessel unreported since Aug. 6, wirelessed all vessels on the California-Honolulu steamer lanes today for immediate food supplies. It gave its position approximately 850 miles southwest of Los Angeles.

The steamer Mauna Loa reported shortly afterward its position approximately 55 miles from the big sailing ship.

First word from the Windjammer, which left San Diego July 4 for a southern cruise with 40 persons aboard, was intercepted by the Mackay radio station here.

The message, signed by Capt. Roy Mayes, said: "Require provisions immediately. Noon position latitude 30:45 north, longitude 132.14 west."

Coast guard headquarters placed the position about 250 miles from the area west of Guadalupe Island where three destroyers and two coast guard cutters are searching for the Pacific Queen and for the "phantom ship," the S. S. San Joaquin, which Wednesday night sent distress calls but signed unlisted call letters.

GERMAN ARMS RUSHED TO WAR FRONT IN SPAIN

Portugal Allows Ship to Land Cargo for Rebels.

ness in which 4,000 persons already have died and more are dying at the rate of fifty or sixty a day I will tell later.

Portugal Next?

Now comes the reason for Portugal's sensational defiance of international usages in peace time.

Her actions are motivated not only by a natural sympathy of one military, clerical, and supposedly Fascist dictatorship for a would-be dictatorship of the same stamp and by the fear of a Red Spain as a neighbor, but by something more immediate and more alarming.

There is a revolution brewing in Portugal. It is an open secret that the liberal and left elements are prepared to rise. They count on the support of the navy, it seems, where anti-dictatorship elements are strong. What their chances of success are nobody can say, but it is certain they count on the support of a considerable part of the population. But they are waiting to rise until they are reasonably sure the Popular Front in Spain is not doomed to defeat. They are waiting specifically for the fall of either Oviedo or Saragossa to assure them Madrid has a chance.

Rebels Have "Embassy."

This accounts for Prime Minister Salazar's remarkable display of animosity toward Madrid.

Later I will tell how he has isolated the ambassador of the Spanish republic, how a "black" embassy of the rebels is functioning in Lisbon, and how the real directors, not to say the angels, of the Spanish rebellion are allowed to operate openly in Lisbon's hotels while republican loyalists are sent under guard across the frontier to certain death.

British Force Apology.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A Spanish cruiser stopped and searched a British merchantman on the high seas, but the frowning guns of the British navy forced an apology from the Spanish commander, official reports said tonight.

The British passenger steamer Gibel Zerjon of the Bland company, official accounts related, was prevented from reaching Melilla, Spanish Morocco, by a warship flying the flag of Spain. The steamer was reported to be carrying a cargo of gasoline to rebels.

A few hours after Gibraltar naval authorities were informed of the incident the British destroyer Codrington overtook the Spanish cruiser Miguel de Cervantes, and the captain of the British ship boarded the Spanish vessel.

Big Warship Appears.

He vigorously protested interference with British shipping outside Spanish waters. The commander of the Miguel de Cervantes gave his apology just before the 32,000 ton British battle cruiser Repulse hove into sight, the official report said.

The Repulse, with its decks cleared and gun crews standing by, had remained in the background until the interview aboard the Spanish vessel was completed.

The master of the Gibel Zerjon was informed he was free to proceed with his vessel, and the British fighting craft turned back toward Gibraltar.

Interference with a British passanger steamer on the high seas threw new complications tonight into the efforts of Europe's nations to keep hands out of Spain.

At the same time the French popular press, viewing apparent German efforts to whip up its press to a campaign of words against Madrid and Moscow, accused Reichsfuther Hitler of trying to wreck neutrality negotiations.

The French leftist press, termed "arrogant and menacing" Berlin's protests to Madrid over war incidents, and applied the same term to the action of the crew of the German liner Bremen during an extremist demonstration aboard ship in New York harbor.

Spain Seizes 600 Industries in Five Weeks of Civil War

MADRID, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Spain's government, it was authoritatively disclosed today, has seized direct control of nearly 600 industries since its bloody civil war began five weeks ago.

José Benito, general secretary in charge of "government intervention in industries," declared:

"Only government intervention prevented the collapse of the national industrial system in the present emergency."

As a result, he asserted, not a single industry operating prior to the revolution has been closed, and many of those abandoned before the fighting started have been reopened.

Aim to Control All Industry.

The defenders of Spain's Socialist régime, Benito said, have intervened in every phase of Spanish industry, from mining and the operation of banks and railroads to production and distribution of food supplies.

Madrid itself, he contended, forms one of the most remarkable features of the new system aimed at governmental control of all industry.

Previous to the revolt, Benito declared, the capital had little or no industrial production, but within ten days after the first shots were fired, it became the most important industrial center in the country, with the exception of Barcelona.

Industries here have been reorganized for the production of war materials in sufficient quantities to supply all armed forces operating in the Madrid area, the secretary asserted.

Manufacture Munitions.

Aerial bombs, weighing as much as 165 pounds, are being manufactured in Madrid on a "large scale." Similarly, factories are turning out artillery shells, rifle cartridges, and uniforms. An average of four combat planes a day are being manufactured at the Getafe airdrome works, near Madrid.

Benito said the government intervention in industry has taken two forms. Either the industry is staffed with a government selected personnel throughout, or a government delegate with full administrative powers is placed in active charge.

The first form, he declared, applied only to those industries which might be classified as allied with the manufacture of war materials or support of the fighting forces. Production of all these units has been stepped up to a pace never before achieved in Spain.

Supplies Plentiful.

The government, said Benito, was "particularly fortunate" in that all the great surface raw materials of Spain were in its possession. Among these, he declared, were the Rio Tinto mines in Huelva province, the great coal basin of the Asturias, and mines at Linares, Puerto Llano, and Vizcaya.

At present there is on nand, he went on, a sufficient supply of lead, copper, iron, zinc, and coal to feed the war industries for a year at least.

Spanish finance, Benito contended, has thrown its full support to the government. On the other haid, he declared, the rebels have had to appropriate bank deposits in their territory. He said the government had not been forced to this extreme.

The banks have arranged credit facilities enabling government controlled industries to continue operation without resort to "actual looting," the secretary stated.

SPANISH FLYER, ARMS RUNNER, HIDES IN FRANCE

Information assembled by police in several cities indicated, they said, the government pilot, Juan Balcello, left Barcelona Aug. 18, flying ammunition to beleaguered government forces at San Sebastian.

Flying over France he ran low of fuel and landed at a private airport near Toulouse, asking several children to keep his cases of Mauser cartridges until he returned, the police said. He then flew to Perpignan and refuelled after his plane had been searched by authorities. Finding the children's parents had given the heavy cases of ammunition to police for safekeeping, Balcello wandered about the private airports of southern France for three days, fearing punishment if he returned to Barcelona. Finally he landed at Nice where he vanished after police seized his plane.

MADRID PAPERS PLEAD FOR CURB ON BRUTALITY

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Aug. 23.—Several responsible government newspapers today begged the people of Spain not to sully their "victories" by acts of "frightfulness."

"Let the courts administer severe justice throughout the region in republican hands," wrote Politica, the government organ, "but let us leave to the other side all the savage revenge, all the shootings without trial, all the torture of prisoners."

El Socialista strongly upheld the same theme, declaring: "The conduct of the rebels, however terrible, should be no example or excuse. Rather it is our duty to prove otherwise."

SPANISH REBELS MASS MOORS FOR BATTLE IN NORTH

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALLADOLID, Spain, Aug. 23.—The determination of the Spanish insurgent high command to play safe and consolidate all positions before advancing was illustrated again today when it was learned that the offensive against San Sebastian is awaiting arrival of Moroccan troops to reinforce the Carlist [monarchist] and Fascist volunteers in this sector.

The Moors—along with the foreign legion—the best shock troops in Spain—are already available for use on the northern front, but exactly when and where they will be brought into action has not been revealed.

In any case, there is a definite tendency here to regard the cleaning up of the north around San Sebastian, Bilbao, and Oviedo as a necessary preliminary to pursuing an advance on Madrid. Loyalist forces along the seacoast and in Asturias are not a direct menace to the insurgents, but they are holding up the troops, and, above all, the artillery, which the insurgents think they need for the drive on Madrid

Builds Efficient Army.

Gen. Emilio Mola, northern commander, is preparing for the eventual decisive engagement by building up an efficient fighting machine out of the volunteers and raw material at his disposal. The present Spanish army, which is mostly in the hands of rebels, had run to seed under the last five years of republican rule—that is what the rebels charge.

Now Gen. Mola is concentrating most of his attention on whipping the Fascist and Carlist volunteers into trained soldiers. Bit by bit, as the volunteers can be spared from the front, they are being ordered to give up their uniforms and put on the regular army khaki and are being incorporated in the regular army under strict army discipline.

Smash Attack on Oviedo.

BURGOS, Spain, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Spanish rebel leaders announced tonight their troops had smashed an assault on the northern insurgent stronghold of Oviedo by 20,000 Asturian miners who had been using dynamite in a siege of the city.

A communique issued from the new supreme rebel headquarters at Valladolid said the southern rebel army was continuing to advance on Madrid. In the south, insurgent leaders declared, rebels threw back a violent government attack on Cordoba.

In the Bay of Biscay sector the rebels said they had driven a wedge between Irun and San Sebastian cutting government communications. Government defenders of Irun were bombed from the air; San Sebastian was reported shelled by a rebel cruiser.

[Loyalist advices reaching the French frontier said government forces from Tarragona had occupied Belchite, on the road to Saragossa, 22 miles southeast of that rebel-held eastern city. A battle for possession of rebel positions on Lodo hill lasted 24 hours and ended in a government victory, the reports said.]

The Fascist insurgents claimed victory over a government force of Catalonians which attacked the town of Jaca in the Pyrenees, 33 miles north of Huesca, and said they had repulsed a new government offensive on the Avila front, 50 miles northwest of Madrid.

It is reported in rebel circles that Cardinal Vidal y Barraquer, archbishop of Tarragona, has been executed by government supporters in Barcelona. As a young man the cardinal was a member of the Carlists and supported the Catalan separatists against the wishes of the former primate of Spain, Cardinal Segura, who was expelled when the republic was founded.

From Madrid it is reported the government has deprived Prof. Miguel de Unamuno, world famous Spanish philosopher and essayist, of his life rectorship in the University of Salamanca and all his other appointments in the underministry of education.

BARCELONA COURT MARTIAL SENTENCES 4 REBELS TO DEATH

BARCELONA, Spain, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Catalan officials said tonight the council of war had sentenced four rebel army officers to death for their part in the Barcelona rebellion. They were convicted after a nine hour trial aboard the prison ship Uruguay.

Defendants were Maj. Josef Lopez Amor, Capts. Fernando Lizcano de la Rosa, Henri Lopez Belda, and Luis Lopez Varela.

Maj. Amor and the other officers said they acted in the revolt under the command of superior officers, and had no intention of rebelling against the republic. Capt. Varela, who was wounded in the fighting, appeared at the trial on a stretcher and was attended by a nurse.

DICTATOR'S RISE SEEN AS RESULT OF SPANISH WAR

Europe Scans Names in Myriad of Factions.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Who, if any one, will emerge from the Spanish civil war as a powerful dominating personality to give eventual shape, whatever new order comes out of the present social convulsion?

Speculations of this kind as to whether there will be a Napoleon or a Lenin or some such strong man of that prototype now disturb European diplomatic observers of Spain.

Though no outstanding strong man has appeared on either side, there can be mentioned today many personalities whose names stand out in Spain's bloody civil war which threatens to turn itself daily into a general European conflagration.

Can Azana Hold On?

The salient figures on the loyalist side include, first, President Manuel Azana, whose name is associated with the ups and downs that characterized the last five years of the Spanish republic's life. Only two years ago Azana was a hunted man, charged by the then centrist government with being a fomenter of Spain's last bloody civil strife in Asturias, which raged in October, 1934.

Next to Azana as an outstanding figure on the leftist side is Luis Companys, president of the Barcelona generalitat, of syndicalist sympathies and a left republican lawyer by profession. Companys finds himself now the head of what is almost a rival government to Azana's, with the Catalonian separatist movement working out of a new collectivist economic system under anarchists and syndicalists.

But it does not appear likely that either Companys or Azana will develop as a great strong man whose leadership will subsequently shake Europe, nor will José Giral, present premier in Madrid.

Caballero Strongest.

Stronger than any of these perhaps is tough old Francisco Largo Caballero, head of Madrid trade unionists. But Caballero, through sectionalism, separatism, and division generally is not a national figure. Can he become one?

After these come minor names. Whether some of these have marshals' batons or Kremlin palaces in store for them remains to be seen. Col. Sarabata, a leader of the leftist army; Col. Diaz Sandino, leader of the Catalan militiamen, and Señor Miravilles, general secretary of the anti-Fascist militia, are in this group. There are also Col. Villalba, commanding the anti-Fascist militia besieging Saragossa, and Col. Julio Mangada, leading government troops in defense of Madrid in the Guadarrama mountains.

Are there any Napoleons, Trotzkys, or Budennys among these? Time perhaps will show.

Perhaps Hidden in Ranks.

Other personalities and names thrust themselves forward. Not insignificant is the name of Ventura y Gassol, Companys' right hand man in Barcelona: Denors Casanovas and Serra Hunter, also of the generalitat, are also perhaps men in the making like those strange obscure figures in both the Russian and French revolutions who rose to power. Or maybe Ramon Bosch, powerful as the leader of the P. O. U. M. [communists] in Lerida, but unknown in the rest of Spain, may be fortune's favorite. Leadership, if the past is any lesson, might even fall to the Asturian miner named Grossi who is leading one of the Catalonian columns against Saragossa, or on Sergt. Ortega, who is dictator of San Sebastian.

And what may be the revolutionary rôle ahead for "La Pasionaria"—Dona Dolores Ibarruri, the Cassandra of the communists—or Mayor Don Pedro Rico Lopez of Madrid, energetic radio broadcaster and said to be the fattest mayor in Europe. Or the irresponsible Indalecio Prieto, Socialist deputy and prophet.

The Rebels' List.

And what can Don Juan March, Madrid millionaire who is alleged to have financed the uprising, be thinking in exile about the communistic desecration of his model de luxe bath room in his Madrid palace. What will be the rôle of José Maria Gil Robles, who is active in furthering the rebel cause from Lisbon?

Or maybe it may be that some nascent personality is waiting among the generals of the insurgents—Gen. Miguel Cabanellas, president of the rebel junta, or Gen. Francisco Franco, Gen. Emilio Mola, Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, or the Fascist leader, young Primo de Rivera?

Anyway, names that rang in one's ears in all the talk about Spain only a year ago, Alejandro Lorroux and Niceto Alcala Zamora, are fading out.

HUNDREDS LOSE HOMES AS FLOOD SWEEPS MEXICO

TAMPICO, Mexico, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Flood waters sweeping the El Mante area east of this gulf port tonight left hundreds homeless, did incalculable damage to the region's sugar crop, and stranded many tourists.

Reports reaching Tampico said three days' incessant rainfall accompanying the Gulf of Mexico storm that struck inland Wednesday put many streams out of their banks, destroyed the irrigation system watering the El Mante region, and flooded an estimated area of 10 square miles.

Rise of the Guayalejo, Commandante, and Boquilla rivers carried away homes of 700 families in Limon, on the Mexico-Laredo highway. The entire town was flooded. The flood waters swept out the international highway bridge at Limon, and backed up over the road,, stranding many travelers.

[Reports to the Mexican Automobile association at Mexico City said between 80 and 100 automobiles, most of them from the United States, had been marooned. Accomodations were provided most of the tourists, it was reported.]

ARREST FRENCH BANKER WANTED IN STAVISKY CASE

BRUSSELS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Police today arrested a man whom they identified as Alexis Pelissier, French financier and alleged accomplice of the late swindler, Serge Stavisky.

They said he had been living in Schaenbeek under the name of Joseph Durth.

Pelissier was convicted on five separate charges of swindling in connection with the celebrated Stavisky embezzlement case. He escaped on Oct. 3, 1935, from the prisoner's room in the Paris law courts.

EXECUTE LEADER SEEKING TRUCE IN SPANISH WAR

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A Nationalist leader in San Sebastian was reported executed tonight by Socialist government supporters because of proposals that a truce be sought with the Fascist rebels in the Bay of Biscay sector. Socialist government sources in Hendaye said President Leizola of the San Sebastian Nationalist association faced a firing squad because a meeting over which he presided voted to advise government forces to open negotiations for a truce with the rebels.

TRAIN VICTIM DIES.

Casimir Golid, 73 years old, 4440 31st street, died yesterday in the Berwyn hospital from injuries received Friday when he was struck by an Illinois Central passenger train while picking coal on the right of way at 33d street, Cicero.

NOT INJURED BY SPANISH JAILERS, EX-PREMIER SAYS

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Count Don Alvaro Figueroa de Torres Mendieta y Romo de Romanones, former premier of Spain and just released as a hostage by government defenders of San Sebastian, today told the leftist newspaper San Sebastian Frente Popular he had "nothing to complain of during my imprisonment." Informed sources at Irun indicated the interview might have been the price of the count's freedom.

It said he was asked: "Do you think responsibility for the Spanish revolt and the present state of affairs in Spain falls on the rebel generals?"

"There is not the slightest doubt of it," he was quoted as replying.

CASS COUNTY PIONEER DIES.

THROUGH THE EYES OF OUR FRIENDS

A California Woman

By CALEB

"WELL, this seems like old times. It's the first time I've settled down in this room for a leisurely delicious luncheon in—four—no, five years.

"But the store doesn't seem to change as time goes on. That is, fundamentally. I used to know where every department was. The ribbon section I could find blindfolded. You see, I went to school at —— —— and about the only thing I could get a day in town for was shopping at Marshall Field's.

"The chaperon who accompanied me to the store would leave me on the first floor—first extracting a promise I would remain in the store, until we met hours later. And always at the ribbon section. Dear me—that was a long time ago. Do you remember when ribbons were very, very important in the general scheme of things?

"Once I had a date with a boy. The most unlikely place to happen onto my chaperon, I thought, would be the toy section. So blithely we went there. We looked at many things—and then walked around the corner where someone with great enthusiasm was squeaking a stuffed dog. It was the chaperon we were trying to avoid! She was more embarrassed than we were—and we went on. She pretended we never saw each other.

"Let me see, all this was about 1912 or 1913. I was a little girl in 1904 when my folks moved to Illinois—and I remember my first visit to the store. You had quite a section devoted to automobile togs as I remember it.

"Do you know what I recall most clearly? Looking down the great well in the Randolph and State building! I had never been so high before, I think. People on the first floor looked so small to me. I thought I was as high as heaven.

"Then—the store seemed to me like a dream come true. A place where all the good things of the earth seemed to bubble to the surface. I still have that feeling. Sometimes I wonder if people who live in Chicago realize that there is only one store like this anywhere. I really mean anywhere!

"There is a man on your third floor who wouldn't know me now, but I remember he patted me on the head, and led me to a place to wait when I became separated from my mother and started to cry—years and years ago. I used to speak to him after that, always, when I came into the store.

"Oh, I'm sorry. Let's order. You know, it's hot—but I want a cold weather dish. Corned beef hash. I can't get it at home like they have it here. May I?"

WEST MUST GIVE PEACE GOSPEL, SAYS PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Tells Women His Hatred of War.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—For the second time within ten days, President Roosevelt today seized the opportunity to stress in a public statement his hatred of war and desire for peace.

The President spoke informally before a delegation of women representing the People's Mandate to End War, an organization which is circulating a petition calling upon the United States to lead all nations in a disarmament program.

Repeating sentiments aired in his recent Chautauqua, N. Y., speech, Mr. Roosevelt said that "some nations use the need for improved economic conditions as an excuse for possible war."

"Cart Put Before Horse."

"They have put the cart before the horse," he remarked. "The answer is not to go to war, but to stress efforts to improve international economic conditions."

The President's remarks lent substance to a growing belief among newspaper observers who have been following him that increasing emphasis is to be laid in his campaign for reëlection upon the supposed inadvisability of putting a new occupant in the White House when there is danger of world conflict.

"If a general war should break out in Europe all our troubles would be over," remarked a person close to the President a few days ago. "We would coast in."

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college, told the President she was sure he realized the "overwhelming desire of the people of the United States not only for peace, but for constructive action by governments to end wars."

Cites Chautauqua Speech.

"In your speech at Chautauqua you said that peace and international understanding would be secured not alone by governments, but by the call of the people," she declared. "It is to mobilize and make articulate this will of the people that we circulate the People's Mandate petition."

Dr. Woolley referred to a statement made by Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., who upon his return from Europe recently estimated that 95 per cent of the people in the various countries of Europe desired peace.

In reply, the President said he had always felt that 95 per cent of the people in almost every nation oppose war and favor peace, but that "unfortunately, on this subject, as on many others, many governments are behind instead of abreast of the wishes of the people in their countries."

Roosevelt Attends Church.

In this hemisphere, he continued, the popular demand for peace is stronger than ever before in history. All American governments seem to have recognized this, he said, and the proof was contained in the calling of the inter-American peace conference in Buenos Aires to be held Dec. 1.

"The greatest good for the future of mankind can be accomplished by spreading the popular belief of this hemisphere to other parts of the world," he declared, "seeking to make the people in other parts of the world more insistent within their own nations against war."

The President attended church services this morning. There was only one official caller at his summer estate today, Louis B. Mayer, head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer moving picture organization. Mayer has been known as a Republican in California politics. The nature of his discussion with the President was not revealed.

Late tonight the President entrained for Washington where he will arrive tomorrow morning. He will remain at the White House two days and then depart for the west for an inspection of drouth areas.

DEFENSE FOR PEACE IS LEGION'S STAND, DECLARES SAVAGE

Danville, Ill., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Col. Howard P. Savage of Chicago, former national commander of the American Legion, said in an address prepared for delivery today that "the American Legion stands for an adequate national defense for peace, not for war."

"It knows that our government will not seek a war," he said at the annual convention of the Illinois department of the Legion. "But, it knows, too, that the gravest danger to peace is a weak defense. For that reason we ask for a defense which will insure us against invasion and the horrors of another war."

Savage said the Legion "believes that the nation has a right to call its manpower to the colors in time of crisis, but it also holds that dollars shall not be held to be of greater value than human life."

FACTORY SHUTS IN STRIKE; MEN GET 'LAST PAY'

Unable to Get Protection, Say Plant Officers.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 23. — (AP) — Locks clamped shut the gates to the Standard Steel and Spring company today, closed because of a strike.

Company officials ordered the complete shutdown because of "inability to obtain protection for our property and men who desire to work." The company normally employs approximately 750 men.

A week ago crowds gathered outside the plants in suburban Coraopolis and Moon township and clashed with men remaining at work. Stones and tear gas bombs were hurled until state highway patrolmen halted the melée.

150 Workers Removed.

Later the company evacuated 150 workmen and watchmen. They walked through the picket lines under assurance of safe conduct given by officials of the local lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Before the closing order Clinton S. Golden, regional director for the steel workers' organizing committee, which seeks to enroll the industry's 450,000 workers in the Amalgamated, discussing strike possibilities generally, said:

"The first step is the closing of the plant. Next will come hints the plant is going to stay closed indefinitly.

Pay Raise Demanded.

"Then will follow propaganda to demoralize the morale of the workers through whispering campaigns. . . ."

The newly organized local of the Amalgamated called the strike at the Coraopolis and Moon township plants of the Standard Steel Spring to enforce demands for union recognition, increased wages, and revised working hours.

Company officials said they would decline to deal with the men "as members of an outside union."

Pay envelopes delivered to workers yesterday contained this notice:

HUNGARY HONORS WHIP, COURAGE OF U. S. GENERAL

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A small whip and the courage of Brig. Gen. Harry Hill Bandholtz were honored tonight in Budapest.

In 1919, when the United States army officer was head of the inter-allied commission in Hungary, he prevented a Rumanian band from plundering the national museum in Budapest, facing the mob with only a small whip in his hand.

Gen. Bandholtz died May 7, 1925, but Hungarians remembered. They placed the whip in the museum, and tonight they ceremoniously unveiled a memorial to the officer, a statue of Gen. Bandholtz with the whip in his hand.

OLSON'S DEATH CLOUDS STATE'S CAMPAIGN ROLE

Farmer-Labor Stand on Roosevelt Unsettled.

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Minnesota's role in President Roosevelt's campaign for reelection became an unknown quantity tonight with the death of Gov. Floyd B. Olson.

The stand of the Farmer-Labor party, which Olson led to political dominance in the state for six years, was unannounced as the governor's body was prepared for movement to St. Paul to lie in state in the capitol rotunda.

Before he died of stomach cancer last night at the Mayo clinic, Olson pledged his personal support to the New Deal. In 1932 he was instrumental in carrying the state for a Democratic president for the first time in Minnesota history.

Situation Is Unsettled.

Although there were indications the Farmer-Laborites would follow their dead chief's wish, the situation was unsettled.

Olson was dead only a few hours before signs of battle appeared over the Farmer-Labor nomination he held for the United States senate seat now occupied by his appointee, Elmer A. Benson.

Francis H. Shoemaker of Duluth, former congressman, announced his candidacy for the place in a statement in which he called Olson "the greatest governor in the United States."

The decision lay with the party's state central committee, which was reported to be considering two other men—Representative Ernest Lundeen of Minneapolis, and Senator Benson, who now is a candidate for governor.

Petersen Now Governor.

In event of the latter choice, it was said, Benson's name on the gubernatorial ballot would be replaced by that of Hjalmar Petersen, lieutenant governor under Olson and now governor of Minnesota.

Although he had been ill for months, Olson had expected to make the senate race for himself. He was in the prime of life—44 years old—and fought cancer with the same fortitude with which he waged his political battles.

He went to the clinic for treatment some time ago and left much improved. An intestinal perforation developed while he was at his Gull lake summer home, however, and on Aug. 11 he was rushed back by airplane for an operation.

Lapses Into Coma.

A few days before he died he told Maurice Rose, his chauffeur and personal aid:

"I think and believe I'm going to beat this thing."

Not until just before he lapsed into the final coma an hour before his death did he admit he was dying.

"This has got us licked," he said at the last. "But don't worry or feel bad, because it must be for the best."

Death brought messages of admiration for the chief executive. Republicans with whom he battled throughout his political life joined Democrats in praising his ability and personality.

President Roosevelt, who was to have visited Olson Wednesday, sent his condolences to Mrs. Olson. Walter Newton, former President Hoover's one time secretary, praised his "outstanding ability and fighting leadership."

The governor had been active in politics since 1919, when he was appointed Henhepin county attorney to fill a vacancy. In 1924 he ran for governor against Theodore Christianson and was overwhelmingly defeated. He came back in 1930 to win that office, which he held until his death.

A state funeral was set for 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Minneapolis auditorium. The body will lie in state in the state capitol from tomorrow noon until Wednesday. Burial will be in Lakewood cemetery, Minneapolis.

Petersen, Gov. Olson's successor, Askov newspaper publisher, is an advocate of public ownership and cooperatives, the main planks in the late governor's personal platform.

Olson's successor as senatorial nominee will take part in a three-cornered ballot fight in the fall. Representative Theodore Christianson is the Republican nominee and Patrick J. Delaney the Democratic choice.

Brands Saratoga as Gaming Center Rivaling Monte Carlo

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Saratoga, N. Y., in August was described by the national crime prevention league tonight as being the nearest approach to Monte Carlo that can be found anywhere in the United States.

In a letter from its Newark, N. J., headquarters to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the league reported on gambling and drinking conditions as found there by its observers and said:

"One of the greatest dangers of civilization is that such things can go on from year to year, run by syndicates of gamblers and racketeers that are largely responsible for the great expense of crime to the taxpayers of the state."

"They could never survive," the letter added, "were it not for the connivance of public officials."

The letter, signed by the Rev. Noah C. Ganse, secretary, said gambling dens were "wide open to the public and seemed to be on every one of the public streets."

"Any one, unhindered, can walk into these places and find roulette wheels, crap games, bird cages, stud poker games, black jack and other devices known to the gambling world; they were running as openly and freely as grocery stores and butcher markets, with ten times as many patrons."

In the cabarets, the letter went on, "every table was taken and intoxicating drink was flowing like water, notwithstanding the law of New York forbids gambling places where liquor is sold.

The league, which is headed by the Rev. Otho F. Bartholow, also protested against dog racing at Mineola and Nassau.

Costa Rica Shuts Bars Over Sunday; Uses Old Dry Law

(Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.)

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 23.—Costa Rica went bone dry today when a closing law, ignored for twelve years, was first enforced despite many protests. Police were instructed to close all bars, canteens, hotels, clubs, and grocery stores where liquor is sold from 10 o'clock last night until Monday morning. This means the end of the capital's gay week-end parties. American tourists who arrived last night had to endure the drouth until they returned to their ships tonight.

TWO IN W. C. T. U. SCANDAL FOUND DEAD IN HOME of the "Co-Ordinators, 11 South La Salle street," one of her husband's business promotion names. Apparently, after writing it, she lay down on the bed and put the towel soaked in chloroform over her face.

Mystery Note Puzzles the Police; Doubt Pact.

Mrs. Lynch was 48 years old. Her husband was 40. They told friends they were married in France while he was a soldier and she a war nurse. Police said they learned, however, that she came to this country in 1918 as the wife of Abel Bourgue, who was invalided out of the French army. She was naturalized in 1923 under the name of Emilia Bourgue and has kept that name ever since.

Lynch first came to public notice when his wife had him and Mrs. Brucer arrested on charges of disorderly conduct in 1932. In court Mrs. Brucer said she first met Lynch at a joint luncheon of the W. C. T. U. and the Business Men's Prohibition Foundation, for which Lynch was press agent.

The Whisky Incident.

He then did some research work for her, Mrs. Brucer told the court, and finally he fell a victim of whisky and she sat up all night giving him hot coffee in a room she had rented for him.

Mrs. Brucer resigned her presidency of the temperance organization. Her resignation was accepted, but a vote "of the fullest confidence" was given her, and the organization issued a statement to the effect that she had been guilty only of an indiscretion in putting into practice what all the women were preaching, "that one should help his fellow man when he is 'down.' The original statement was edited to use the word "indiscretion" instead of "imprudence" which had been used in the typewritten statement.

Accused by Boys' Parents.

Mrs. Brucer passed out of Lynch's life and he returned to his wife. A year later he was accused by the parents of two boys, who charged that he contributed to their delinquency. He was placed on probation for one year upon his wife's promise that she would keep him from drinking and "out of trouble."

Since then, according to Miss Fernandez, Lynch frequently left his wife, who was madly in love with him and only too willing to forgive him and take him back whenever he came home, contrite and penniless. In June, Lynch was in a sanitarium in New York, but on his release came home to live with his wife at the Elm street address.

"Last week Madame Bourgue came out to visit me," said Miss Fernandez yesterday. "I wasn't at home. My father told her he had seen her husband on the north side a few days previously and that she was anxious to know where he could be found. She was crazy about him and wanted him back.

Doubts Suicide Pact.

"I don't know why she should enter into a suicide pact with him. She appeared happy and able to take care of herself, and her school was doing nicely. She never intimated to me that she wanted to die."

Police said there were no indications that Lynch had joined with his wife in a suicide pact. It was possible, they theorized, that she had decided on death for both of them.

Letters she had written indicated she blamed Mrs. Atwood and Mr. Morton for spreading information harmful to Lynch's reputation. Both Mrs. Atwood and Mr. Morton are active in organizations upholding the constitution, and Lynch was in possession of lists of names of contributors to the cause of anti-communism.

An inquest into the double death will be held today at which the police hope to have more information about the affairs of the couple.

150 POLISH PEASANTS RAID VILLAGE; WRECK JEWISH HOMES, SHOPS

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Police in Wiszonki Wibichi, a village 60 miles north of Warsaw, were investigating today a raid by 150 peasants who took possession of the village and demolished Jewish houses and places of business.

The raid was led by a Nationalist landowner, who gave orders that Jewish property was to be destroyed but no Jews were to be attacked. The incident occurred Friday night, and police arrived on the scene yesterday morning. No arrests had been made tonight.

Organized in groups of ten, the night raiders ordered the 36 Jewish families residing in the village to evacuate their homes and then wrecked shops, tore roofs off houses and ripped up floors. The Jews sent their wives, children and aged to the nearby town of Ciechanowiec. The men remained.

Taking Mold of Living Eye Explained by Optometrist

A technique of obtaining a plastic mold of the living eyeball for making invisible eyeglasses was described yesterday by Dr. William Feinbloom of New York at the opening session of the fifteenth annual meeting of the American Academy of Optometry at the Blackstone hotel. Such eyeglasses are worn under the eyelids and, according to Dr. Feinbloom, they are used not only for correcting distorted vision, but for improving the appearance of actresses, public speakers, and others to whom the wearing of spectacles is a handicap.

PALESTINE OUSTS 15 JEWISH REDS TO CURB FIGHTING

Plans to Deport Second Group Wednesday.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Palestine government revealed tonight it had deported 15 Jewish communists and one Armenian and was prepared to send a second group from the country next Wednesday in an effort to end disorders now in the 19th week.

Fighting within Palestine continued, and in a battle during the night between police and Arabs, three Arabs were killed and one wounded.

In another skirmish between a police patrol and an Arab band at a German colony near Jaffa, one Arab was killed and several wounded.

Jewish Girl Dies of Wounds.

The 76th Jewish victim of disorders, Shoshana Laznicki, 17, died tonight from wounds received Friday. Arabs were reported to have fired on the automobile in which she was riding with five others to Tel Aviv, the all-Jewish city adjoining the Arab city of Jaffa. Three other Jews were killed in the gun fire which wounded the girl.

Three United States senators, Royal S. Copeland of New York, Warren Austin of Vermont, and Daniel Hastings of Delaware, arrived in the city for a tour of Palestine during which they will study development of the country.

TELLS OF STRUGGLE.

Some interesting highlights on the present struggle in Palestine are contained in a letter which Dr. Philip Lewis, Pittsfield building, has just received from a young friend in Tel Aviv, Miss Bernice Levin.

"Although Palestine is an old country, still it is very new," she says. "It wasn't very long ago that the first Jewish settlers came to Palestine. Since then miles of territory that was once swampy marshlands have been drained and forests have been planted.

"Where heretofore were desolate sand wastes, there are now orange groves, fields of grain, towns, and villages. Where before there were only small settlements and villages we now have modern cities like Tel-Aviv, Haifa and Jerusalem. These are only a few things that the Jews have done for Palestine. The reason the Arabs give to the government for the rioting is that the Jews are crowding them out of Palestine. They are asking Britain to cut down on Jewish immigration.

Large Enough for Both.

"Palestine is large enough for Arabs and Jews alike. We Jews don't want to crowd out any one. All we want is one tiny corner in the world that we can call our own. That is not much for a nation to ask for, is it? The Arabs seem to have forgotten what Palestine was like before we came. They don't seem to realize that they, too, have benefited from the upbuilding of Palestine. Their standards of living are much higher than before, they are employed in factories and orange groves, and receive higher wages and are no longer dependent on the rich Arab landlords.

"Now they are free men where before they were almost slaves. The thanks we get for all this is the murdering of our people."

WOMAN DIES IN PLUNGE.

Miss Rae Zoellner, 60 years old, plunged to her death from the window of her third floor apartment at 3473 East 74th street yesterday. She had been ill for several years with a nervous disorder.

8,000 Attend Annual Picnic of Catholic Slovak Union

More than 8,000 persons gathered yesterday at Horalek's grove, Harlem avenue and Pershing road, Lyons, for the annual picnic of the First Catholic Slovak union. Rain caused cancellation of a scheduled military drill. Attorney Michael Tremko spoke on Americanism and praised the Slovaks for holding to American ideals of liberty and patriotism while retaining Slovene traditions.

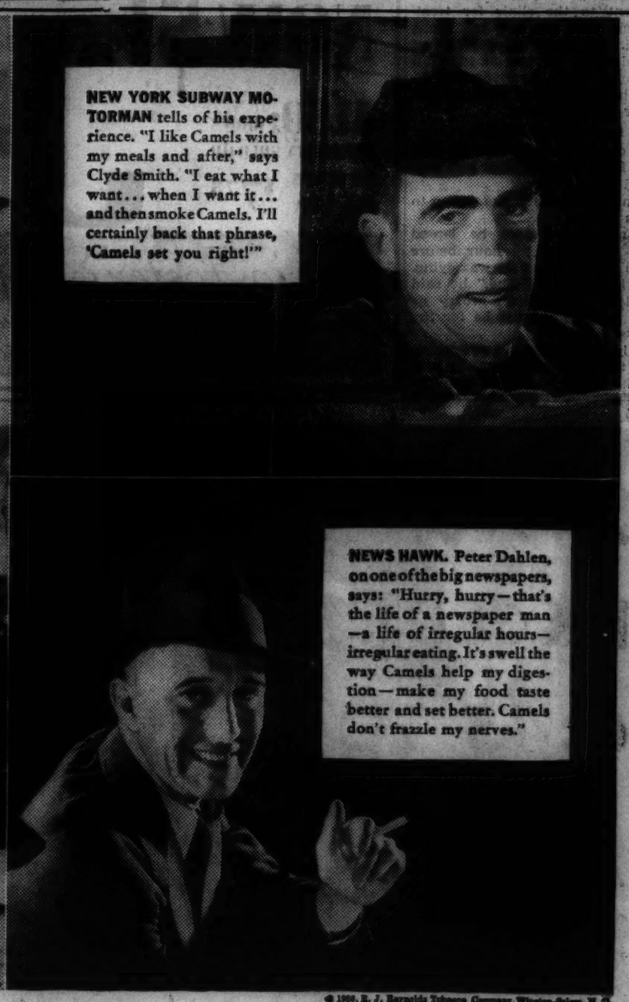
Sandwich in one hand and his Camel in the other, Lou shows little of the strain of the 500-mile grind . . . 4½ hours behind the wheel of a roaring speed bullet, with every muscle and nerve tensed to the limit. Here is an epic example of how Camels at mealtime and after aid digestion and encourage a sense of well-being. In Lou Meyer's own words: "After all that pounding, I'll hand it to Camels for setting my digestion to rights! They make my food taste better and help it to digest easier. As long as I have a Camel, I know I'm headed for a swell feeling of well-being."



NEW YORK SUBWAY MOTORMAN tells of his experience. "I like Camels with my meals and after," says Clyde Smith. "I eat what I want . . . when I want it . . . and then smoke Camels. I'll certainly back that phrase, 'Camels set you right!'"

NEWS HAWK. Peter Dahlen, on one of the big newspapers, says: "Hurry, hurry—that's the life of a newspaper man—a life of irregular hours—irregular eating. It's swell the way Camels help my digestion—make my food taste better and set better. Camels don't frazzle my nerves."

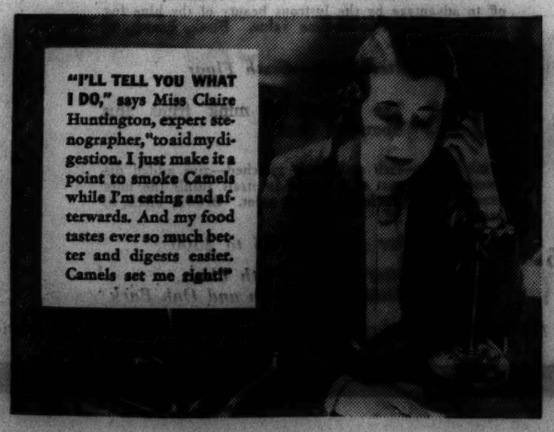
Others have found that good digestion and a sense of well-being are encouraged by Camels . . . so

"for Digestion's sake . . . smoke Camels!"



"I'LL TELL YOU WHAT I DO," says Miss Claire Huntington, expert stenographer, "to aid my digestion. I just make it a point to smoke Camels while I'm eating and afterwards. And my food tastes ever so much better and digests easier. Camels set me right!"

Good digestion and a sense of well-being are helpful allies for every one!

PEOPLE in every walk of life . . . men and women . . . agree that Camels ease strain and encourage digestive well-being. Millions of smokers find that "Camels set you right!"

Make Camels a part of your dining. The enjoyment of smoking Camels is followed by increased flow of the digestive fluids . . . alkaline digestive fluids . . . so necessary to good nutrition.

Hal Totten!

Kellogg takes pleasure in sponsoring this new and interesting picture of the story behind the game. As the largest manufacturers of delicious ready-to-eat cereals, Kellogg's has always been interested in clean, competitive sports, and in the men who have raised them to such high level.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO THE LADIES

Maybe you've noticed that grain prices have gone up during the last few weeks.

But the price of Kellogg's Corn Flakes today is still the lowest in history. Think of that—and just compare what Kellogg gives you!

No other ready-to-eat cereal combines all these features. So buy plenty of Kellogg's Corn Flakes now while the price is still low. And to be sure—don't say just "corn flakes"—say Kellogg's!

NUDISTS' RIGID SOCIAL DIVISIONS AND CREED TOLD

Shock of Seeing Camp Frolics Recounted.

going swimming in a bathing suit in spite of the nudist maxim that "after 10 or 15 minutes with us in the outdoors the newcomer feels conspicuous in clothes and usually sheds them."

The sudden, chilling impact of social nudity came when the car was admitted through the gate adjoining the clubhouse, traveled several hundred yards over low hummocs, dropped down into a vista of woodland glades, and rounded a curve.

Close Quarters—and Dismay.

There frolicked 18 people of all ages and contours on a volley ball court. They stopped their game to shout greetings to the professor's family and, to the writer's dismay, some of them flocked up to the car. None of them wore anything except the patches of shadows cast by the leaves of the tall oaks and elms.

Desperately the visitor's embarrassed gaze was trained elsewhere, only to see two plump women standing in front of a neat cottage with their hands propped on hips as brown as the rest of their bodies. A dog, and a little girl wearing a blue bathing cap scampered by. An unclad middle aged man of bulging figure sat smoking a pipe in a canvas chair alongside the women and turned his head stiffly.

"He has arthritis," some one explained, with a chuckle. "He's the only invalid here, and they told him the sun was good for him. He sits out there in it all day, but when he's back home he turns around and does everything that isn't good for his arthritis, they say."

Leisurely Life in Camp.

The man was a retired Indiana manufacturer of a well known food. An expensive car was parked near his cottage, one of six scattered over the hills sloping down to a spring fed lake, well equipped with piers, diving boards, and rafts. Other cottages were under construction and 20 large tents were scattered over the grounds, in each of which was a family going about the leisurely pursuits of camp life, including preparing food, eating it, and tidying up—all with every body pore in contact with the breezes.

A woman with a youthful figure, well kept complexion, and carefully waved gray hair, wearing only a red flower tucked over her ear, knelt at the lake's edge and daintily scoured a pan with sand. Her husband sat in front of their tent reading a newspaper.

An Unesthetic Aspect.

An overly plump woman skipped up the hill.

"There goes one of the unesthetic aspects," said the professor. "The Greek figure does not prevail in nudist clubs, but when I look at that woman I consider the fact that she has borne four children and has a tendency to be fat. Now, if she had known she was to be a nudist perhaps she would have guarded her figure more carefully."

It was quickly discovered that an "I seen" is considered more offensive in the Lake o' the Woods club than a rotund abdomen. Members are admitted after a visit to their homes and with an eye to cultural background.

"We don't want morons in here to look at our wives and daughters," declared a club officer. "We want social congeniality, just as any group on a certain social level may band together and build a country club or vacation resort where they can relax with their families."

Nudist camps where all classes mingle, the white collar man and the day laborer, are called "mixed." This mixing prevails at camps where the nudists pay a fee for admission, seldom at the clubs where the ownership of the grounds is vested in the members themselves.

Inconsistencies in the nudist movement lie largely in the wide assortment of people it embraces, according to viewpoints expressed by leaders of different groups.

A young man who is engaged to the daughter of a Chicago school teacher discussed this with his prospective mother-in-law as they sat nude in the shade of a tree. [The daughter had gone swimming with her father.]

No 'Cultism' for Them.

"Some of these camps, one or two of them near Chicago, are what can be called only 'nut' camps," said the young man. "The people who run them and come to them are on the lunatic fringe, and almost any moron can manage to get in. There are other nudists who rave and preach nudism as though it were a cult. They forget that there really isn't anything to nudism and that it should be considered merely as a pleasant adjunct to physical comfort and health."

The conservative nudists say: "We have a right to go out and find a secluded place where we bother no one and run around without clothes when it is comfortable to go without them, but we don't believe in preaching nudism."

The Propaganda Is There.

At the same time the conservatives are affiliated with the international conference, which, through its magazine, the Nudist, carries on organized propaganda with pictures and testimonials similar to "How I Learned to Be a Nudist in Ten Minutes." They also admit inducing friends to join them, as a business man gets his partner to take up golf.

Although the conservatives assert they don't try to make converts, they do. And the reason, as one leader explained, is that "in union and in numbers there is strength." Another is that the nudist is always on the defensive socially and that if he can get more people to think as he does he stands a better chance of being considered normal.

"But it is silly for a nudist to tell the world 'come on out, there is nothing like it,'" avowed a young writer for leading national weeklies as he sprawled on a freshly painted raft in the lake. "Sunshine may be good for rickets, but it will not cure subnormalcy which afflicts some of its devotees."

Like Any Summer Resort.

The routine of camp life moved throughout the day in about the same manner as that of any summer resort. There was a bridge game on one porch. A man and his wife strolled through the clearing, each carrying one of their two small bare children and there was a typical family argument in progress in spite of nudity.

"Just try to remember where you left those automobile keys, will you," said the young husband petulantly.

From a tent came a yelp of a man who spilled hot coffee in his lap, so to speak. A group of young men and women, some there with their families, and others as friends of club members, lounged in deck chairs around a table under a big oak and played "knock knock."

It's All Very Informal.

In the evening there was swimming, more bridge, and similar camp activities. Club members drifted informally in and out of each other's cabins and if clothed they undressed where they stood when they decided to go swimming.

A young contributor to the pulp magazines from Oak Park was asked about an article he had published in which he urged nudism as a panacea for all ills and a world saving brotherhood of men.

"Oh, I wrote that when I was younger," he said. "I was bubbling over at the ears when I first joined. I don't really believe it.

"I went to a nudist club the first time out of curiosity. I expected a thrill, but I got a sense of freedom and honesty and a different regard for women. When you see mothers and their daughters swarming around en masse without any clothing, it's different from a girl line of professional sex appeal in a burlesque. Nobody can tell me that because we don't wear clothes we are more likely to get into misconduct. If anything we men lean over backward in our deportment.

Elderly Bachelors Unpopular.

Such testimonials were obtained much more easily than instances of evils. One man, a Harvard professor, was dropped from the club because he sometimes went into town and came back unpleasantly drunk. A club officer stated that it is hard for an elderly bachelor to get in.

The business of the conference, which had been announced as a one day meeting, was continued yesterday because the delegates became bored and adjourned for a swim on Saturday.

Elton R. Shaw, president of the Shaw Publishing company of Lansing, Mich., and president of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the conference, succeeding Russell B. Abbott of Cleveland, O. He announced that Michigan nudists are confident of repeal of the "obscenity" law which now thwarts the open practice of nudism in that state.

M. PIRARD PUTS SOME NEW DUDS ON HIS MODELS

Redressing of Statues Is Difficult Task.

These are busy days for John M. Pirard, caretaker of sculpture at the Art Institute of Chicago for the last 36 years.

For now, with the approach of fall and the reopening of the institute's art school, M. Pirard, descendant of a long line of Brussels master dyers, is confronted with the delicate task of re-dressing some 150 plaster cast models used in the classrooms.

Re-dressing Intricate Task.

Re-dressing a cast model is an intricate matter, says M. Pirard, a slightly plump little man with fringes of graying hair. Not only must the plaster casts be reclothed in two coats of white—with a secret process invented by Pirard—but they must be reassembled, for many are dismembered before storing.

To the layman a special perception would appear necessary in order not to fasten the mighty sinews of Hercules onto the stump arm of Venus de Milo, the foot of Niobe onto the ankle of Caesar Augustus, or the thighs of the discus thrower to the torso of Michelangelo's Apollo—but to M. Pirard it is—nothing!

Thousand Cast Models.

"Why, we must have a thousand cast models here," he said, "and I've never mixed up any. I just naturally know which hand belongs to which one. I've been working with them ever since 1900, so I ought to know."

M. Pirard came to Chicago in 1893, when, as a 12 year old sculptor's apprentice, he accompanied the elaborate collection of sculpture sent by France to the World's Fair of that year. At the close of the fair the French government offered to donate the collection to the Art Institute if a hall were built for it. So in 1901, with funds given by Timothy W. Blackstone, the hall was started and M. Pirard and the sculpture—models of the north transept of Bordeaux cathedral and others—moved in.

Dave Barry's Condition Is Reported Improved

Dave Barry, former fight referee, who has been seriously ill with a gall bladder ailment at the Columbus Memorial hospital since Aug. 13, was reported slightly improved yesterday. His recovery is only a matter of a few days, physicians reported. His parents, Philip and Rosetta Barry, 523 Melrose street, appeared before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court Saturday and filed a $10,000 real estate bond in his behalf pending a retrial on a charge of conspiracy to embezzle $54,473 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank. A conviction at the first trial was reversed by the Supreme court.

"America is a tune. It must be sung together"

Two words hold an outstanding place in popular discussions of the times in which we live.

Much has been said about labor and much about capital.

But all too little has been heard about management, which puts overalls on both capital and labor.

Both would suffer if those individuals who have the peculiar gift of enterprise did not create opportunity for both to work.

Yet the manager seems to be the forgotten man today.

How many of these managers do we have in America? 606,000 men direct the nation's industries, 1,700,000 market the things the factories make. As population goes, this group is small, about 2% of all of us. But it is the nation's most important natural resource.

Why so important? What does a manager do? He discovers new things to build by anticipating the needs and desires of the rest of us. He knows how to make old things attractive. He persuades savings to join him in the venture. He manages to put teamwork into production, selling, financing, deliveries. He is the leader of the band.

Where do these managers come from? They are recruits from every walk of life, men who have won their way to the top by proving they have a talent for finding productive work for others to do. They know how to run a business on a basis which brings in enough to meet payrolls and pay the bills.

The most precious thing in America is the spirit of enterprise which management supplies — for the job these men who head up business are doing has given this country the highest standard of living in the world.

WHERE DO BUSINESS LEADERS COME FROM?

Of 140 railroad presidents more than 100 came up from the ranks; half the bank presidents of New York City came from the Middle West and the farms; most utility operators came up from a linesman job.

And so it is in all industries.

Among the 176 executives responsible for the management of 95% of the steel industry's present capacity, nine out of ten rose from the ranks as follows:

84 began as laborers
26 began as clerks or stenographers
25 began as engineers or chemists
19 began as messengers

The management of America's business today is in the hands of men who came from every walk of life—men who exercised the American right of every man to progress as far as his ability will take him. This American tradition must be preserved for the citizens of tomorrow.

Isn't it time to quit talking about this land of ours as if it were split into hard and fast "classes," and to think of it for what it really is, the greatest spot on the globe, if not the only one, where classes do not really exist, but all, under the direction of management, pull together for the greatest good of the greatest number.

ON GUARD, AMERICA.

Gov. Landon has started his campaign. He is seeing the country and being seen by the voters on the rear platform o. a train making frequent stops. Greetings are exchanged and he makes brief talks.

This is not a novel procedure, even in the wide sweep of a presidential campaign, but it is a very significant procedure, expressive of the profound democracy of this nation, and there is none which could be so congenial to the straightforward and sincerely and deeply American character of Gov. Landon. If he could rely upon it alone he would undoubtedly do so, for he has no liking for the Klieg lights and emotional rhetoric of political oratory. What he would like is plain enough. It would be to sit down on the porch or in the sitting room of every man and woman and tell them honestly, without show or evasion, what is in his heart and mind for the common welfare.

But since this is not possible and since even the brief talks from the rear platform cannot reach all who have a right to hear him, there must be speeches at great gatherings and more comprehensive discussions of the issues of the campaign. Yet the first of these formal utterances since the speech of acceptance, delivered yesterday afternoon at Gov. Landon's birthplace in Pennsylvania, did not leave off the qualities of the man. It was a straight talk to his people, without high flown rhetoric or any appeal to prejudice or passion. It was as clear, as sane, as honest as the man, this typical American, and it struck home to the great issue now confronting the people of this democracy. When he closed his speech with a pledge we believe every American who heard him on the grounds at West Middlesex and in the great audience of the radio felt that it is a pledge that will be kept if he is given by American citizens in November the opportunity to keep it. He said:

"I pledge myself, so far as it lies within my power, to protect for America our heritage of freedom and opportunity. We want every boy and girl to have a better chance in life than we had. We want a government in Washington that will safeguard for the younger generation the opportunity to develop, each in his own way, the American qualities of self-reliance, of honesty, and of generosity.

"We must remain a nation of free citizens, each choosing for himself, each holding fast not only to opportunity but to the truths he has inherited. This—an America of free and independent citizens, recognizing our mutual obligations one to the other—is the America we should strive to leave for our children."

We are confident the American people are ready for that fulfilment. They are preparing for the renewal of government deriving its authority from them. In the world today it is a tremendous fact, this strong reassertion of the basic conceptions of civilization as guaranty of security, sanity, friendliness, and order.

Elsewhere there is rage, deadly fear, formidable intrigue, plotting and oppression; there are vain dictators of incalculable ambitions, the growing threats of general war and peoples under terror. The orderly British, not knowing what to expect from the turbulence all about them, are arming in desperate haste, less confident of the future than they have been for years, and rightly alarmed.

Reason seems to have departed from lands where culture was greatest. Passion and hate appear about to engulf a large part of the world in a final disaster. Foreign news almost without relief is news of despair. In July, 1914, many people, having seen the steady advance of civilized order, were too skeptical. They could not believe there were governments which would fail to conciliate their differences and bring disorderly elements to terms.

There is no skepticism now, which in itself is evidence of the decline of the hopes of men. The worst is within daily expectation. Progress in the art of government responsible to free people has been stopped in its tracks by varieties of dictatorships alike in one respect. They are equally vain, cruel, theatrical, and ambitious.

The few countries in which people are still in position to save themselves by keeping their heads and their footing may be called upon to nurse civilization through its worst modern disaster. With the best of luck they may have a hard job.

America has much to think about. So long as our system is kept intact, preserved in all its functions as it was planned, the orderly renewal of government derived from the people and responsible to them may be preserved for the uses of the future.

The American republic was designed to weather storms and survive shocks. If Americans are faithful to the design, if they stand the test, their country will.

PENAL REFORM AND ITS WORST ENEMY.

An interesting and we trust profitable conference will be held in Chicago next month, the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the American Prison association, at which among other problems of criminality those of probation and parole will be discussed under the auspices of the National Probation association.

The labors of these bodies have been long and earnest and in circumstances far from encouraging. In recent years the probation and parole system has lost a good deal of its earlier glamor and its operations have been sharply challenged with only too much reason. It is in real danger from the failures in its administration which shock the common conscience and disparage its value as an agency of justice and efficient treatment of the criminal. The altruistic individuals and associations interested in its workings, meanwhile, have been so preoccupied with its theories and details of operation, they have been so preoccupied with the condition of the criminal, that they have ignored the fundamentals of their system and their main problem. They have failed to see that underlying the whole problem of competent restraint and reduction of criminality is the alliance of crime and corrupt politics.

The very first and chief thing these organizations ought to do is to face this basic evil and to denounce it. It is defeating all their cherished reforms and it will continue to render their activities irrelevant and futile.

This is so flagrant an aspect of bad prison management and bad operation of probation and parole, demonstrated day by day by the most shocking failures of public defense, that its disregard by any civic agency which assumes to deal with criminal control or prevention is no longer excusable. The coöperation of criminals and corrupt politicians is the fundamental problem of our defense against crime, not model prisons, psychiatric bureaus, more jailkeepers and probation officers, more laws or more appropriations. All of these or any of them may be desirable. Many doubtless are. But all the benefits which may be reasonably expected of them are and will be drastically reduced and often canceled by the workings of the vast alliance.

We are not suggesting that the usual labors of the societies should cease until the alliance of crime and corrupt politics is destroyed. That will be a long war. But it must be waged, and the prison association, the probation association, and every society interested in the prevention or control of crime should be in the forefront of the fight.

Competent and clean personnel is essential to the success of every administration and every betterment. It is notoriously lacking, but it can be had. It is central to the whole treatment of criminality. It may be more pleasing to the emotions and less irksom to deal with the so-called humanitarian and scientific aspects of the crime problem, but an attack upon crime that fails to recognize in the alliance of crime and corrupt politics the chief factor is fatally blind.

THE AGED AND AILING WHITE HOPES.

Joe Louis is back and the heavyweight champion, Braddock, is temporarily out. Mr. Braddock has not yet been called aged, but he has something wrong with a hand. It may be rheumatism. A champion with the rheumatism might as well have the gout. According to his manager there is no chance he can fight the German contender, Schmeling, in September. The medicos are working on him.

It's not the best of luck for Schmeling, who had his opportunity just around the corner. If Braddock becomes an invalid for the rest of the year Schmeling may be asked to repeat, by popular request, on Louis' jaw if he can. The experts who recovered their composure at the Louis-Sharkey fight are becoming quite certain that Joe will never have his neck so far out again. They declined to count the age ridden old hulk Sharkey out in advance. Their experience in calling the round for Schmeling's twilight had been too recent.

Schmeling would make a lot of money in a proveup with Lewis, but that would not be so good as having a chance at the championship first. Time is working against most of the white hopes.

They may have to be allowed the use of crutches.

URBS IN HORTO.

A reader has called attention to the great improvement this year in the appearance of the little park around the Michigan avenue water tower. Somebody planned a tasteful arrangement of shrubs and flowers, and somebody has carried it out and incidentally has made a very fine lawn. Whoever they are they deserve the thanks of the community. They have given a demonstration of the fact that a thousand other small plots around the city which are now unsightly can be made attractive.

Editorial of the Day

MISSOURI, IOWA.

[Des Moines Tribune.]

Missouri has 114 counties, not counting the city of St. Louis, which is a separate municipal entity maintaining certain county offices and which might be regarded as the one hundred and fifteenth county.

Collection of the state's share of the revenues from some 30 of these counties now costs Missouri more than the state actually receives from these same counties.

Gov. Park cited this fact in an address at Jefferson City recently in support of his personal opinion that Missouri counties should be consolidated into a smaller number, both for reasons of economy and for reasons of governmental efficiency.

One hundred and fourteen county jails for Missouri—and Missouri jails are notoriously not of high standard—are manifestly an anachronism, and a costly one, in these days of rapid transportation and communication.

One Iowa jail has been repeatedly kicked to pieces by escaping prisoners who might have been securely and more cheaply restrained in a better institution supported by several adjoining counties, even though several miles away from that present county's seat of government.

Missouri could do with fewer and better jails, fewer and better county facilities of all kinds, fewer and better counties. So could Iowa.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

Among the other interesting characters we recall is the gentleman who appeared at an interstate commerce commission hearing with a long and learned plea to prove that a peanut was a pea and not a nut. His argument was not, from his point of view, frivolous; it costs a great deal more to ship nuts than to ship peas in carload lots. If peanuts were peas, then they were cattle feed and cheap; if nuts, then an expensive luxury. 'Tis sad to relate that the gentleman got nowhere with his pleading. The examiner, who had somehow maintained a straight face, announced that goobers were still nuts to him, and pounded with his gavel when there was a roar of laughter.

From which we pluck those blooms of rare bouquet
That fill our Wake-Line each recurring day—
And keep Ye Ed from falling on his face.

Wake-Line: Prophetstown is the only town of its name in the U. S. It is rather sleepy here in summer. Our mayor received a letter threatening to blow up the town unless certain moneys were paid, but so far nothing has happened much—to everybody's chagrin except the insurance agents, who made a killing. Yesterday we had a prairie fire which crept toward the town, but the boys left their pinochle and beer and put it out. B. R. J.

REMINISCENCES.

In the eighties tall, breakneck bicycles were all that were to be seen. We rode in hacks, omnibuses, and street cars drawn by strenuous mules or broncos. There were no automobiles, so out of town visitors could not descend on you as unexpectedly as now. Type was set by hand and printers frequently got lead poisoning. Ready-made clothes for women were not. They either had to hire a dressmaker or make their own.

Men wore their hair parted on one side, except the dudes, who parted it in the middle. Some young boys pompadoured their hair; only "foreigners" wore it slicked back. Red haired girls sometimes dyed their hair yellow, but no woman ever dyed her hair red.

REMEMBRANCE.

I shall remember one small prayer you said
That made me face the future unafraid;
One little smile, one gesture of your head,
And lips upon my forehead lightly laid;
Though the gray gloom of melancholy days
The very current of my heart should freeze,
And all love's lights be hid in heavy haze,
Through the long hours I shall remember these.

I shall remember through the long, long night,
After the burden and the heat of day,
And bless you for the peacefulness and light
Your soft smile shed across my darksome way;
And like a mystic fragrance in the air
Will rise the silent solace of your prayer.

OUR DAILY BULLETIN shows Harvey T. [Help! Help!] Woodruff, who became ill shortly after he took over a merged Wake-Line, still bedridden, but much improved. That should make the Wakers rejoice. According to promise, we are giving the 'Way Back Wheners additional space today, and we still have in mind that Children's Day column. Let the boys and girls under 17 send in the material for it and we'll try to have it some time this week. Your country boy conductor is grateful for the help he's getting and still urging more.

THE HANDICAP OF RHEUMATISM.

DISEASE has cut short the careers of many well known literary lights and we may recall the long fight against tuberculosis waged by that buoyant soul, Robert Louis Stevenson. Rheumatism halted the pen of that greatest of all Scottish bards, Robert Burns. Although the acute manifestations of the disease had been overcome, nevertheless heart damage had occurred and endocarditis [inflammation of the lining of the heart] brought an end to his labors at the early age of 37.

There is scarcely a family that has not had some experience with rheumatic fever. Various estimates have been made as to its spread and reliable data would indicate that there are approximately 200,000 new, active cases in the United States each year.

Residence in the tropics has some compensations. While parasitic diseases abound, rheumatic fever is scarcely known. It is confined chiefly to the temperate zone and may be looked for with increasing frequency in years in which there has been but little rainfall with resulting dry soil. At times it appears in epidemic form and a fair percentage of those who suffer from tonsilitis or nose and throat infections become its prey.

The causative factor is probably a blood destroying streptococcus which spreads throughout the body from some focus of infection in the throat or nasal passages. In fact, over half of those afflicted will give a history of a preceding sore throat. It has been well said that every throat ailment is potentially a case of rheumatism. When it appears it is an indication either of neglect on the part of the patient or of an antecedent loss of resistance.

Acute attacks develop quickly. Within 24 hours there may be a high fever, rapid pulse, severe sweating, and inflammatory reactions about the joints. Both knees, both ankles, or both wrists may be affected at the same time, and if the disease is serious enough new joints are attacked in rapid succession. Pain is severe and there is generally considerable swelling with local reddening of the skin.

Why does the disease constitute a menace to health and why should it be avoided? After the acute period has passed certain complications may remain which are handicapping in character. Chief among these is the so-called rheumatic heart. This means that the lining of the heart [endocardium] has been damaged or that the covering membrane [pericardium] has become diseased, involving the heart muscle as well. After recovery, if the pulse rate rises on slight exertion, there is good reason to suspect that some injury has been sustained by the heart itself.

There is one rule of recovery that is absolute, namely, that the patient must remain in bed for at least two or three weeks after all signs of fever, swelling, and pain have disappeared. He can't help himself during the acute stage, as usually he is unable to move. But as strength begins to return the temptation is to do too much, and no little patience will be required to "stay put."

Nutrition must be maintained at a very high level and the victim guarded scrupulously against chilling of the body. Large amounts of fluid should be administered as an aid in the elimination of toxins.

Treat the patient as though he had gone through a very serious illness—one from which convalescence must be slow and gradual if it is to be permanent. Then and then only may attention be given to the original source of the infection. If tonsils, teeth, or sinuses are found to harbor pus they must receive consideration.

In some parts of the country rheumatic fever is an autumn disease, while in other areas it is more frequent in the spring. We must protect ourselves against a drop in resistance that may come with the chilly autumn nights.

RABIES.

O. S. writes: Won't you publish some real facts about rabies [hydrophobia]? So much has appeared in the newspapers that I am confused.

REPLY.

Rabies is a rapidly fatal infection that is spread from a diseased animal to a well animal or to man, usually through a wound produced by biting. It is a virus disease and the causative organisms are too tiny to be seen with the most powerful microscope. All animals are susceptible. It is more common in dogs, although it can be spread to cattle, sheep, goats, foxes, wolves, etc.

The disease may take weeks or even months to develop, that is, before symptoms appear. The shortest period is approximately fourteen days. In bites about the face the symptoms come on more quickly. Bitten dogs will exhibit the malady in from three to six weeks. A stricken animal licking the hand of its master may inoculate the virus even though there is no visible wound. Bites and scratches should be treated with nitric acid. They should be left open and every particle of broken tissue touched with the acid. The more prompt the cauterization after the bite the safer.

The Pasteur treatment consists of producing an immunity by the injection of a virus which has been rendered weak by drying. Results of treatment are very satisfactory provided it is begun soon after the wound has been inflicted.

Dogs suspected of having the disease should not be killed; they should be confined and observed carefully by a competent veterinarian who will recognize symptoms of the disease in the animal. The heads of suspected dogs that have been killed should be delivered to a public health laboratory for examination and diagnosis. It is generally the stray dog or the one allowed to run loose that spreads the disease.

CROSSED EYES.

S. K. L. writes: What causes squint or crossed eyes in a child?

REPLY.

Squint is caused by the inability of the muscles of the eyes to coördinate properly. This means that one set is exerting a stronger pull. Sometimes balance can be restored by proper exercises, using strong lenses. If nerve damage exists the condition is more difficult to remedy. Most babies will exhibit an occasional squint but only in a few will it remain permanently. A muscle operation for correction is curative in a large percentage of cases.

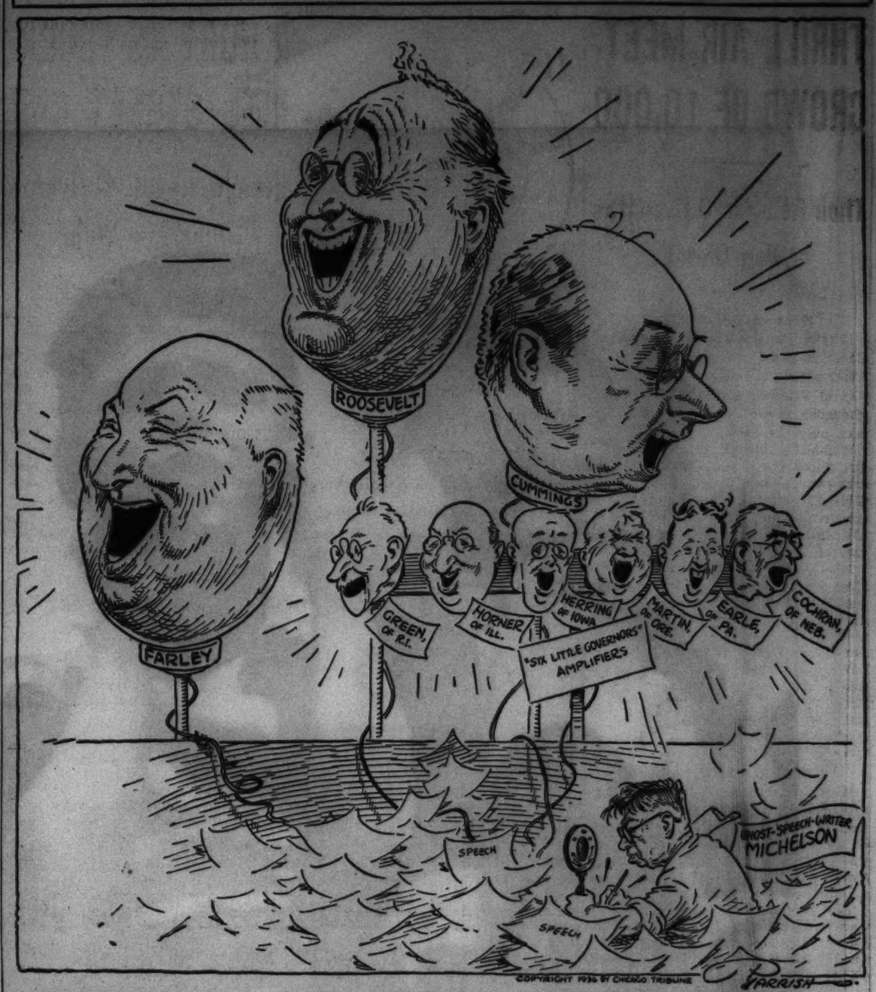
MINERAL MATTER.

F. W. W. writes: In regard to kidney trouble, what is the cause when a hard, claylike substance forms on the urinal?

REPLY.

When the urine is concentrated, mineral matter settles out as the fluid cools. A urine examination will disclose the nature of the deposit. Excess crystals—phosphates, urates, etc., bear a direct relation to diet.

THE PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM



DAY BY DAY IN THE MAKING OF THE CONSTITUTION

BY JAMES MADISON.

[Father of the Constitution and Fourth President of the United States.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 24, 1787.—In convention. Gov. Livingston of New Jersey from the committee of eleven to whom were referred the two remaining clauses of the fourth section and the fifth and sixth sections of the seventh article delivered in the following report: "Strike out so much of the fourth section as was referred to the committee and insert 'The migration or importation of such persons as the several states now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the legislature prior to the year 1800, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such migration or importation at a rate not exceeding the average of the duties laid on imports. The fifth section to remain as in the report. [No capitation tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the census hereinbefore directed to be taken.] The section six to be stricken out." [No navigation act shall be passed without the assent of two-thirds of the members present in each house.]

His Title Shall Be His Excellency

Article X, section I [being taken up]. The executive power of the United States shall be vested in a single person. His style shall be "The President of the United States of America," and his title shall be "His Excellency." He shall hold his office during the term of seven years, but shall not be elected a second time. On the question for vesting the power in a single person it was agreed to without dissent. So also on the style and title. Mr. Carroll of Maryland moved to strike out "by the legislature" and insert "by the people." Mr. Wilson seconded him. [Defeated, 9 to 2.]

Mr. Gouverneur Morris of Pennsylvania opposed the election of the President by the legislature. He dwelt on the danger of rendering the executive uninterested in maintaining the rights of his station as leading to legislative tyranny. If the legislature have the executive dependent on them they can perpetuate and support their usurpations by the influence of tax gatherers and other officers, by fleets, armies, etc. Cabal and corruption are attached to that mode of election: so also is ineligibility a second time. Hence the executive is interested in courting popularity in the legislature by sacrificing his executive rights and then he can go into that body after the expiration of his executive office and enjoy there the fruits of his policy. To guard against all these evils he moved that the President "shall be chosen by electors to be chosen by the people of the several states." Mr. Carroll of Maryland seconded him and on the question it passed in the negative. LABOR

Q.—Is it true that 5 per cent of the people own 90 per cent of the wealth?

A.—No. The New York Chamber of Commerce estimates that 5 per cent of the nation's income earners receive 20 per cent of the total, and 95 per cent of the income earners receive 80 per cent of the total.

THE TREND TOWARD VIOLENCE.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 21.—When democracy caved in and communism set in there was plenty of murder and terror in Russia. When Mussolini took hold in Italy much blood was spilled. The rise of Hitler and his Nazis in Germany wasn't lily clean, either, with wholesale slaughter right and left. Now in Spain all records are being broken; everything goes.

Americans who are under the impression that we are safe from murder, terror, and atrocity are badly mistaken. We are no further advanced than at least two of the countries mentioned. The only thing that will prevent a repetition of what is happening in Europe—France will be next—is for Americans to use their ballots correctly in November. The Roosevelt mob is following the same course that former and present leaders in Europe followed. Democracy is slowly being eased out. Fascism is being introduced under the form of benevolent paternalism.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Can't anything be done to accelerate the snail's pace at which the old age pension plan is being carried on? For instance, an application was made at the Union Park branch, located at 25 South Seeley avenue, March 24, 1936. Acknowledgment was made in April that the application was received and that the investigators had reached over the 10,000 number. My particular number was in the 25,000s, but I was told when I called up the office that the investigators were still in the 15,000 numbers. Five months to investigate 5,000 applications! Where is the boast of the Cook County Welfare bureau that they were investigating at the rate of 800 applications per day? At the rate they are dilly-dallying all the old people will have died off before their applications are reached. What the old people and their friends are looking for is a square deal; they have lost faith in the New Deal and Nov. 4 will tell the tale. H. W.

THE CAR WATCHING RACKET.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—I wonder what our chief of police, Commissioner Allman, or Mayor Kelly would do if, after attending the Stadium or either of our major league ball parks they found the air let out of their tires or cars smashed? Would they continue to donate to our peerless, self-appointed car watchers, or would they actually awaken our lethargic and apparently nonexistent police force? In plain words, I'd like to see either of said incidents happen to one or more of our highly touted public servants and then watch the reactions. This is the third time I've written in on this racket, so I hope THE TRIBUNE has the guts to publish this letter. You published the other two. EDWARD KELLER.

NEW VERSION.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Thank God for Roosevelt. He kept himself out of war. ABE FROM APREMONT.

GRATITUDE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—On Aug. 16 I participated in the parade of the Eagles' convention, and while in the procession at Wacker drive and Michigan boulevard I collapsed, owing to the extreme hot weather. Police Officer John Frey and Stanley Holien came to my immediate assistance and picked me up. Officer Frey succeeded in inducing some kind-hearted motorist to transport me to Adams and Michigan, where I resumed my line of march, and I wish to express my sincere gratitude to the officer and the motorist for their courtesy and thoughtfulness. OSCAR W. SMITH.

WHAT KILLED THE PEACH TREES?

Neoga, Ill., Aug. 12.—Your statement about peach trees being barren of leaves because of drouth is incorrect. It was the zero and below weather of last winter that killed trees, and the owners of said trees haven't cut them for fuel as yet. Didn't the photo man see that the leaves were on other trees in that neighborhood? R. C. YOUNG.

WARNING.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The Anti-Horsethief Association of America should be notified that the New Dealers claim that Landon could do nothing because the senate and house will have a Democratic majority. GEORGE R. WALKER

PARK POLICE LIST.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Please tell me when the next group of park police are going to be called and about how many will be called at that time? E. W.

Up to the present time fifty-four [54] men have been called from the eligible list of patrolmen, which list was posted April 28, 1936.

Requisitions for the filling of vacancies will be filled by certifying persons from the eligible list in the exact order of their standing on the list. There is no order on file for additional men to be added to the police force.

Persons whose names appear on the eligible list are cautioned to be sure to notify the civil service office in writing of any change in address. S. D. FOREST, Superintendent of Employment and Secretary, Civil Service Board, Chicago Park District.

BROKEN FIRE HYDRANT.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder where I could get results regarding a broken fire hydrant which has been running more than three weeks. Complaints were made several times but no results were obtained. Children are playing all day around it, splashing windows and people passing by and the tenants in my building are complaining. We tried to shut it off but some parts are missing and there is no way to close the hydrant. A. L.

Please be advised that the water pipe extension division of the bureau of engineering made the necessary repairs to fire hydrant at the above location to put it in good, operative condition. O. E. HEWITT, Commissioner of Public Works.

15 GIRL FLYERS THRILL AIR MEET CROWD OF 10,000

Their Rod-Air-O Even Has a Fan Dance.

Fifteen young women flyers, the oldest 26 years old, gave a crowd of 10,000 persons something new in the way of aviation spectacles yesterday afternoon at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, near Glenview.

Without a mishap of any kind, the girl pilots raced and stunted at the first annual Rod-Air-O of the Chicago Girls' Flying club. All the performers are members of the Ninety-Niners, a national group of women flyers organized by Amelia Earhart Putnam.

Miss Jane Ray, 26 years old, 1015 Rush street, chairman of the event, was the Sally Rand of the clouds. At the end of a comic five mile relay race during which the contestants doffed part of their clothing, Miss Ray stepped from her plane wearing tights and waving two fans. Dropping the fans, she posed as the modern Venus. Miss Helen Colton, 24 years old, 1524 Hollywood avenue, was the winner of the relay race.

Wins Horner Trophy.

Miss Ray won a silver trophy presented by Gov. Horner for the Illinois woman who has contributed the most to aviation this year. Miss Ray is the only woman in the country to hold a commission as aeronautical inspector, a state position.

The two speed events of the day were cross-country flights. The first one, from Joliet to the airport, was won by Miss Alice Ademec, 23 years old, 2119 South 57th court, Cicero, in 32 minutes and 30 seconds, in a Rearwin monoplane. Miss Margé McCormick, 24 years old, 1015 Rush street, won the other, a round trip flight to Naperville, in 39 minutes and 5 seconds, flying a Davis highwing monoplane.

Delayed Jump Thrills Crowd.

Stella Kinder, 23 years old, 4128 Clarendon avenue, brought gasps from the crowd in a delayed parachute jump from 5,000 feet. She opened her 'chute at 3,000 feet and then floated down onto the field. It was Miss Kinder's 34th jump. She has been parachute jumping since she was 15 years old.

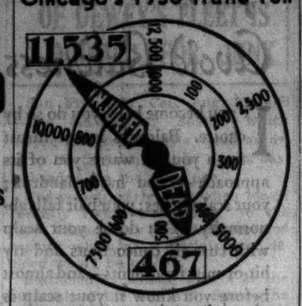
In a Rearwin cabin plane, Miss Eleanor A. Domac, 21 years old, 1254 North Dearborn street, won the stunting contest by her precision and efficiency. Miss Ruth Haupt, 2104 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, won the bomb dropping contest and also the spot landing contest.

Plan 4 Hour Air Line from Ottawa to Washington City

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A four hour airplane service between Ottawa and Washington, with a new Buffalo-Toronto line as part of the route, is to go into operation shortly, it was announced Saturday. The Buffalo-Toronto line is to start within two weeks, operated by the Canadian Colonial Airways, Ltd., which now control a Montreal-Toronto route. The new venture will take in Pittsburgh.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Traffic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

RICHMAN PLANS TO START OCEAN HOP TOMORROW

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Dick Merrill tonight said he and Harry Richman, the singer, would fly to Newfoundland tomorrow in Richman's monoplane as a preliminary test flight to a round trip hop Tuesday to London.

"We'll make a leisurely trip up the eastern coast to Newfoundland and back tomorrow," Merrill said.

Delay in conditioning the radio of the plane caused postponement of the Newfoundland flight, scheduled for today, the flyer said.

The flyers' original plan for the trip to Europe was to take off from Floyd Bennett field "after breakfast some morning," cross the ocean in time to dine in London, and get back to New York by breakfast time the next day.

FIREMAN KILLED, 2 HURT AS TRUCK HITS STREET CAR

Vehicle Jumps Curb and Runs Into Wall.

One fireman was killed and three others were injured seriously yesterday when the fire truck in which they were riding, responding to an alarm, collided with a street car at 25th street and Trumbull avenue. The rear end of the truck swerved into the front of the street car and then careened over the curb, striking the brick wall of a store at the northwest corner of the intersection and coming to a rest against a telephone pole.

The firemen who were hurled to the pavement were members of engine company 109. The man killed was Fred Witarowsky, 50 years old, 2657 Komensky avenue, a member of the force for twenty years. The injured, who were taken to St. Anthony's hospital, are Lieut. George Younger, 43 years old, 2731 South Springfield avenue, also a veteran of twenty years' service, who is not expected to live; Joseph Klecka, 29 years old, 2620 South Homan avenue, and John Buhrke, 43 years old, 2505 Turner avenue, driver of the truck.

Bound for Rubbish Fire.

The truck, with the four firemen aboard, was south bound on Trumbull avenue, answering an alarm which turned out to be a small rubbish fire at 28th street and Trumbull avenue. Raymond N. Fairbanks, 1931 South Harding avenue, motorman of the street car, was going west in 25th street. He told police he applied his brakes as the truck loomed up ahead of him, but could not bring the car to a stop in time to avoid the collision. He said he did not hear the siren of the fire engine.

Highway Crash Fatal.

Mrs. Irene Naslund, 23 years old, 553 Wellington avenue, was killed and her husband, Halzer Naslund, seriously injured yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and crashed into another car in highway 54 north of Lake Villa.

Charles Smith, 50 years old, 5700 West 64th street, a switchman for the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad company, was killed last night when the automobile in which he was riding with Jack Olson, 41 years old, 3645 West 63d place, collided on Archer avenue near 22d street with a car driven by John Prebeg, 4630 Du Bois boulevard, Brookfield.

Edward Smith, 30 years old, of the Legion hotel, 20 South Des Plaines street, a WPA watchman, was killed yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile at 111th street and South Central Park avenue. The car sped away. An hour later its ownership was traced to Charles Varkalis, 24 years old, 261 West 65th street.

Varkalis, when arrested, named as his companions Ray Jackson, 26 years old, 11017 South Whipple street, and George Elpert, 25 years old, 10858 South Central Park avenue. Jackson said he and the other two visited a number of taverns.

Elpert said he left Varkalis and Jackson before the accident. The three were held by the Morgan Park police.

An unidentified man about 35 years old died last night in the County hospital of injuries suffered Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Morris Werner, 44 years old, 1132 South Francisco avenue, in front of 1700 Roosevelt road.

Walter Murphy, 10 years old, 615 North May street, died last night in the County hospital of injuries suffered several hours earlier when he was struck by an automobile in front of 1352 West Ohio street. The driver of the car was Walter Fotocki, 18 years old, 1301 West Erie street.

Bartender Fatally Injured.

Norbert Schaefer, 23 years old, 3220 Franklin boulevard, a bartender, was injured fatally yesterday morning when his automobile crashed into a safety island at 4905 West Madison street. He died in the Frances E. Willard Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Inga Johnson, 69 years old, 2529 North 79th avenue, Elmwood Park, died yesterday in the Oak Park hospital from injuries incurred Saturday night when she was struck by an automobile at 78th court and Grand avenue in the suburb. GERMANY SEEKS CLOSE TIES WITH DANUBE NATIONS

Hitler Awaiting Visit of Austrian Leader.

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—(AP)—High pressure diplomatic, naval, and economic activities tonight kept the German reich feverishly busy with affairs of state. These four developments awaited full interpretation:

Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and minister of economics, packed his grips for a trip to Paris. He recently concluded an economic tour of southeastern Europe and in Berlin conferred with officials of the Bank of France.

Confer for Two Hours.

Admiral Horthy was closeted with Hitler for a full two hours, a fact which attracted marked attention in diplomatic quarters.

While German and Hungarian official sources maintained an absolute silence on the outcome of the meeting, its importance was enhanced when it became known Chancellor Schuschnigg soon would join Admiral Horthy in the Tyrol near Kufetein on the German-Austrian frontier with his own hunting party.

It was regarded as certain Schuschnigg would take the same automobile route via Berchtesgaden that Admiral Horthy took when he left Hungary on his announced hunting party that ended in the Hitler meeting.

Closer linking of the Danubian states with Germany was seen in diplomatic quarters as one possible result of the meetings.

Further credence was given this version when it was learned King Boris III. of Bulgaria, who met with Hitler several days ago after attending the Olympic games, will proceed to Italy for a visit after stopping for a few days with his father, the former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, at Coburg, Bavaria.

See Deal with Italy.

From one source at the German foreign office the theory was advanced that King Boris will attempt to persuade Italy to disinterest herself more and more in Danubian countries and let Germany penetrate these states economically in return for Germany's acquiescence to Premier Mussolini's reported desire to acquire Spain's Balearic Islands.

Amidst all these activities, an economic journal close to the economic ministry said Dr. Schacht planned to return in Paris the call of Emile Labeyrie, governor of the Bank of France who visited Schacht in Berlin Aug. 3. It was believed in informed quarters the Reichsbank president would attempt to bring Germany and France into a closer economic alignment.

Plan Anti-Bolshevist Front.

VIENNA, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Proposals for a conference leading to a tripartite anti-bolshevist front to include Germany, Austria and Hungary have been accepted by Reichsfuehrer Hitler, it was disclosed tonight.

The suggestion was brought to the fuehrer by Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian regent, who proposed a meeting between Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria, a Hungarian leader, and Hitler. The meeting will cover the entire mid-European situation and will be held this fall, possibly in September.

'ARRAIGN TAVERN OWNER AND SON TODAY FOR RIOT

Peter Bass, 55 years old, owner of a tavern at 2200 West Chicago avenue, and his son, Michael, 29 years old, who were arrested Saturday following a fight in the tavern, will be arraigned in the Racine avenue court today on charges of inciting a riot and resisting an officer. Another charge of obstructing the view of a tavern was placed against the elder Bass.

The riot began when Policemen Walter Thomas and John Minehan ordered the tavern owner to remove the obstruction from the window. Instead of complying with the order, the police reported that the saloonkeeper attempted to usher them out of the place. The son went to his father's assistance.

Within a few minutes the place was in an uproar, with patrons joining in the fracas, swinging chairs, beer bottles, and cuspidors. The Basses where subdued only when additional police arrived in response to a riot call.

GERMAN PASTORS DENOUNCE NAZI DICTATOR RULE

Churchman Arrested by Secret Police.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—A ringing denunciation of Nazi church authority, coupled with a charge that certain Nazi leaders are attempting to snuff out Christianity in Germany, was delivered from the pulpits of hundreds of German Evangelical churches today.

Pastors of the Confessional synod, which is opposed to the state church, protested against governmental interference as crippling the freedom of the Protestant church and demanded that such interference cease.

The clergymen had sent the protest, in which they outlined their grievances, to Reichsfuehrer Hitler early in July. The Fuehrer, however, failed to make a reply. Consequently, the pastors decided to make public the protest at church services this morning.

One Arrest Reported.

Government officials greeted the churchmen's denunciation with deep silence. Only one arrest was reported up until 10 o'clock. It was made in Bremen last night when secret police seized the chairman of the council of brethren of the Confessional church to prevent his reading the declaration of protest. The police also attempted to prevent the spread of the document through hand bills or church papers.

One of the most impressive ceremonies was held in the Church of Jesus Christ in Dahlem, a suburb of Berlin. The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, militant leader of the German Evangelical synod and a submarine commander in the world war, is pastor of the church.

Church Is Packed.

The edifice was packed and the congregation rose to its feet as the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller entered and walked down the aile. He was flanked by two clergymen. The pastor mounted the pulpit and preached a sermon, taking as his subject St. Paul, who, he said, "was in prison at the time he wrote."

"We are not fully prisoners," he continued, "but the activities of the church are restricted to within the walls of the church building."

After the sermon was completed the Rev. Mr. Niemoeller requested the congregation to remain seated to hear the Confessional synod's protest. Martin Luther's hymn, "All Power Is Given Unto Our Lord," was sung. The clergyman then read the declaration from the foot of the altar.

Miss Crum remarked on the 10 degrees above zero temperature in a broadcast from the plane to a crowd at an air show where the temperature was 105 degrees.

FIND FOUR CASTAWAYS MAROONED FOR WEEKS ON SOUTH SEA ISLAND

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Aug. 23.—(AP)—From the tiny Bellinghausen Isles comes a tale of rescued castaways which proves there still exist islands in the South Pacific where one can be marooned for weeks. The Bellinghausen group of atolls and reefs, west of the Society Islands, is uninhabited and is visited only at rare intervals by persons gathering fallen coconuts.

Passing there June 27, the lookout of the steamship Port Darwin observed a man signaling for aid. Heavy seas and the dangerous tangle of reefs prevented sending a boat ashore, but the Port Darwin wirelessed the British consul at Papeete. After several weeks the schooner Denys, dropping anchor off Bellinghausen, found four Tahitian young men. They told this story:

They had been employed on the coconut plantation at Mopiha, an atoll seventy miles away. They said they were beaten and starved and determined to escape to Raiatea, another island. They put to sea in a small boat, but lost their bearings. After five days their boat was cast on a reef of Bellinghausen and broken up by the heavy surf. A fifth man drowned. Until rescued they lived on coconuts and shell fish.

Drops Dead While Playing Softball at Police Picnic

Merritt Glatt, 28 years old, 933 Leamington avenue, an automobile mechanic, died of a heart attack yesterday while playing softball at a police picnic in Thatcher woods, a forest preserve at Chicago avenue and the Des Plaines river, River Forest, when he collapsed Glatt was playing on a team representing the Austin avenue station, to which his brother-in-law, Policeman John Alcock, is attached. An inhalator squad of the Oak Park fire department worked for half an hour in a vain attempt to revive him. More than 5,000 persons attended the picnic, which was sponsored by the Policemen's Social, Educational, and Athletic club.

COAL HEAT IS STEADY HEAT

It's hard to find a draft in a home where heat flows constantly from a coal or coke fire, with no sudden starts and stops to cause them.

WHY PUT UP WITH LAYER-CAKE HEAT?

Layer-cake heat . . . a great way to catch and keep a cold . . . is another winter worry you'll avoid with coal or coke because the fire goes down gradually and comes up gradually. The air doesn't form in layers with most of the heat over your head.

Balance Your Budget With Coal or Coke This Winter!

A lot of heat . . . constant and comfortable . . . costs very little more than not enough heat when you warm your home with coal or coke.

The price is low enough in the first place that no matter how warm you want your house or how cold the weather, you can afford the luxury of complete comfort all winter long.

And there's your health to think of. Cold floors, low temperatures and sudden drafts are dangerous especially with children in the house.

The steady flow of heat from coal or coke fills your rooms with warmth from floor to ceiling.

If it cost too much to keep your home warm last winter . . . or if you couldn't get enough heat at any price . . . call your coal merchant and let him start you out right this year. He knows how.

BOLIVIANS RENEW DIPLOMATIC TIES WITH PARAGUAY

Both Nations Push Big Socialistic Programs.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Two of the most sweeping socialistic movements South America ever has experienced were given new impetus tonight with reëstablishment of diplomatic relations between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Dictatorial régimes of those two Indian-American states gained added prestige with formal agreements signed at the Chaco peace conference, a move which terminated some five years of shattered relations during which Bolivia and Paraguay fought a three year battle in the Chaco jungles.

Post-war dictatorships of the former belligerents are trying to make over their countries on new Indian-American patterns, germinating from Latin American ideas and problems, and denying kinship with Nazism, Fascism and communism.

Feudal System Retained.

Each country since independence has retained much of the feudal system which was a heritage of Spanish colonial days. Most of the land is held by a few families of wealth.

Bolivia, its principal wealth mining, covers 502,000 squade miles, much of its territory and most of its population living on the lofty Andes plateau.

The area is roughly the equivalent of Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona combined, the population 3,000,000, composed of 500,000 whites, 1,000,000 of mixed blood, and 1,500,000 Indians. Many of the Indians speak only tribal tongues.

Paraguay, mostly lowland and subtropical, an agrarian land with few industries, has about 1,000,000 inhabitants in an area, including the eastern Chaco, approximately equivalent to Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee.

The climate is mild and the easy-going people are mostly of mixed white and Guarani Indian stock. Many of them speak only Guarani.

Paraguayans Great Fighters.

Twice they have shown themselves exceptional fighters—in 1865-'70, when Paraguay fought Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay in a war which killed 80 per cent of the Paraguay population, and again in the 1932-'35 war with Bolivia.

Such measures as obligatory work for everyone, minimum wage scales, and a projected system of corporative representation by unions of workers and employers, have developed in Bolivia under the règime of Col. David Toro, military dictator with a frankly socialistic program.

The doctrin of land for every peasant who will farm it—"the land is for he who works it"—has become the keynote of Paraguayan government under the rule of Col. Rafael Franco, whose professed ideal is "a natural democracy of peasants and workers," but no important change in the capitalistic system.

Each of the dictatorships—the Paraguayan dates from Feb. 19 and the Bolivian from May 17—profess to have for a long-term objective the elevation of living and cultural standards of the great mass of population.

Peasants Get Training.

Franco combined his Paraguayan program of land distribution, which eventually will include 4,400,000 acres of idle land, with a drive to aid peasants in using modern tools and growing more cotton for export wealth.

To assure political stability, he proclaimed the "state and revolution identical, supreme in agricultural, labor, and commercial questions"; banned independent political activities for a year, exiled several anti-government plotters, and kept deposed President Eusebio Ayala and his followers under close watch.

He set up a new ministry of agriculture, a new agricultural bank, a new public health service.

Fixes 53 Point Program.

In Bolivia, Col. Toro proclaimed a 53 point socialistic program, including a decree of compulsory labor for all able-bodied men. This was designed to step up Bolivian tin production and supply more foreign exchange for other projects. Returned war veterans had shown hesitancy to get back to work in the mines.

He also decreed wage increases to make up for decreased purchasing power of Bolivian money, announced projects for labor insurance and pension laws, plans for compulsory syndicalization of workers and employers, and declared for the gradual nationalization of transport.

OLD CRUISER BOSTON OF DEWEY'S FLEET IS DOOMED FOR JUNK

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The old cruiser Boston, which helped Admiral Dewey's squadron destroy the Spanish fleet in Manila bay, is headed for the junk pile.

The vessel nearly sank when towed recently from its mooring to the Mare Island navy yard for projected repairs, which navy officials later decided would be useless.

Stationed in Asiatic waters at the outbreak of the war with Spain, the Boston joined Dewey's fleet and, with the Raleigh and McCulloch, silenced a Spanish land barrage before destroying the enemy ships.

The Boston in 1903 was made flagship of the Pacific squadron. She cared for victims of San Francisco's earthquake and fire in 1906.

OFFICERS OF LEFT WING GROUP QUIT MEXICAN SENATE

Fear Whole Faction Will Walk Out Fades.

Balk Over Five Candidates.

At the same time they asked "indefinite leave of absence" from the senate, citing as their reason the "political agitation" caused by the left wing's refusal this week to seat five candidates of the National Revolutionary [government] party whom the party had declared election victors.

Denial of seats to the party's candidates led Thursday to the resignation of Emilio Portes Gil, as president of the party, and predictions two members of the cabinet, if not more, would be forced to resign.

It was reported last night the remaining 45 members of the left wing, which includes all but four of Mexico's 52 senators, might follow the lead of their officers in vacating their seats, but reliable information tonight was that President Cardenas had used his influence to avert that.

Left wing senators said the majority bloc at tomorrow's meeting probably would refuse to accept the resignations of the three officers. Neither is it likely, they said, that the bloc will grant the senators' request for a "leave of absence" from the senate.

Close to Showdown.

Congress is scheduled to reconvene Sept. 1, when Cardenas will deliver his annual message.

Political observers said they believe the senate developments brought closer a showdown between conservatives and radicals in President Cardenas' cabinet.

There were rumors the left wingers believed the president still sympathetic with Portes Gil and the conservative administration faction he supposedly headed, and were seeking to force the chief executive to show his hand.

If they won, it was said, Secretary of Agriculture Saturnino Cedillo and Secretary of the Treasury Eduardo Suarez, if not others, would have to hand over their portfolios.

SHOT AT TARGET PRACTICE.

U. S. ARMS RULE OPPOSED, SAYS ORDNANCE CHIEF

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—The war department is opposed to the nationalization of the country's munitions manufacturies on the ground that such a plan undoubtedly would fail in time of war, according to Maj. Gen. William H. Tschappat, chief of ordnance, in an article to be published Tuesday in Army Ordnance, the journal of the Army Ordnance association.

The article was written as if it had the full approval of the highest war department authorities, and assumes to give the war department's stand in unqualified terms.

"The war department is convinced that in the event of war, American industry must produce the major portion of the required munitions," Gen. Tschappat wrote. "Assuming this premise, it follows that so far as practicable industry should be prepared for its war mission."

RAIDERS BY AIR, LAND AND WATER SEIZE 70 STILLS

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Three federal agencies, attacking by air, land, and water, smashed at illicit distilling operations in western Florida during the week-end raids reminiscent of the prohibition era.

The raids, made by the alcohol tax unit, customs service, and coast guard, were reported to have netted 70 stills, 35 persons, and thousands of gallons of whisky and mash.

Authoritative sources said agents in airplanes spotted the isolated stills and by radio directed motorboat and automobile loads of raiding officers.

Three of the prisoners were listed as Tom Muldoon, Mrs. Flossie Muldoon, and Lizzie Kowski.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Sad Days for Sheep.

Aug. 23, 1936.

These are "sad days" for the lambs and ewes in the flock of about 500 sheep at the Tribune's Wheaton experimental farm. Last Monday was roundup day when all the sheep were divided into separate flocks in the general preparation for feeding and making plans for the coming year's breeding program. The sheep have been tallied and are now running in separate bunches.

All week the lonesome lambs have competed with the mother ewes in the annual bleating "festival." Hour after hour the lambs broadcast from a pen near the barn. Their bleats are repeatedly echoed by the ewes running in a nearby pasture.

One hundred and fifty of the best ewes were sorted out and will be kept for breeding purposes next year. The breeding flock is now made up of 84 yearlings, 28 two year olds, 30 three years olds, and eight four year olds. These ewes will be bred this fall. Later in the year 50 of these ewes may be sold, according to present plans.

There are 205 lambs saved from the 1936 crop. Twenty of the best ones may be kept and added to the breeding flock next year. The others will be fattened and sold this fall as soon as they are ready for market.

Plan to Market Another Flock.

In addition to the lambs the manager and flockmaster plan to market another flock made up chiefly of ewes sorted out of the breeding flock. Three in this flock are wethers and a dozen are small yearlings.

The lambs are late and are expected to make a fairly uniform flock when they are ready for market this fall. They were all born within a period of about 30 days, between April 15 and May 15.

The flockmaster has started feeding the lambs on oats, pea-sized linseed meal and alfalfa hay. During the last few days they have each been given about one-fourth pound of whole oats and a small amount of the oil meal. Both of these concentrates will be gradually increased. Within a short time the lambs will be given all the oats they will eat. They will be run in a pen where the racks are kept filled with alfalfa hay. If rains continue and blue grass pastures are revived, the lambs will be allowed to graze during the fattening period.

The flock of 145 head which is to be sold is also being fed whole oats, pea-sized linseed oil meal and alfalfa hay. They, too, will be allowed to run on grass if the pastures are revived sufficiently.

The breeding ewes are now running on bluegrass. They are allowed to graze in both woodland and open pastures. This gives them a chance to huddle under trees out of the sun on hot days.

Corn Outlook Better.

Recent rains have brightened the outlook for a corn crop at the Yorkville farm, but the manager still is of the opinion that only about 200 of the 460 acres planted there this year will make a crop of ears worth picking. Part of the remaining 260 acres will be put in silos, some of it will be fed green to cattle, and the rest cut and shocked to be used next winter for roughage.

The manager of the farm believes that the reason any of the corn shows promise of making a grain crop is due chiefly to the following factors: Use of good seed, well prepared seed beds, four thorough cultivations, plenty of subsoil moisture stored up from melting snows last winter, and heavy applications of manure which helped to hold moisture and supply plant food.

GEO. RASMUSSEN, NATIONAL TEA CO. FOUNDER, IS DEAD

George Rasmussen, 63 years old, founder and chairman of the board of directors of the National Tea company, died of an apoplectic stroke Saturday on his estate near Copenhagen, Denmark, according to word received here yesterday. Mr. Rasmussen, whose home in Chicago was at 3400 Lake Shore drive, had been touring Europe with his wife, Nana, since last May.

Mr. Rasmussen was born near Copenhagen, came to Chicago when he was 15 years old and in 1899 he opened his first grocery at 1328 Belmont avenue. The business expanded until at the time of his death it operates 1,225 stores in eight states.

Mr. Rasmussen was president of the company until early this year when he became chairman of the board. He was succeeded as president by Fred H. Massmann, 1123 Hull terrace, Evanston, who was informed by cablegram yesterday of Mr. Rasmussen's death.

In 1925 Mr. Rasmussen purchased two estates near Copenhagen. On one estate he established stables for trotting horses and brought horses from America, France, and England. On the second state he built a track where he bred and trained race horses.

Surviving Mr. Rasmussen, beside the widow, are two sons, R. V. Rasmussen, a vice president of the tea company, and George Jr., who is also associated with the concern.

The company's offices and stores will be closed from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon as a tribute to Mr. Rasmussen's memory. Funeral plans have not yet been announced.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Evil Day

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Several of radio's biggest shows are going on the road this fall. Thus the ranks of New York's offerings, already thinned by the hegira to Hollywood, will be still further depleted. "Show Boat," after four years of mythical travel on America's waterways, actually will move out of Radio City's studios on Sept. 3, when Lanny Ross takes his crew of seventy-five to Cleveland's huge public auditorium, where 14,000 persons are expected to view it.

The Wednesday evening "Come On, Let's Sing" show, led by Homer Rodeheaver, will occupy the same auditorium the evening before "Show Boat" arrives, and will move to Philadelphia's Convention hall the following week. The Mutual Wonder Show, which features community singing as well as a full length melodrama each Sunday evening, is to arrive in Chicago for a six week's stay beginning Sept. 6. Show will be aired from the Civic theater, with W-G-N as local outlet.

The Sunday evening CBS Community Sing, led by Wendell Hall and Milton Berle, will originate the major portion of each program from New York studios, but each week Billy Jones and Ernie Hare will rove to a new city, where they will lead large groups of singers who will alternate with those participating in the New York songfest.

Maj. Bowes and Kate Smith also are said to have under consideration plans which would make traveling circuses of their radio shows. The major's new show is to start on Thursday, Sept. 17, in a New York playhouse, and Kate Smith's from Hollywood the same evening. Both will be on CBS.

The Wonder Show is the newest of radio's increasing list of full hour productions. Last night it presented in addition to community singing and other musical features, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Each week an old-time thriller is offered amid a studio and musical setting of the gay '90s, or earlier. How popular it will become is difficult to guess today. It has started off bravely enough with ideas that are so old that they are actually novel. For the multitudes who must be fed up with swing music, Hollywood guest star parades, amateur hours, backstage serials and politics, the Wonder Show affords refreshing relief.

Mutual has landed an imposing new musical series to be titled "Morning Matinee." Starting Sept. 10 with W-G-N as outlet here with a State street store as the local sponsor, a big name orchestra and notable guest artists are to be heard from 8 to 8:45 each Thursday. Ben Bernie and his crew are likely to be the first attraction.

Richard Himber submits as the top "Knock Knock" he has heard to date this one: To the customary "Who's there," the reply is "Ohio lady." Then the poor fellow on the other end says: "Ohio lady who?" The guy who started it all declares: "I didn't know you yodel!"

Ted Weems, W-G-N bandleader, in a want ad in yesterday's TRIBUNE offered a liberal reward for recovery of an orchestra book lost at Lake Manitow, near Rochester, Ind., where he played an engagement a few weeks ago.

R. JOSEPH RICH DIES; OFFICIAL OF SIMONIZ CONCERN

Helped Start Company Here in 1912.

Reuben Joseph Rich, 52 years old, vice president and one of the founders of the Simoniz company, died of a heart ailment yesterday in the Passavant hospital. Mr. Rich, whose home was at 985 Sheridan road, Winnetka, entered the hospital a week ago for treatment.

R. JOSEPH RICH.

Mr. Rich was born in Detroit. He came to Chicago in 1912, and with his brother, Elmer, and their father, George P. Rich, they founded the Simoniz company, which manufactures a product for polishing automobiles, with offices at 2100 Indiana avenue. Elmer Rich is president of the company.

Reuben Rich was a member of the Chicago Athletic club and the Bob o' Link and Edgewater golf clubs. He is survived by the widow, Lillian, and by four children, Betty, Margaret and Jerome Rich, who live at the Winnetka address, and William Rich, who resides in London, England.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Mary Catholic church in Evanston. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

HOLD FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR J. H. CLARKSON

Funeral services for John H. Clarkson, former president of the Clarkson Glue company, will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the chapel at 720 Lake street, Oak Park. Burial will be in Arlington cemetery.

Mr. Clarkson died Friday at Dallas, Tex., while en route from his home at Winterhaven, Fla., to the west coast. He would have been 90 years old today.

Born on his father's plantation near Richmond, Va., Mr. Clarkson was attending the Virginia Military institue when the civil war broke out. He served through the duration of the war with the southern army.

He lived for many years in the south and then moved to St. Louis, Mo., before coming to Chicago about 35 years ago. At that time he founded the glue concern. In 1926 he retired from business and moved to Florida. His homes here had been in Oak Park and River Forest.

Surviving are five children, William T., John H. Jr., Clifford, Harrison, and Mrs. Louise C. Bryant.

LAKE WINDS WILL COOL CITY TODAY, SAYS FORECASTER

Air conditioned winds from Lake Michigan will stave off the western prairie heat and keep the city and shore line suburbs cool in normal summer temperatures today, Forecaster A. W. Cook said last night. The relief will also prevail through tomorrow, he said.

The lake breezes were felt yesterday only a few blocks inland as the temperature mounted to 89 degrees. As a result thousands of sufferers from the heat and humidity sought relief at beaches, forest preserve pools, parks, and playgrounds.

Showers yesterday, typical of conditions in surrounding states, amounted to .19 of an inch officially, but were much heavier in some of the suburbs. With a total precipitation so far of 3.08 inches, August is the first month this year to be above normal. Since the first of January, however, the total rainfall has amounted to only 12.92 inches, nearly 10 inches below normal.

CHIEF OF POLICE OF MILWAUKEE DIES SUDDENLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Police Chief Jacob G. Laubenheimer of Milwaukee died suddenly tonight at Eagle River. He was on vacation there. Word was received in a telephone call from Frank Prohaska, captain of detectives, who was with the chief.

Capt. Prohaska said death was due to heart disease. The chief became ill suddenly this morning and died at 7:30 p. m. He had visited Eagle River for many years. Capt. Prohaska had been his constant companion on those trips.

Chief Laubenheimer was the man who gave Milwaukee possibly the most frequently complimented police department in the United States.

The Wickersham commission, appointed by President Hoover in 1931, reported "Milwaukee has the most efficient and cleanest police department in this country." The report said further: "The Milwaukee police department stood head and shoulders above those of other cities, and was the only one deserving unqualified indorsement."

Chief Laubenheimer was 62 years old. He entered the department in 1893, when he was only 19.

Jane Dement Is Engaged to John Holloway

Mildred Garnett Betrothed to New Yorker.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO interesting romances were revealed over the week-end. At a tea and cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their home at 337 Abbotsford road, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. Dement announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to John Whitcomb Holloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Holloway of Glencoe and Tyringham, Mass.

Saturday at a tea at their country home at Lawsonia, on Green lake in Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus L. Garnett of Hinman avenue, Evanston, announced the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to Donald A. Metz of New York. Numerous Chicagoans were at the tea, including those who are summering in that part of Wisconsin, and others who went up to Green lake especially for the occasion.

Wins Distinction at N. U. for Beauty and Brains.

From 4 until 7 o'clock Miss Dement and Mr. Holloway received the best wishes and congratulations of their many friends along the north shore. Miss Dement was graduated in June from Northwestern university, where her career was distinguished equally by beauty and by brains, for she was awarded Phi Beta Kappa honors and was chosen one of the campus beauties. She is a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Mr. Holloway was graduated from Princeton in 1926 and afterwards he attended the Harvard School of Business administration. He is engaged in business in Chicago, where he and his bride-to-be will make their home after their marriage early next year.

On Wednesday Mrs. Dement and her daughter and Mr. Holloway are leaving by motor for a visit with his parents at Tamarack, the Holloways' summer home in the Berkshires. There will be quite a family reunion at Tamarack, for Larz A. Holloway, the Holloways' youngest son, has gone east to be with his parents, and the Edward T. Herndons [Ruth Holloway], who live in New York, also are at Tyringham. George A. Holloway and his bride of last fall, the former Betsey Paddock, also make their home in New York.

Miss Garnett a Fourth Generation Chicagoan.

Miss Garnett is a fourth generation Chicagoan, her great-grandfather having been Col. John L. Hancock and her grandfather the late Judge Gwynn Garnett. Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Henry James O'Brien of 1420 Lake Shore drive. Miss Garnett attended the Roycemore school in Evanston, Mount Vernon seminary in Washington, and the Château Brillaumont in Lausanne, Switzerland. Next year she will be a senior at Connecticut college. She made her debut at a New Year's day reception at the Garnett home in Evanston in 1935.

Mr. Metz is a son of Mrs. Herman A. Metz and the late Brig. Gen. Metz, controler of New York City from 1906 until 1910, and a member of congress from 1913 until 1915. Young Mr. Metz, a graduate of the Choate school, will finish at Yale next year. He is a member of the St. Elmo club and of Cannon and Castle Honor society, and captain of the Yale tennis team. He and his mother came on from New York to attend the party Saturday and so did one of Miss Garnett's good friends from the east, Miss Jeanette Shingle of Philadelphia.

Many Chicagoans Attend Announcement Tea.

Among the Chicagoans at the tea Saturday were the Stuart Logans, the Paul Skinners, who have a beautiful house on the shore of Green Lake, the Henry Popes, the E. M. Hadleys, the Brode Davises, the Charles Davises, Miss Claire Beneke, Mrs. Williamson Willett, and Frank McNair. Also Dr. Carl Davis, the Walter Garritt Smiths, whose house is one of the loveliest on the Lawsonia grounds; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Blessing, the Harry Swigerts, the John Wheelers, and the Misses Marianne Hoover, Gretchen Onderdonk, Nancy Lewis, and Margaret Potter.

'Mystic Mountain' Is Tale of 2 Alpine Villages.

"MYSTIC MOUNTAIN."

Presented at the World Playhouse.

THE CAST.

Firmin	Geymond Vital
Firmin's mother	J. Marie Laurent
Jeanne	N. Sibirskala
The Idiot	Lucas Gridoux
The Peddler	A. Boverid

BY ANNA NANGLE.

This film presents the characteristic bluntness of most imports and I found it highly engrossing.

"The Mystic Mountain" can be highly recommended. It's stark and heavy, beautiful and horrible, throbbingly earnest, sharply and deftly presented, haunted by a musical score that is minor and beautiful.

The cast is headed by two master craftsmen, Geymond Vital as the dour, passionate Firmin, and Lucas Gridoux as the Idiot, droolingly repulsive and pitiful. Every participant is completely natural, and their honest performances are not alloyed by too much good looks. I am told, and am quite ready to believe, that with a few exceptions, the performers are native peasants.

The story is laid in the Bernese Oberland of the Swiss Alps, in two communities nestled on opposite sides of the mountain, tightly clannish and entirely foreign to each other, one German, the other French. This setting and clever photography provide much dramatically beautiful scenery.

Cattle are grazing peacefully on both sides of the mountain one sunny morning when the wanton killing of a watchdog kindles the flame of hate and subsequent tragedy, which spreads over the countryside and mounts to tragic proportions.

Firmin, owner of the dog, in a sullen rage, kidnaps the pretty, blonde Elsi from the neighboring village and carries her home, where he keeps her a virtual prisoner, to the distress of his worn little mother and his affianced, Jeanne, and the scandalized murmuring of the villagers.

Returning sense urges Firmin to restore the girl to her home, but the winter snows prevent such a trip, and the ensuing lapse of time breeds love in his heart, tricky, disguised hatred in hers. Heartbroken, his mother leaves her home, refusing to tolerate his intended marriage to "the foreigner."

Cunningly the girl chooses as her tool the grunting, feverish-eyed idiot, plaything of the children, who dances frenziedly at the sight of fire. She promises to take him away with her if he does her bidding, offers to wed the love-crazed Firmin, and craftily plans to meet her kinsmen after she has had her vengeance. The film rushes to a highly dramatic and gruesome end.

The simplicity of the people, their unblinking black eyes, and rugged, lined faces, are striking. There are many vibrant scenes: The idiot jigging clumsily before the flame, jangling staccato music in the background; the Sunday celebration, peasants waltzing to thumping music; the loud ticking of the clock in the shabby Firmin home; and finally, poor, unwanted little Jeanne, running madly down the dusty road, sobbing hoarsely at the sight ahead of her.

The dialog is in French and German, with English subtitles, but the film is so skilfully directed and acted that there is almost no need of words.

Gray, Black, Blue Costume

Jacket-Skirt Outfits Ideal for Office Use,

Give You Big Chance to Vary Accessories.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Twin sweaters with a gently flared tweed or wool skirt form the uniform for campus wear. The two piece outfits of jacket blouse and skirt occupy the same place in the affections of the knowing young business girl. With two or three dark wool skirts, and as many extra jackets as can be managed, downright magic results are obtainable.

There are two types of jackets. The brief affairs with flippant little curved peplums to accent a small waistline, long, perky puffed sleeves and all kinds of varied collar lines. Then there are the old good finds of tailored jackets made with belts, long sleeves. These are cut and fitted so that a silk blouse or thin wool short sleeved blouse can be worn under this jacket.

It's the colors you use that mark you high fashion. . . . emerald green robin's egg blue, putty beige, mauve gray, violet, gold, yellow, or the giddy gay bright tones. There are velveteens, checked or plaid velvets and wools, striped heavy silks, and silk and wool mixtures. With dark blue, dark gray, green, navy or brown or black skirts, as a foundation, your fun begins.

These jacket and skirt outfits look like a one piece dress when the very short fitted jackets are used in the combine and like a snappy well tailored street suit when the jackets are longer. What is so obliging about them all is that so much can be done with extras, such as ascots, velvet ties, different belts, pocket edges and trim. The prices will fit limited budgets.

You will wear them on the first chilly days, with a fur piece, and later on under fur or fur trimmed winter coats. The best collections are ready now.

Fashion photograph . . . for a college bound wardrobe . . . a purplish blue soft wool jacket blouse made with a curving long flattering collar, bound edges of soft black lether and matching tassels. The wool ascot is of the same soft wool as the simple black straight skirt. Over this two piece costume is worn the knee length coat of deep gray lapin. A high smart hat of dark gray trimmed with fur completes the outfit.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A wealth of movie history goes on the auction block tomorrow.

All the earthly goods of the late John Gilbert will be sold—the furnishings of his home and his studio dressing rooms, his guns, his tennis racquets, his phonograph records, even the shoes and socks and underwear that were in his home six months ago when he died.

Requests for the actor's personal effects have been pouring in since the auction was announced.

Scores of persons have spoken for one or all three of the masculine wedding rings he kept, long after he was divorced from the women who gave them to him.

A FRENCHMAN and a Jew were assigned the same table on a trans-Atlantic liner. The Frenchman arrived first at breakfast and at the appearance of his table companion, bowed, and said, "Bon jour." Under the impression that the man was introducing himself the Jew bowed and replied, "Goldberg." The next morning the same thing occurred, but that evening the Jew learned that "bon jour" meant "good day." The third morning he was first at the table and when the Frenchman arrived, said pleasantly, "Bon jour." Whereupon the Frenchman replied, "Goldberg."

IN the morning mail [in reference to the conservative looking older woman waiting at Grant park for the peace parade and Jane Addams memorial meeting on a recent Saturday who commented to a companion as she looked over the greensward, "This is going to be one of our Red squares":

"May I be permitted to call your attention to the fact that the famous square in Moscow, known to the world as Red, derives its name from circumstances in no way connected with the advent of the communistic régime. Long before the 1917 revolution this square was known under the same name as now, Krasnaya Ploshtchad. . . . Krasnyi or krasnaya means in Russian, or any other Slavic language for that matter, fair, charming, attractive, beautiful. Parades and military displays have been staged on this Krasnaya Ploshtchad since long before Stalin was born. . . . When the square in question was named the namers had in mind the specific beauty. Little did they dream that such a name would some day please Josef Stalin and Marshal Voroshiloff.—D. I. Nakhatovitsch."

When the Chicago Symphony orchestra left the stage of the Grant park band shell last night after playing the last of a five concert cycle, it retired from public view until the beginning of the regular fall and winter series, sometime about the middle of October. The lake front stand will be manned by other organizations during the remaining two weeks of concerts there.

Conducting last night's program was Clarence Evans. He took his men through the difficult G-minor fugue of Bach, Goldmark's "Country Wedding" symphony, and a miscellany of smaller things. A taking feature of this miscellany was Percy Grainger's little "Shepherd's Hey," which received an especially snappy performance from an orchestra that seemed in topping spirits.

The announcers stressed again and again during the evening the appearance of John Charles Thomas at the band shell this coming Wednesday. Mr. Thomas will have the support of the Chicago Civic Opera orchestra, Dino Biggalli conducting.—E. B.

SYNOPSIS.

Shortly after the world war, Roger Mallard, handsome young Englishman, is embittered by the loss of hearing in one ear from a war injury. Mal has been raised by his godfather, William Grimwold, an actor. At a New Year's eve party Mal meets lovely young Pamella Wyeth, though he forgets her on meeting Zelda Manners, whom he marries a month later. The marriage ends disastrously. In a rage at his failure to make a living on the stage Zelda flings a mirror at Mal and unknowingly destroys the hearing in his other ear. Fourteen years later Mal, under Grimmy's tutelage, has become a great success in pictures, hiding his affliction from his public. Zelda has refused him a divorce. Pamella Wyeth has a home in Pasadena. David Barkley, son of an old friend, boards with her. David invites Ellen Greet, young law stenographer, to a New Year's eve party at the hotel where Mallard lives and asks Pamella along as chaperon. Mal is mourning the sudden death of Grimmy. David, as a joke, has a boy page Ellen with a message that Roger Mallard wants to meet her. Mal, skilful at lip reading, is sitting at the next table. Attracted by Pamella, Mal introduces himself and asks to join their party. David and Ellen desert Pamella. Mal takes her home. There Mal drops on her couch unconscious. Pamella calls Dr. Ware. He says Mal has collapsed from shock and worry, that he mustn't be moved from her house. David is jealous of Ellen's interest in Mal, though Mal is only interested in Pamella. Zelda plans with her so-called cousin, Alfred Chetwyn, to blackmail Mal.

INSTALMENT XXV.

ALADDIN AND HIS LAMP.

Ellen now imposed on more of the firm's time by copying the typed letter on a piece of handsome note paper with the gold fountain pen given her on her last birthday by John Schyler Van Druten IV. of Tarrytown, N. Y.

Just as she was signing her name the outside office phone rang. One of Ellen's duties was to answer the phone. This she always did in a tone of voice both gracious and businesslike.

"Geddes, Hilton and Geddes."

A masculine voice, sounding as English and distinguished as Mallard's own, said curtly: "I should like to make an appointment with Mr. Gordon Geddes."

"I'm sorry, but Mr. Geddes is out of town at present."

"O!" said the voice with unmistakable impatience, and snapped out, "When will he be back?"

Ellen replied with heavy dignity that Mr. Geddes was not expected back in the office till the latter part of March. "If you care to leave your name and address I'll make a note of it and will be glad to inform you as soon as Mr. Geddes gets back."

"My name's Chetwyn. But I'll not trouble you. I'll call up again toward the end of next month." And Ellen thought she heard him say "Damn it!" to some one as he hung up the phone.

She had scarcely returned from mailing her letter and book at the post-office and was settling down to real work when the door opened and David Barkley walked in. His scornful demeanor, induced by a glance at the lether chairs arranged in a row about the room and at the setter dogs in frames on the walls, changed to one of satisfaction to find his Cinderella unattended save by a typewriter behind a small fence of golden oak.

He leaned over this confidentially, saying: "Is justice in a favorable mood today?"

"Good morning," Ellen replied. "Please state your business."

The noon whistles would be blowing in about ten minutes. As Ellen had set out to prove to her world in the east that she could earn her own living and live on it unaided by paternal allowances, and as she had just spent the last two dollars of her half month's stipend for a volume of poems, she was not averse to the prospect of a free meal.

Luncheon was served in a sunny flagged patio, roofed over with rust colored awnings and pepper tree branches.

David seated Ellen at a table for two near a tinkling fountain, conscious the while of admiring eyes fixed upon them. He thought Ellen was a knockout in a tawny brown knitted suit that looked like those his sister indulged in, the bills for which always brought forth rumbles of objections from dad. He wondered how a poor little working girl like Ellen could acquire such garments, and if it had been any one else he would have suspected her boss.

"How's everything going at Villa Far Niente?" Ellen asked. "Tell me quick—how's Mr. Mallard?"

"Do you think even the lowest gold digger would let a fellow buy food for her just to get him to talk about his rival?"

"Experience has taught me—"

"Rather than hear any more about those teachings I'll talk. Answer to question No. 1: We're boarding Aladdin and his wonderful lamp up at Villa Far Niente—much to the joy of all the environs. He spends most of his time lolling in the sun on his balcony, thinking up ways and means of spending money. He has our conscientious Pam on the hip. She dare not raise objections because his largesse is providing long needed bread and butter for most of her pet down-and-outs, besides giving him such a kick.

"That starving carpenter she's been breaking her heart over now has a job remodeling the old brick stable. It's going to be transformed into the niftiest oak and chromium boudoir for two Kentucky thoroughbreds to be seen outside the bluegrass. It seems one of these horses belonged to the late William Grimwold, and nothing is too good for him. When Aladdin and Pam aren't riding over the hills together it has been intimated that me and my gal can take our pick."

"Well, go on."

"Our boarder's next move was to invest so lavishly in the stock of the communistic nurseryman down in the valley that the fellow's quit gabbing about the redistribution of wealth.

"It seems Mallard's Jap is an authority on Japanese gardens, and the two of them propose to build one with their own hands. They are going to reclaim the unsightly patch of ground beyond the bamboo hedge at the foot of the garden where the Wyeth funds ran out. All the indigents of the hill country are being employed to put the swimming pool and tennis courts in order. It seems Aladdin plays a wicked game of tennis—"

"I think it's perfectly wonderful!" Ellen broke in, starry-eyed.

"It will be if a certain little shut-in I know of will come up for a breath of country air next Sunday to look it over."

"Figuring to give the stenographer a treat, are you? Thanks, I'll come," said Ellen promptly. "How is Mr. Mallard?"

"O, gosh! Can't we change the subject? Mallard is recovering so rapidly that, through the teachings of experience, I'm persuaded his indisposition was caused by a bottle."

"You would think that!"

"Well, he hasn't given me many chances to form new opinions. Keeps to himself. Even meetings at meals have been rare. At which time he varies a silent and rude sort of preoccupation with such a keen penetration he embarrasses even a quick thinking fellow by grabbing off your remarks scarcely before they've been hatched. . . . One catches glimpses of him half an acre away down the garden with his Jap and the cat, Shadow, who has a bigger crush on him than anybody and follows him about like a dog. The ladies would be distressed at the poor figure he cuts, stripped to the waist, wielding a hoe and spade, and covered with garden muck and sweat. And can he concentrate! I've seen that Jap run clear across the terrace to get him separated from his shovel long enough to take note of the musical cadences of the luncheon gong. You'll be sorry to hear that in my opinion the Wyeth confirmed spinster is falling for him."

"Of course she is! Who doesn't?" Ellen ejaculated.

"Well, somehow or other, I've got to find out the secret of his power. Pam's already started. She's having him down on her harthstone nightly. They make quite a domestic picture glimpsed from the hall. And our hero reading aloud. He can do that for a fare-you-well."

"What does he read?"

"I heard rhythms that sounded like Francis Thompson."

"O—has he got one of those? What poem was he reading?"

"Something about black tents and red pavilions. When I peeked through the door Pam was bestowing a heartfelt look on the fire, and what his eyes were bestowing on her averted face—I believe that's how it would be expressed—was nobody's business."

"Gracious! I've got to get back to the office—fifteen minutes late. I've had a lovely luncheon, David. I can hardly wait till Sunday!"

from 10:30 o'clock in the morning until 7 at the Winnetka community center.

Garden club members will display flower arrangements, non-members will show especially fine blooms and flower arrangements, and cultivators of community gardens will exhibit their prize produce, for which money awards will be made.

Mrs. Robert H. Gardner, chairman of the show, completed arrangements for it before she left Thursday to visit relatives in Virginia. She is to be away until early next week.

Mrs. William P. Sidley, who has supervised the community gardens for the center, also will be away at the time of the show, since she and Mr. Sidley are vacationing on a ranch in Wyoming until early in September.

Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, president of the center, is handling arrangements for the show with Mrs. Gardner's committee, which includes Mrs. Warren Shoemaker, Mrs. Morton Cahn, Mrs. George Sollitt and Mrs. Edward Scheidenhelm.

Mrs. Shoemaker's daughter, Miss Helen Shoemaker, is landing in New York Thursday after her summer in France, and will come home for three weeks before entering Sarah Lawrence college.

Glencoe Garden Show to Be Open to Public.

Another forthcoming event of moment to north shore gardeners is the annual fall show sponsored by the Founder's chapter of the Glencoe Garden club. The exhibit will be held on Friday, Sept. 11, from 1 until 9 o'clock at the Central school in Glencoe. Usually the exhibit is held privately, but this year the public will be admitted for a small charge.

Mrs. Frederick Fisher of Lake Bluff and the committee assisting her in planning the show are announcing a number of classifications of entries, including miniature arrangements of flowers not to exceed three inches, pairs of vases for tables or mantles, and flower arrangements of bowls reflected in mirrors.

Mrs. John Milton Trainer, a member of Mrs. Fisher's committee, is waiting until after the show to motor east with Mr. Trainer for a visit in New York. Mrs. J. Cameron Aspley, Mrs. George Pope, Mrs. Warner Nelson, Mrs. William Hogenach and Mrs. Robert Moulton also are working on plans for the show.

Mrs. James Sutherland, another member of the group, has just returned with her family from a two months' motor trip through England and Scotland, and Mrs. Charles W. Spooner is expected to return from a trip to England with her family just in time for the show.

Gay Nineties Tournament at Evanston Golf Club.

Mrs. Gerhardt Meyne is heading the committee planning a Gay Nineties golf tournament and dinner party to be given at the Evanston Golf club on Thursday of next week. Prizes will be given not only in the tournament, but for the most original costumes, for every one is to be attired in the style of the Gay Nineties. One of the members will dress as Lillian Russell and another will be "Diamond Jim" Brady. A feature of the tournament will be the hazards that Mrs. Meyne and her committee are arranging for each of the 18 holes.

Mrs. George Bates Harrington and her daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Ann Harrington, are expected at home early next month from a summer abroad. They have spent most of their time in England since sailing early in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Windsor Jr. of Winnetka and their two children are leaving today for a month's trip through the Canadian northwest.

Monkey Wrench Unusual Theme for Quilt Block

Monkey Wrench.

BY NANCY CABOT.

So many objects, both animate and inanimate, have furnished the inspiration for numerous pieced and applique quilt patterns that it is not surprising to find so commonplace an item as a monkey wrench thus used. But it is amazing to discover how exceedingly attractive a "Monkey Wrench" quilt block may be. A combination of red print and white material builds a beautiful coverlet which is suitable for a boy's room. A green and yellow print combined with white makes a perfect coverlet for a girl's room.

Housing Council to Hear Magazine Editor Today

Lasker, Chicago advertising executive, will discuss recent trends in housing activities and their effect on local communities throughout the country.

Moody Institute Dean to Speak at Buena Church

The Rev. Harold L. Lundquist, dean of the educational department of the Moody Bible institute, will be the guest speaker next Sunday night at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, Broadway and Sheridan road, it was announced yesterday.

"Thirst Quenchers," Mary Meade's new booklet of summer time drinks, both those made with fruit juices and those made with milk, is now available at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. BY MARY MEADE.

If you want your fudge or divinity to be unusually creamy, add two teaspoons of your best hand lotion. No, this isn't the radio voice of the home cooking expert, Mrs. Percival Q. Featherbrain, who convulses you with her impossible recipes. Mrs. Featherbrain would have recommended cold cream or hair tonic.

What I am suggesting for use in candies, frostings, and custards is not delicately scented toiletry, but plain glycerin, which you probably have used as a hand softener for years, either plain or diluted with rose water.

Glycerin is harmless. Recent experiments at the University of Chicago have shown that glycerin may be eaten in large amounts with no ill effects. And glycerin has been used in many commercially prepared foods for years to give a certain smoothness and to improve keeping qualities.

The most recent use of glycerin in foods is as a preservative for fruits. Fruits preserved in glycerin instead of sugar may be used by persons on a sugar-restricted diet and by the overweight. These glycerin jams and jellies are imported from England and are obtainable thus far only in New York.

A few of the everyday uses for glycerin might be mentioned. A few drops in cake icing will give smoothness, glossiness, and a creamy consistency.

A few drops of glycerin in custard will prevent curdling.

Glycerin may be used to "butter" cake or candy pans.

When melting chocolate for use in ice creams or molded desserts, a half teaspoon of glycerin per square of chocolate will give smoothness and keep the chocolate from scorching. Simply place the glycerin in the saucepan before adding the chocolate.

A glycerin-rubbed container will keep chopped meat fresh and appetizing in appearance when stored in the refrigerator.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE.
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
2 teaspoons light corn sirup
2 teaspoons glycerin
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, milk, salt, chocolate, corn sirup and glycerin in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Cook gently, stirring from the bottom occasionally, to 236 degrees F., or to the soft ball stage. Add the butter without stirring, then cool to 146 degrees, or until the outside of the pan feels barely warm to the touch. Add the vanilla and beat with a spoon or an electric mixer at high speed until the candy is nearly stiff. Pour into an 8 by 4 inch pan which has been rubbed with glycerin. Cool and cut in squares.

FRUIT SURPRISE.
2 cups milk
2 eggs
¼ cup sugar
6 teaspoons flour
Few grains salt
1 teaspoon glycerin
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald the milk in the top of a double boiler. Separate eggs and beat yolks and whites lightly. Combine yolks and whites and add sugar, flour, glycerin and salt. Slowly stir the hot milk into this mixture. Return to double boiler and cook until thick, stirring constantly. When cool add flavoring and fill sherbet glasses half full. Chill. Crush fresh fruit and add sugar to sweeten. Pour crushed fruit over custard in sherbet glasses and top with pieces of whole fruit and whipped cream.

Oriental Institute to Show Ancient Megiddo Jewelry

Rare jewelry and a gold plated bronze statue of 3,500 years ago, dug up in the biblical city of Megiddo, will be placed on exhibition tomorrow in the Oriental institute at the University of Chicago. The jewelry and statue were found when the institute's expedition, under the direction of Gordon Loud, uncovered three "layers" of the city near the famous battlefield of Armageddon. The expedition has brought the detailed record of Megiddo to the period of 1500 B. C.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

TRICKS.

The true nature and behavior of a trick still is a mystery even to most advanced players, for there is nothing more tricky than a trick. There are even more ways of getting tricks out of suits than of skinning a cat.

A player would be overwhelmed with their number and variety if it were not for the basic fact that there are only three different kinds of tricks and that all plays [and, consequently, all bids] are reduced to these three units of measure:

1. Honor tricks, made with cards of high rank.

2. Low cards established from four card or longer suits. They are called long cards.

3. Ruffs, called ruffers, obtained by ruffing [usually in the dummy] a losing card with an otherwise worthless trump.

At no trump bids there are only two kinds of tricks, honor and long cards. At trump bids we have the same honor and low card tricks of long suits; in addition, a new kind of trick, the ruffer, makes its appearance.

♥ A 5 3	♥ 6
♦ A K	♦ 8 5 3 2
♣ K Q	♣ 10 8 7 6

In this example, if spades are trumps, West will win the following tricks: he will win honor tricks with the ace, king, queen of spades, ace of hearts, and ace and king of diamonds. He will lose a trick to the opponents' club ace but then will win another honor trick with his remaining club. His two small hearts he will lead and trump with East's spades, creating ruffing tricks. Finally, when he has led his three high spades, neither opponent can have another spade and the four, three, and two will be long cards.

If the bid is no trump, West still will win his seven tricks with high cards and he still will win his three long cards in spades, but there will be no ruffers because there is no trump suit and the two small hearts he must lose to the opponents.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's bidding was, to say the least, rather jerky. He did not even investigate the diamond suit. For all he knew, North easily might have held four to the jack. But, strangely enough, the six no trump turned out to be the best contract.

West opened the club queen and declarer took stock. He could count eleven top tricks, but unless the diamonds should break three and three he would have to dig for the twelfth. With the thought that a squeeze might be necessary, declarer let West hold the trick. The club ace won the next lead, and five rounds of spades were run off. When it came time for East to discard to the fifth round, the wisdom of declarer's course became apparent, because at that time East was faced with the choice of letting go the guard to either hearts or diamonds. Hoping that declarer had started with only three diamonds, East held on to his heart stopper, but now declarer brought home his diamond suit intact for the twelfth and fulfilling trick. If declarer had won the first trick, he never could have squeezed East.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Answer: Two and one-half, the half being for the four card length.

Garbo Unbends and Attends Birthday Fete

Meeka Aldrich Gives Party for Grandmother.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—Greta Garbo interrupted her exclusiveness to attend a birthday party on the "Camille" set which was given by Meeka Aldrich, actress daughter of J. Frank Aldrich of Chicago, in honor of Miss Aldrich's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jane Agan, 77.

Both Meeka Aldrich and her mother, Mariska Aldrich, former grand opera singer, are playing in the Garbo film and they introduced Mrs. Agan to the Swedish star. The Aldrich family formerly was prominent in Republican politics in Chicago.

Zanuck, turning his dial at 7 o'clock one morning recently, heard Miss Kiger in a radio play and, impressed with her personality, began negotiations which ended in her being signed with the studio. The actress was recently voted the most popular feminine radio performer in Chicago.

After three weeks of preliminary rehersal the operetta "Maytime" is ready for shooting. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Julie Haydon and Frank Morgan are in the cast.

Thirty-eight violinists play in Gladys Swarthout's singing number "Paradise in Waltz Time," which is a final scene in "Champagne Waltz." The number ends with the 38 fiddlers holding their bows extended in a Heil Gladys musical salute.

Red headed Irene Franklin, the good looking and spirited star of many vaudeville and musical comedy years, bobs up in a central part in "Love and Laughter" at Paramount in which Bert Lytell is directing Irene Hervey and Charles Starrett as the romantic stars. H. B. Warner is also in it.

Barbara Stanwyck wanted a bigger place with more grounds to live in, and after lots of looking around her brother Steven saw just the right home and lawn and made a verbal agreement with the landlord. But when Barbara had given up her former home and packed all her belongings to move the landlord found it was a film star who wanted his premises and hiked the price on her. Barbara got mad and is still looking for a place. In the meantime she is finishing "In Plough and the Stars" at RKO studio, living out of one suitcase for all her belongings and home furnishings are packed.

Judith Allen and Jack Doyle announce that their marital reconciliation is definite and complete and the couple have taken an option on some property for a home. She'll formally dismiss the divorce complaint.

Part of a sermon by the Rev. Deodat Lawson, delivered at Salem, Mass., in 1690, was dug out of the archives at Huntington library in Pasadena and written into the speech of one of the characters in "Maid of Salem," Claudette Colbert's story of the witchcraft tragedies. The Rev. Mr. Lawson's congregation who heard the sermon included some of the witchcraft judges. The puritan clergyman's words show he believed in witches.

Harold Lamb, author of "Tamerlane," the "Crusades" and other popularizations of history, is now writing a screen play of "Arabian Nights." This will be made into a color picture by Producer Walter Wanger with Charles Boyer, Madeline Carroll, and Henry Fonda in the star rôles.

MISS' HOUSE FROCK.

Every homemaker is aware of the importance of appearing always chic, even when she is in the midst of her household duties. None is more cognizant of the value of a smart appearance than is the most recent class of brides who undertook homemaking as their career during the last few months. Attractive house frocks are fairly difficult to find, most of them being designed for heavier than average figures. It is for the slim silhouettes that the frock illustrated today was designed. It is a wrap around model, particularly smart on slender figures. The dress buttons down the back and is smartly tailored enough to be worn for local shopping and to the beach.

Style No. 2878 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years. Size 15 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Girl's Letter Shows Danger of Affair with Married Man

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A 19 year old girl writes us that she has been going for two years with a 27 year old married man, the father of a 3 year old son. The man is now prepared to start divorce proceedings so that he can marry the young woman.

"But I have been in love with another man, three years older than I, who will not give me a tumble," the girl reports. "I just went out with the married man to see if I could not make the one I care for jealous. Now, I am in a fix, for the second man tells me that I have to go through with the marriage since I led the man on to believe that would be the outcome. The truth is that I do not care for the married man. I care only for the other one."

A pretty kettle of fish for a 19 year old. How we wish you young women would leave the married men alone, and let them work out their own destinies without your interference. Not that we are absolving the married ones from blame in cases where the girl is years their junior. Generally speaking, if they only could understand it, their appeal is that of one who can spend more money on a girl than a younger man. It's true in this case. Edyth tells us that the married one has been more than generous with her. She admits that because he could take her to places she wanted to go, she encouraged him.

But she is a pretty sorry young woman, too. The youth for whom she was making the grand play does not want her now.

Whether the young woman has brains enough to tell her married suitor that she doesn't care for him, and can't marry him under any circumstances, is a question. She does not seem to be possessed with the mental equipment to see a few years ahead. But what we would advise her to do is to swear that from now on she'll use more scrupulous tactics to attract a legitimate suitor.

Alert Mind Is Chief Charm in Middle Age

Brains Are the Beauty of Advancing Years.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The foregoing statement is based on the studies of a young psychologist, Dr. Irving Lorge of teachers' college, Columbia university. It is introduced into our beauty column today because of a comment heard recently by a woman in her fifties, who assumes, against the psychologist's discovery, that one is mentally on the decline when one has reached the mid-century mark.

Here is a woman who, in her younger days, was a noted beauty, a position she held undisputably well on into the thirties. Then, what appeared theretofore as a normally growing mind, suddenly began to close in. An evening spent with the woman, said her friends, was more than could be borne patiently. After the last vestige of her beauty had gone the way of her mental alertness, her husband sought and found inspiration elsewhere.

Now, today's sermon has nothing to do with the separation problem which marks the present status of this couple. Our interest lies in the comparable physical decline of this now unhappy woman. There may be an occasional woman with a mind as brilliant as fireworks, who places no store whatever by her appearance. She may be one of those unanswerable geniuses who follow no rote or rule, or a "character" so striking, original, or entertaining that she is forgiven her personal idiosyncracies. Our observation, however, is that the woman who lets her mind become rusty allows her appearance to go to seed too.

The sparkle is gone out of her soul. The vitality and the charm are missing. After all, it is the mind that directs one to keep studying styles that are becoming. It is the mind that directs helping one's self to a facial. So it is not difficult to see why a stale mind is quickly reflected in a stale eye, face, style, and bearing. Our introduction of Dr. Lorge's statement is to remind women that, until they are seventy, there's opportunity for daily mental growth. Also to recall that famous secret for the no longer young: "Brains are the beauty of age."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Something new under the sun—not to mention the moon and the stars and the rest of the heavenly family. "Astrological soap," in a different motif for each sign of the Zodiac, and an individual fragrance, too, so that you may bathe in the scent most suited to your temperament and placate whichever imperious star harbors your destiny. It's an amusing fancy.

The soap is nice and the fragrance delicate. Even the shades vary with the whims of your horoscope and were selected by an authority on astrological readings. The oval cakes are flecked with little raised stars and the individual sign is planted in the midst of them. By some piece of wizardry the design doesn't wear off, but stands by down to the last thin sliver.

Four cakes come in a box, and to add to the intrigue your horoscope is tucked in with them so that you'll be able to discover what manner of woman you are, according to the heavens. There's even an invitation to write for an individual and more elaborate horoscope.

These boxes would make ideal gifts for women whose birthdays you know—believers and unbelievers alike. And children would be delighted to wash grubby hands and faces with such fascinating soap.

Wait Till Child's Anger Cools Before Appealing to His Reason

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Violent emotion, such as anger, strenuously expressed, is common in childhood. But, did you ever realize how little is accomplished when one tries to reason with a child in that state?

Here is an interesting and important suggestion: Wait until there is a lull in the storm, or until your child [and this applies to almost all ages] is in an entirely different mood, and then talk things over calmly. This often "sets" an idea, and if done several times may later effect a real change in the child's emotional state.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: John, our second eldest child, and the eldest boy, is as nice a youngster as you could find anywhere, except when he has spells of temper, and then there's no one on earth that can reason with him. The strange thing is, he never shows this side to outsiders [for which I am thankful]. This makes me wonder whether or not the family isn't somewhat to blame, though I don't know how.

"On the other hand, he is a great favorite with his teachers. All our neighbors think him a wonderful boy. Do you suppose it is nervousness that causes these stubborn flares of temper, or have you any other opinion on the subject."

"I have read your letter carefully, and do not think that you have anything serious to worry about in connection with John. Temper is a natural manifestation of childhood, and the fact that he does not show it to outsiders is quite to be expected. Children usually do not let themselves go before strangers.

"It is quite possible that there is some little mistake that you are making in managing him at home, especially since every one finds him such a splendid child.

"If I were you, when he is in one of his angry moods, I would not get emotional, but wait until he is over it. Then later on, when he is quite calm, quietly talk over these temper spells with him. I also would go on a regular campaign of avoiding scolding and nagging. I feel sure that with much praise and quiet treatment he gradually will outgrow this stage."

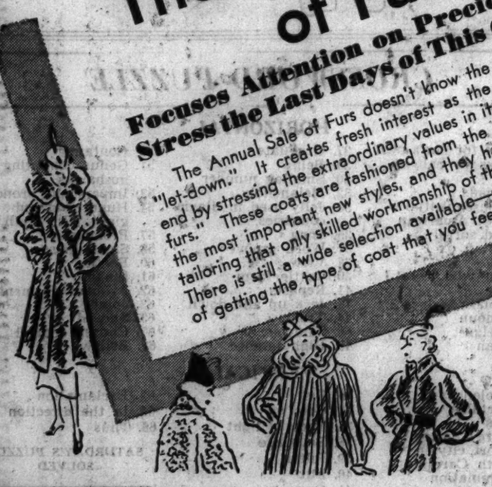
The Annual Sale of Furs

Focuses Attention on Precious Furs to Stress the Last Days of This Great Event

The Annual Sale of Furs doesn't know the meaning of the word "let-down." It creates fresh interest as the sale draws toward an end by stressing the extraordinary values in its collection of "precious furs." There is still a wide selection available—so that you can be certain of getting the type of coat that you feel is really "your own."



Hudson Seal, too, falls into the "precious" category, when such very fine pelts are used in its creation. The style shown is one of a wide selection at $229. Others are $195 to $375.

Nubby weaves, hair cloths, and suede-like fabrics are included in the Sale coats, and fashions range from the new semi-casuals, to the classic "dressy" coats. Sizes for women and misses are in the group.

Better Coats, Fourth Floor.

The tunic coat is very much up-in-front in the fashion ranks this season. This one is a very youthful smart version, with a small Persian lamb collar and bands of the fur down the front. In black only, boucle weave or hairy fabric. $100.

MILLNER, TOPPING STRENGTHEN ALL-STAR DEFENSE

ABILITY OF ENDS STANDS OUT IN SCRIMMAGES

Squad Rich in Wing Replacements.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The ends of the All-American scrimmage line, when the All-Stars meet the Detroit Lions a week from tomorrow night at Soldiers' field, will be protected by two of the greatest defensive wingmen in football history. Wayne Millner of Notre Dame, left end, and Keith Topping of Stanford, right end, will be ready to stop the speedy forays of Dutch Clark, Glenn Presnell, and Bill Shepherd, whose sweeping runs and cut backs inside of end largely were responsible for Detroit winning the professional championship of the world.

Millner and Topping were elected to their positions by the fans of the nation. So far in the scrimmages at Northwestern university, where the All-Stars are training, these players have shown repeatedly that they deserve their honor.

One of Notre Dame's Greatest.

Millner is one of the greatest ends ever to graduate from Notre Dame. This is the highest praise. On attack no lineman is more important in the Notre Dame system of attack than the end. Millner is an accurate, hard tackler. He knows football and loves the game. His greatest thrill is not in catching passes, although in this he is particularly adept, but in blocking a tackle or rushing through to hurl himself at one of the secondary defenders.

Topping also is a rugged defensive player. Many observers of football on the Pacific coast have rated him the best end on Stanford's Rose Bowl champion eleven.

Lions Have Job Ahead.

The ball carrying aces of the Lions, who have said they will run the college boys dizzy and still have time to pass over their heads for a couple more touchdowns, must first get around Millner or Topping before they start to worry about the boys who will back up the line, Gomer Jones and Sheldon Beise.

Millner and Topping won't have to play 60 minutes of football against Detroit. The All-American squad, which is the best ever assembled, possesses other flankers who can be relied upon. Right now the coaching staf, Bernie Bierman, Elmer Layden, Bo McMillin, and Lynn Waldorf, has Trevor Rees of Ohio State at left end and Butch Loebs of Purdue at right end on the second eleven. Rees is a splendid pass receiver and an aggressive player. Loebs is one of the finest ends ever developed at Purdue. The Detroit professionals know this. Loebs almost could have named his own price to sign a professional contract. Instead he has chosen to coach at Huntington, W. Va., High school.

Millner will play professional football. He has signed a contract with the Boston Redskins. Rees will coach at a Cleveland High school this fall.

Competition Is Strong.

The lineup at the ends still may be subject to change after scrimmages this week for Marty Peters, who paired with Millner at Notre Dame last fall; Lou Zarza of Michigan State, and Ettore Antonini, who was coached last year by Bo McMillin, are fighting for recognition. Eddie Erdelatz of St. Mary's might have had a chance except for a knee injury received in scrimmage last week which may keep him out of the Detroit game. He was unable to work Saturday in the intraclub game.

If the All-Stars need three points, Marty Peters may be the lad who will be called to try a field goal. It was Peters who won Notre Dame's game with Pittsburgh last fall, 9 to 6, with a placement in the final two minutes.

Get No Help from Wing Back.

The system of offense which Coach Bierman has taught the All-Star squad, an unbalanced line with the guards shifted either right or left, involves the ends with blocking without help from the wing back. This is identical in principle with the Notre Dame system to which Peters,

Long Kicks of Shakespeare Worry Lions

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomfield Hills, Mich., Aug. 23.—Only the temperature changed today in the Detroit Lions camp at the fashionable Cranbrook school in the hills of Oakland county. The routine remained the same. Intensive preparations for the All-Star game at Chicago on Sept. 1, continued with two hard drills that left no time to receive Sunday visitors who motored out from Detroit under lowering skies and remained to be caught in the rain.

Scrimmage occupied the squad in the afternoon when an hour was devoted to kicking and passing under game conditions. A long signal drill on the practice field concluded the day's work.

With the All-Star kicking entrusted to Bill Shakespeare of Notre Dame, one of the outstanding college punters in the game, the Lions attach special import to this department as a factor in next week's game. Shakespeare is noted for the distance of his kicks. He is credited with an 82 yard punt against Pittsburgh and one for 78 yards in the Navy game.

Lions Have Good Kickers.

Stand Back! Give Him Air!

Poor fellow, he has only himself to blame. He was so bold as to take a couple of good All-Star Football tickets from his pocket to show to a friend yesterday, right at Clark and Randolph! The rush was terrific, but he'll probably live.

With tickets in such demand you had better rush to the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn, or to the lobby of Tribune Tower. Only a few thousand of the $3.30 seats remain. There are plenty of good bargains at $2.20 and $1.10. All reserved.

DOC MACKENZIE KILLED IN RACE AT MILWAUKEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23.—George [Doc] McKenzie, 30 years old, of Eddington, Pa., one of the nation's leading automobile drivers, died tonight in Milwaukee County General hospital following injuries suffered during the races at the Wisconsin State fair here this afternoon.

MacKenzie's car turned over four times on the first turn of the first lap during the 25 mile feature race and crashed into a rail. Billy Winn of Detroit, who ultimately won the race, had cut in close to the rail at the turn and MacKenzie attempted to follow him, cutting inside of the car driven by George Connors of San Bernardino, Cal., which had swung wide. MacKenzie's right rear wheel caught the left front wheel of Connors' machine, throwing the car into the spin and against the rail.

Married in Hospital.

MacKenzie was seriously injured on July 12 in a race at Reading, Pa., and had left the hospital there only a few weeks ago. He raced yesterday at Springfield, Ill., for the first time since his accident at Reading and established a new world record for a mile dirt track.

MacKenzie was unconscious when taken from the wreckage of his machine and rushed to the hospital, where it was found that his chest was crushed. He died without regaining consciousness.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Verna Mather MacKenzie, whom he married on July 21 while he was in the hospital at Reading.

In Many Accidents.

In his ten years on the tracks MacKenzie figured in many accidents. His mechanic, William Berry, died at the state fair track in Detroit in 1930 after MacKenzie's car went through a fence during a time trial. MacKenzie received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

Last October MacKenzie set a world's record for 30 laps on a dirt track at the Virginia state fair when he was clocked for the 15 mile distance in 13 minutes 7 2-5 seconds. Last summer he also won both the Eastern A. A. A. and Hankinson circuits. Teamed with Kelly Petillo, he won third place in the 500 mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial day.

He was the son of Dr. Arthur MacKenzie of Eddington and a nephew of Dr. George W. MacKenzie of Philadelphia, ear, nose, and throat specialist who in 1932 received the gold medal of the University of Vienna for his surgical work.

Bob Feller, 17, Hurls Indians to 4-1 Victory

Cleveland, O., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Seventeen year old Bob Feller, making his first start for Cleveland, fanned fifteen batters in pitching the Indians to a 4 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns today.

BOB FELLER.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Feller's strikeout feat was one short of the modern American league record, set by Rube Waddell of Philadelphia in 1908, and two short of Dizzy Dean's National league record set in 1933.

The Adele, Ia., rookie, who vaulted into the headlines when he struck out eight St. Louis Cardinals in three innings during an exhibition game on July 6, held the Browns to six hits.

He held the Browns scoreless except in the sixth inning, when Lyn Lary doubled and Roy Beau Bell followed with another two base hit to score the first run of the game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23—Despite a marked tendency toward shakiness John Whitehead piloted his White Sox mates to their second straight triumph over the title owning Tigers today. The silent Texan weathered one turbulent inning after another, meanwhile enjoying enough hitting from his own crowd to enable him to parade to his tenth victory. The score was 4 to 2 and as added attractions there were the oustings from the scene of Manager Jim Dykes and Mule Haas.

Whitehead succeeded in producing only three hitless innings and only two in which there wasn't one or more Tiger ornaments on the bases. Most of his staggering was done early in the tussle, the enemy nicking him for seven hits in the first four innings. After that he was fairly good except in the eighth when a base running boner by Al Simmons wrecked a Tiger chance to tie the score. Altogether ten champions were stranded on the bases and some of these would have scampered home if Whitehead hadn't had the benefit of brilliant support.

Whitehead Refuses to Blow.

The Sox did all their profitable work by punching doubles off the delivery of Jake [Lefty] Wade. A two bagger by Luke Appling led to a run in the second. A similar smash by Mike Kreevich produced another in the third. The Tigers tied it in the same inning but the Sox bounced back in the fifth with the pair of runs that meant victory. They were hammered home by Larry Rosenthal's double. Shortly after this Schoolboy Rowe took over the pitching on Mike Cochrane's hunch that Whitehead would blow, but the hunch proved erroneous.

Mr. Dykes' troubles arose over a decision by Jmphr Kolls at first base in the sixth. He ruled Bill Rogell safe on a play in which Zeke Bonura apparently had accomplished an out. Mr. Dykes immediately called over from his third base position and as soon as the umpire, whose authority excels his judgment, heard the manager he issued walking orders. Dykes walked but not until after he had said plenty. Haas was fired in the fifth when, as coach, he mentioned to Kolls that his haste in making a decision had cost Rip Radcliff a hit.

Sox Pull Smart Play.

The Sox pulled the right play at the right time in the second inning and it led to a run which otherwise wouldn't have happened. Appling doubled to left center after Bonura had filed to Goslin close to the left field wall. Piet also filed to left. With Dykes at bat the hit and run signal was flashed and Appling broke for

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Larry French was in elegant form yesterday, such elegant form, in fact, that it took him and an alert Cub supporting cast only one hour and 28 minutes to pour a 7 to 0 shutout on the obstreperous Cincinnati Reds for his 15th success of the season. French gave up only four hits in the process.

The Reds, who still lead the Cubs ten games to nine in the season's series, had little opportunity to pull any of their too familiar sassy stuff in yesterday's encounter. Cal Chapman, first batsman of the game, scratched a single past French to get the game under way, then promptly was wiped out in a double play. Les Scarsella singled with two out in the second inning. Ben Frey singled and Chapman walked in the third. After Chapman had walked on this third inning occasion and was nipped napping off first by Hartnett, nary a Red reached first base until Chapman was hit by a pitched ball with one out in the ninth. Goodman put Chapman on third with the fourth hit off French. Then flies by Cuyler and Lombardi ended the game.

Hack Makes Amends.

Stan Hack, goat in Saturday's game with the Reds, was the hittingest gent in the ensemble yesterday. Stan scored the first run after singling in the second, drove in the second run with a double in the fourth, and singled in the fifth to drive in Frank Demaree with the third run of a spiurge started after two were out.

Gabby Hartnett figured in two scoring flurries with a mighty double and a single. Bill Herman smashed a triple and Demaree made a double. Ethan Allen was held to a single, but it drove in two runs in the sixth.

The Cubs started grinding in the second inning when Hack began his big batting awakening with a single to center. After Galan had supplied the second out Hartnett lined one which narrowly missed clearing the left field wall. It bounced back from the top of the barrier for a double, Hack scoring with ease. Hartnett took third on Thevenow's bad relay, but died on Jurges' fly to Byrd.

The champs scored their second run in the fourth inning. With one down Demaree reached second on the second of Thevenow's series of throwing errors and scored on Hack's double to right. Galan lined to Thevenow, Hartnett was given an intentional pass and Jurges bounced to Riggs who stepped on third to force Hack.

Herman's Triple Helps.

ATHLETICS AND BROWNS OUT OF RACE FOR FLAG

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The chase after the American league pennant on which the Yankees are taking a tighter grip almost daily, became a six team race today.

The Athletics, by losing two games to the Washington Senators, and the St. Louis Browns, by dropping their game against the Cleveland Indians, were counted out.

The Browns could tie for the pennant if they played 1,000 ball from now to the end of the season and the Yanks dropped all their games. New Yorkers need only one more game to clinch it against the Browns.

YOUNGEST MAN, TOUGHEST JOB; IT'S M'LENNAN

Youthful Racing Secretary Just Like Dad.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Struggling with another weighty horse race problem yesterday was Charley McLennan, racing secretary at Washington Park—often referred to as the youngest man in the toughest job on the American turf.

McLennan, who incidentally weighs but 137 pounds himself, was fixing the weights for the Great Western handicap to be run next Saturday afternoon.

The Great Western, when it is run, will be a story in itself. This is just a little story about 32 year old Charley, upon whose accurate judgment and fairness rest the fortunes which are daily wagered on the races he programs.

If you want to rouse McLennan's ire some day go up to him and tell him he arranges races so that the best horse won't win. You will definitly regret your action.

Every Horse a Chance.

However, if you want to be tactful and really get the correct slant on the situation you will submit the question this way, "Do you write the conditions so that every horse in the race has an equal chance of winning?" McLennan will respond with the prompt answer "Certainly; otherwise, what would be the point of running races? The standout horse would take the purse each time."

The highest weight McLennan ever assigned a horse was the 138 pounds he put on Discovery. The lowest as far as he can remember was 77 pounds. This must have been a very bad horse for he couldn't recall the name of it.

He serves as racing secretary at five major tracks during the year—Arlington Park and Washington Park in Chicago, Hialeah Park in Florida, Havre de Grace in Maryland, and Arlington Downs in Texas. Their schedules represent 185 racing days in the year. Figure out eight races a day at each track and you have a total of 1,500 events with an estimated number of eight starters in each. That's 12,000 horses runing and every owner wants to win.

Must Please Race Fans.

Keeping that horde of horsemen eager to continue running their horses, and arranging racing cards so that each horse will have a fair chance of winning, is a task that has already put a few gray hairs in the head of Charley McLennan.

Add to all of the above another angle—that the customers, particularly the losers, are always more than ready to complain if they do not like the races he is providing. And where would Charley be if the customers went on strike and refused to watch his races or to speculate upon them?

Glance around McLennan's humming office at Washington Park. Neatness and efficiency is written all over the place. The secretary's assistants are working smoothly on the job of filling the card for the following day's races. A checkup is made almost daily on the physical fitness of every horse on the track.

Daily McLennan keeps the records on every horse in competition on American and Canadian tracks. When a horse that has been running in Montreal or New York suddenly bobs up in an entry list at Washington Park McLennan must know how to grade him in order that he will have an equal chance with the others of taking down the purse.

Four Big Reasons.

There are scores of reasons, and honest reasons, too, why horses do not always run the way the racing secretary believes they should run. The four biggest ones in his opinion are:

1. A bad break at the start.
2. A badly judged ride by his jocky.
3. A pace that is not to the horse's liking.
4. The horse may just not feel like running.

McLennan is a natural for his job. He is the son of "Little Joe" McLennan, whose death a few years ago deprived racing of one of its most respected officials. A Chicago lad, Charley grew up at the race tracks at which his father officiated. When he reached the age of 19 his father decided he was old enough to go to work. So in 1924 he became clerk at Hawthorne. His duties were to keep accurate records of horses running everywhere in the country and to run errands for horsemen. He moved from that minor position on up the ladder, always learning more about horses, not alone from his father's teachings, but from his own observations.

First Need Is Honesty.

There are less than a half dozen topnotch racing secretaries in America. There never has been more than that number even though it is a highly remunerative position with the pay in some places running as high as $200 a day. Young McLennan doesn't say whether or not he has reached that scale yet although his father did ahead of him.

Good racing secretaries are hard to find. The reason is perhaps that fundamentally they must be exactly the kind of person old Diogenese was vainly seeking with his trusty lantern so many years ago.

SMILIN' JACK—HOLDING THE WAKE

Mat and Fight Shows Offered Fans Tonight

A wrestling show will be presented at the Coliseum, Wabash avenue and 15th street, and a boxing card at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

Frankie Battaglia, 26 year old middleweight boxer who conducts a dairy farm near Palmyra, Wis., and Harry Schuman of the west side will meet in the ten round headliner at Marigold.

Fight at 165 Pounds.

The Battaglia-Schuman encounter will be fought at 165 pounds. Schuman came in at 158½ against Buddy Moore, over whom he scored a disputed one round technical knockout a week ago. Prior to this accomplishment Harry whipped Roy Bailey at Miami July 13.

Battaglia, booked to sail from Vancouver, B. C., with Barney Ross on Oct. 7 for a match with Fred Henneberry at Sydney, Australia Nov. 24, scaled 164 in his latest against Bud Creed at Milwaukee June 22. He knocked out Creed in the eighth round. He carried 164½ pounds when he stopped Frank Kapanowski in six sessions at Marigold May 25.

Brown Meets Bittner.

Johnny Brown and George [Tiny] Bittner, Chicago heavyweight rivals, will meet in the five round semi-final. Preliminary matches at four rounds also involve heavyweights. Tony Rocco tackles Ernie Easter, Emil Campagna opposes Floyd McNulty, and Bernie Bowman clashes with Vern Galbreath.

Bert Rubi is paired with Red Vagnonne and Paul Shikat with Pat Kelly in wrestling engagements scheduled for 60 minutes at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Supporting matches include those between Tony Falletti and Lefty Pacer, and Gerard Lauth and Jerry Meeker.

Joe Puerta, who arrived from Champaign, Ill., recently to campaign here as a featherweight, will be unable to do any boxing for at least four months, Dr. W. W. Patrick announced yesterday following treatment of injuries the 1934 Danville, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves champion suffered in the shower room at a loop gymnasium Saturday. The 22 year old former University of Illinois athlete, a protégé of Paul Prehn, severed an artery and tendon in his left wrist and a tendon in his right ring finger when trying to turn off the water system.

Walter Cavaleri, Joe O'Connell, Gene Ward, Bernie Duggan, Ernie Wilson, and Tony Canadeo will appear in eight amateur boxing matches sponsored by Holy Name society of St. Andrew's church at Ashland arena tomorrow. Another amateur card tomorrow will be offered at Franklin park where fifteen contests will be held between boxers from Douglas, Stanford, and Franklin parks.

The St. Louisans defeated Scott Rexinger and Stuart Cornell of Minneapolis, 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, in the final round of the national public parks tennis tournament.

Elizabeth Deike, Pasadena, Cal., retained her women's singles crown when she defeated Helen Germaine of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

British Golf Team Here to Play for Cup

Boston, Mass., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Each with a sprig of heather in his buttonhole, the British Walker cup team arrived at Boston today with "every expectation of going home with the cup this time."

The ten members stopped over at this port for four hours before sailing on to New York on the Transylvania. Competition will start Sept. 1 at the Pine Valley Country club, Clementon, N. J.

Only three of them are veterans: Dr. William Tweddell, captain, who nearly put Lawson Little on the rocks in the British amateur a year ago; Jock McLean, who beat Jess Guilford in the United States amateur two years ago, and Harry Bentley, present English champion.

One Player Only 18.

The youngest player is John D. A. Langley, 18 years old. Percy Lucas, captain of the Cambridge university golf team, however, is only 21. The name of J. Morton Dykes, youthful Scot, is known to all who follow the Rugby football game, in which members of his family have distinguished themselves for many years. Cecil Ewing is the only Irishman on the team.

Dr. Tweddell said the team's hopes were pinned on Hector Thomson, Glasgow youth, who is 23.

To Stay for Amateur.

"The boy has everything," Tweddell remarked. "He is not a tremendous hitter, but he is accurate, and his short game is superb. He is a fine putter, and I'm sure that he has a remarkable future ahead of him."

After the Walker cup matches the team will stay over for the National Amateur.

Stanislaus, Hyacinth to Play in Final

St. Adrian's nine, defending champion in the C.Y.O. Baseball league, yesterday was eliminated from the title playoffs for the 1936 title in the semi-finals by St. Stanislaus B & M at Normal park. The score was 7 to 6.

St. Hyacinth joined St. Stanislaus in the finals bracket by defeating Good Shepherd 4 to 2. The two winners will meet next Sunday to determine the league title. The championship game will be held at Normal park.

In the last half of the ninth inning, with the score tied at 6-6, St. Stanislaus scored its winning run when Glinka singled and P. Skulski doubled. Skulski shared batting honors with Chrisciel and Korba, each of whom got two hits.

St. Hyacinth staged a last inning attack which netted them three runs and victory over Good Shepherd. Kulczynski, St. Hyacinth left fielder, drove in two runs and got two of the six hits made by his team.

In the C.Y.O. Softball league, 30 games were played yesterday. The semi-finals and finals are scheduled for next Sunday at Champagne Velvet park.

U.S. TRACK STARS BEAT JAPANESE, FRENCH IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—American Olympic track and field athletes, duplicating the United States victory at Berlin, defeated teams of Japanese and French in a triangular meet before 20,000 spectators in Colombes stadium today.

Scattering their strength through 15 events, the Americans took 13 first places for a winning total of 131½ points. The Japanese groups scored 82½ to nose out the French squad by half a point.

John Woodruff, long-legged University of Pittsburgh Negro, took the 800 meter event; Glenn Cunningham of Kansas ran off with his 1,500 meter specialty, and Forrest [Spec] Towns of Georgia had little difficulty in the 110 meter hurdles.

Don Lash, Indiana's distance ace, was an unimpressive fourth to Rene Lecuron in the 5,000 meter, which provided the bright spot for the French team.

Booing broke out after Cunningham won the 1,500 meters, and loud jeers greeted the Frenchman, Goix, who dropped out just before the finish after being passed by his countryman, Messner. If Goix had finished, the extra two points for place would have given France second place over Japan.

RED SOX AND YANKEES SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—After making punching bags of the Boston Red Sox for the dozen times they have met since late in May, the Yankees finally dropped a decision to the gold plated outfit today, losing the second game of a double-header after winning the opener.

Lou Gehrig's fortieth homer and Joe Di Maggio's twenty-second helped the league leaders take the opener, 5 to 3. Bump Hadley gave up four runs in the first frame of the second and the Red Sox clinched a 6 to 3 decision right there.

Jimmy Foxx hammered his thirty-fourth homer of the year in the opening game and also hit a double to account for all the Boston runs. Charley Ruffing otherwise had little difficulty holding the Sox to seven hits for his sixteenth victory of the season.

SENATORS WIN TWO.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Washington Senators defeated the Athletics in both games of a double-header today, beating them 9 to 3 in the first game and 9 to 6 in the second.

Pete Appleton held the Athletics to five hits in winning the opener, one of them being a home run by Chubby Dean in the eighth inning.

MOON MULLINS—A QUICK COME BACK

DICK TRACY—Sleepy Time Girl

Sox Defeat Tigers, 4 to 2; Dykes Ousted

third with the pitch. Dykes bounced a high one in front of the plate and reached first ahead of Wade's throw which Burns knocked down but couldn't hold. Meanwhile Appling tore for the plate and arrived safely. Wade was given an error for his wide toss.

Whitehead pitched himself into a sweet pickle in the second and promptly pitched himself out again without being damaged. Simmons started the inning with a fluke single which Whitehead didn't pick up. After Owen had been thrown out Rogell and Hayworth walked, filling the bases with one out. Whitehead made a snappy recovery and throw of Wade's bounder to force Simmons at the plate. Then Walker rolled to Appling.

Wade gave up his first pass in the third and the Sox didn't lose a minute converting it into a run. The free ticket went to Rosenthal after two were out. Kreevich immediately doubled to the scoreboard in left center and Rosenthal fairly flew around to the plate. Bonura ended the inning with a pop foul to Hayworth.

Whitehead Again in Jam.

Two hits and an error which should have been a hit restored the two run lead to the Sox in the fifth. Sewell singled to center and was pushed up a peg on Whitehead's bunt. A low drive by Radcliff was knocked down close to the first base line by Burns who recovered and threw to Wade. Radcliff was on the bag ahead of the throw but Umpire Kolls called him out before the ball was in Wade's hands. The umpire had to reverse himself when the throw was dropped but his premature guessing was enough to mislead the official scorer. Rosenthal then sent Simmons in pursuit of a two bagger, Sewell and Radcliff scoring. Kreevich fled to Walker and Bonura fouled out.

Dykes Gets Bounced.

Whitehead refused to let himself get excited over the slight jam caused by Umpire Kolls' second bad guess of the day in the sixth inning. Rogell led off with a bounder to Bonura, who carried the ball to the bag and apparently arrived ahead of the runner. Kolls guessed wrong by calling Rogell safe. As soon as Dykes opened his mouth about the decision he was chased, but when order had been restored Whitehead proceeded to take care of the business at hand. Hayworth forced Rogell, Pinch Hitter White fanned for Wade, and Walker flied to Radcliff.

Ted Lyons will perform in the pitching rôle tomorrow when the Sox conclude their season's chores at Navin field. Tommy Bridges, the Tiger starter for the occasion, will be seeking his eighteenth victory.

Mickey Cochrane, who started two games in a row after his layoff, wasn't able to come up for his third start today. He admitted he felt miserable.

The Sox will have to hustle their chores tomorrow. They are scheduled to hop a 5:25 p. m. train which will deliver them in Philadelphia the following morning.

The weather became threatening along about the noon hour, but in spite of it the game attracted 15,000 customers.

Warneke Will Pitch Today in Final with Reds

Lon Warneke has been invited to pitch the final of the Reds-Cubs game at Wrigley field this afternoon. Manager Dressen said he would decide between Peaches Davis and Gene Schott, both of whom have done well in relief rôles during the series.

A single game on Sunday, a Chicago rarity in July and August, held down the crowd yesterday. But the bargain seekers will have their chance next Sunday when a double-header will be played with the pennant-bent New York Giants.

Cards Defeat Pirates, 7 to 3; Tie 2d, 6 to 6

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Cardinals snatched their slim National league lead out of the fire with late inning rallies today, the first giving them a 7 to 3 victory over Pittsburgh and the second gaining a 6 to 6 tie called on account of darkness after the tenth inning.

The second game will be replayed tomorrow. The rampant Giants beat Boston two games, meanwhile, and pulled up half a game behind the Redbirds.

Five runs in the eighth turned the trick for the Cards in the opener after Buck Weaver had held them to six hits and two runs in the first seven innings.

Terry Moore, lightning fast St. Louis center fielder, was knocked unconscious when he banged head first against Al Todd's shin guards trying to score the tying run in the ninth. Mates carried him off the field and came back to knot the count at 6 to 6 when Pepper Martin singled Frankie Frisch across.

The only Cardinal pitcher who can win consistently was on the sick list today when Dizzy Dean complained of illness and failed to show up to pitch one of the games.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland, Cardinal physician, said Dean had stomach pains from drinking too much cold liquid. He did not show up for yesterday's game.

ENGINEERS HOLD FIRST MEETING HERE SINCE 1883

Power Convention to Take Place Next Week.

For the first time since 1883, the National Association of Power Engineers, Inc., having a membership of 18,700 engineers, will meet in Chicago when they come to the Stevens hotel next week for their fifty-fourth annual convention and thirty-fifth annual power exhibit, which are expected to attract 30,000 delegates and visitors.

The first convention in Chicago was held at the Briggs house during the second year of the association's existence. At that time there were 1,349 members.

This year's convention will open Monday, Aug. 31 with registration of delegates and visitors, and the power exhibit will be formally opened by J. E. Schutte of the Crane company, chairman of the exhibitors' advisory board. The response and welcome will be given by Richard A. Free, chief engineer and superintendent of the Carbide and Carbon building, 230 North Michigan avenue, president of the association.

Mayor to Address Convention.

The formal opening of the convention will take place Tuesday morning, when Mayor Kelly will address the convention. Addresses will also be made by Free; Robert Carr, president of the Dearborn Chemical company, Chicago, and C. L. Rice, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The opening of the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Ladies National auxiliary of the association also will take place Tuesday morning. The conventions will close on Friday night, Sept. 4, with installation of national officers.

Speeches during the convention will be reduced to a minimum and they will be on technical subjects dealing with the developments in power engineering. Considerable attention will be given to tours to various industrial plants in Chicago, and to demonstrations at the power exhibit, which will occupy the exhibition hall of the Stevens.

Several Plant Tours Planned.

Fred W. Raven of Chicago, secretary of the association, which maintains headquarters at 176 West Adam's street, announced tours will be made to the Dearborn Laboratory, the Standard Oil company's refinery, and to the Corwith plant of the Crane company.

Among the 112 exhibitors at the power show are the following: Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Armour institute, Chicago health and water departments, Crane company, Dearborn Chemical company, Johns-Manville, Liquid Carbonic company, Otis Elevator company, Purdue university, Shell Petroleum, Socony-Vacuum, Standard Oil of Indiana, and the United States Steel corporation.

HEAVY SELLING AGAIN REDUCES STOCK PRICES

War Scare Minimized as Factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 23. — Perplexities over the so-called "Spanish situation," the presidential campaign and the probable effects of the drouth on business recovery continue to hold operations for the rise in check on the stock exchange.

Prices are 2.59 points lower on last week's record, due mainly to a sharp selling movement, the worst in nearly four months, which overtook the market on Friday. Approximately a third of the loss suffered in that session was made up in a fresh buying wave which got under way in yesterday's abbreviated dealings, but the "averages" finished the week more than 7 points below their high for the year of 135.90 recorded on Aug. 10. The week's setback, for all the damage wrought by Friday's break, however, was not as formidable as that of the preceding week, which marked a drop of 3.46 points in the "combined" index.

War Scare Blamed.

While the "war scare" was blamed, in lieu of any other handy explanation for the selling squall, brokerage house commentators agreed that the news from the Spanish trouble zone and the capitals of Europe generally was no more alarming that day than it had been for the previous week or more and many were disposed to regard the war as an excuse rather than the real reason for the display of nervousness.

A point was made in this connection that the London market, which would seem to have a firmer grip on the pulse of Europe than that of New York, has refused so far to get particularly upset over the supposed threat to world peace carried by the developments in Spain and many submit that our market might safely take its cue in the matter from the equanimity of the British list.

Political Point of View.

Some diagnosticians think the reason for the street's current display of bearishness might lie not in the complicated foreign situation but in the talk now heard of a supposedly fresh temporary swing in sentiment toward the New Deal leaders and the implied threat of continued governmental extravagance and mounting taxes seen in the supposed development. That a Roosevelt victory at the polls would hurt the markets goes without saying in Wall street, but the speculative community, it is submitted, is too accustomed to the ebb and flow of feeling on politics to get greatly upset over any day to day "straw votes" or other supposed gauges of popular opinion.

As for the drouth factor, the drouth has been serious for weeks and, while its effects admittedly grow more menacing the longer it lasts, there are those who hold that the ultimate result marketwise might be ameliorated to some degree by the higher prices which crop losses will bring about. Only a week or so ago, indeed, some commentators were still insisting that the drouth rated "bullish" from the speculative viewpoint instead of otherwise.

Rails Are Backward.

Internal market conditions, by common consent, had a great deal to do with the reaction, whatever the influence of outside developments. The backwardness of the railroad group, for instance, in capitalizing the most encouraging news the industry has had for years was stressed in market letter comment as a leading cause for the list's hesitancy. Then, the feeling had been growing for weeks that the market had outrun business recovery and was in need of a technical adjustment. Many specialties were thought to have been oversupported and long holders were supposed to have been on the lookout for an opportunity to unload. The combined effect was a feeling of caution.

Virtually all groups of the market shared in the decline as they did the preceding week.

Week-end trade news was generally favorable and some market observers were predicting a better week ahead. Car loadings increased 1.1 per cent over the preceding week and 19.9 per cent over a year ago. Automobile output stepped up with the resumption of operations by Ford after a week's shutdown. Dun & Bradstreet reported that wholesale buying has spent some of its force, but that volume shows but little change. Consumers assumed a more leisurely pace.

The list of companies scheduled to act on dividends next week includes several which have been making irregular payments, including American Machine and Metals, Anaconda, Equitable Office Building, and Parke Davis & Co. In addition, six preferred stock issues on which there are considerable arrears will be discussed.

Baruch Urges World Pacts on Hours, Pay

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A solution of world economic warfare through international agreements on minimum wages and maximum hours was proposed today by Bernard M. Baruch. The American financier and "friend of Presidents" had returned from a several days' visit with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain at the latter's country estate.

"Nations are more suspicious of one another, more grimly embattled, arming more fiercely and quickly than ever before," said Baruch in a statement.

The financier, who was chairman of the United States war industries board in 1918, visited several European countries this summer and observed conditions at first hand.

"The astronomical sums spent upon armaments could give to the 'underhoused' living conditions approaching those which in our time and age they should enjoy," he said. "Not only hurriedly preparing with guns, gases, airplanes, bombers, and all the lethal weapons, every country is like a bristling industrial fortress, endeavoring to surround itself by commercial Verduns and Gibraltars—all economic instrumentalities aimed at the life of other nations.

Inhuman Conditions.

"The minimum wage and the maximum hour have an important part—perhaps the most important—in economic warfare. In the guise of national preservation or greed, or to meet the competition of others, hours are lengthened and wages reduced to the point that results in almost inhuman conditions.

"Every economic agreement between nations should be accompanied by an understanding or formula on a minimum wage and a maximum hour. Not that any nation should impose its ideas upon another, but any tarif or quota or money stabilization should have some stated minimum wage and maximum hour which a nation could not break without breaking the whole agreement.

"It is easy to see how currencies that have been stabilized or economic relations that have been agreed upon can be entirely nullified by the reduction of wages or by the lengthening of the hours of labor. This barbaric sweating of labor can jump any tarif wall or undermine any currency stabilization. Don't let us be blind to this fact.

World Farm Problem.

"The second most important thing is agriculture, now a worldwide problem. No one is satisfied with any system of planning which stops the production of what people want to eat and wear. Restriction or destruction violates our sense of ethics and economics. When nature smiles, giving bounteously of her products, why not accept them and prepare for those days when she is not in such kindly mood? We are often visited by drouth and other natural manifestations that destroy the crops.

"In addition to what is being done, we should build up a new and extensive up to date warehouse system into which should be taken the surplus products of the soil which, as the experience over the ages has shown us, have always been used up.

Storing Against Need.

"Modern knowledge of refrigeration, warehousing, air conditioning make it possible that when there is overproduction there can be accumulation in a new warehousing system until the need occurs again.

"The world is approaching a time when it will demand an insurance against famine. We need only look at our country to see what possibilities exist of that. If we had the tens of millions of bushels from unplanted acres and the millions of destroyed pigs we could look with greater equanimity upon the present drouth condition."

July Automobile Sales Show Decline from June

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—A drop in automobile sales both at the factory and by retailers was reported for July by the commerce department, with the volume of business, nevertheless holding well above that of July 1935. Manufacturers' sales were 440,999 vehicles, as compared with 452,955 in June, 332,109 for July 1935 and 264,933 for July 1934. The department's index of retail automobile sales meanwhile stood at 103.5 for July, as compared with 109 for June and 81 for July 1935.

Manufacturers Tell How Meat Packers Aid Farmers

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday pointed out in a statement how the packing industry in Illinois aids the American farmer. Saying that meat packing is the chief industry in the United States and the 76 establishments in Illinois account for one-fifth of the total national output of meat packers, the association added: "The meat packing industry affords a dependable, profitable market for the live stock of the farmers of the country."

NATURE UPSETS CROP PLANNING OF NEW DEALERS

U. S. Scarcity Helps Foreign Farmers.

With the wheat growing season in North America practically completed, nature is ringing down the curtain on the New Deal's latest attempt to control natural forces. Three years of crop planning and planned economy have resulted in three years of failure. Attempts to balance production with consumption have succeeded only in throwing the United States open as a market for foreign farmers.

Ignoring moisture conditions and basing their guesswork on average crops, government statisticians last November calculated the United States would grow 825 million bushels of wheat this year. Instead, production will amount to a little more than 600 million bushels, the result of searing drouth unforeseen in crop planning.

U. S. Must Import Wheat.

A harvest of 825 million bushels would have given this country 175 to 200 million bushels for export. But now, approximately 40 million bushels must be imported, and the Dakotas, with their dry subsoil, have not produced enough wheat to provide next year's seed.

While this country has been witnessing crop destruction the world wheat situation has changed completely. The scarcity in the United States is being matched by short harvests in other producing countries. In Canada a crop that was estimated at 400 million bushels early in the year has shrunk to 200 million bushels or less, also as the result of drouth.

B. W. Snow, crop expert for the Bartlett-Frazier company, says the European crop is much shorter than last year, with the northern countries suffering from wet harvest damage and Russia apparently out of the market by reason of heat and drouth damage.

Other Prospects Are Poor.

"Early prospects in the southern hemisphere are not good," he adds. "Australian crops have had a bad start. Early rainfall has been irregular, and, unless this deficiency is made up, a crop of 140 million bushels is all that can be expected."

Despite the fact that corn temporarily eclipsed wheat in price last week, the first time this has occurred on the Chicago Board of Trade since 1930, and one of the few instances in history, wheat managed to retain its position as the trader's chief guide, largely as the result of war scares.

Market analysts believe the latest upturn in wheat is due in great measure to possibilities that complications arising from strife in Spain might involve other nations.

Differ Over Future Prices.

Many experts assert that wheat values cannot receive permanent help from war scares, but another school of thought believes that because of a world-wide production shortage wheat will command a high price. This opinion, however, is dependent to a great extent on the movement and absorption of the Canadian crop.

Moderate improvement in the weather and confirmation of the extent to which this country will depend on Argentina for corn supplies brought a reaction in prices of corn after new high ground for many years had been touched. While rains this late in the growing season can afford little help to the crop, they will bring improvement in pastures, sorghums, and other miscellaneous feeds which compete with corn as feed.

The range of prices on the Chicago Board of Trade last week, with seasonal high and low marks, follows:

Wieboldt Stores, Inc., experienced a sharp upturn in net sales during the second quarter and six months ended July 25 and sales for July were the largest in the company's history. Elmer F. Wieboldt, president, announced last night.

$1,750,000 CARGO OF SEALSKINS ARRIVES IN U. S.

Seattle, Wash, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The navy transport Vega was in port here today with the season's "take" of Pribilof Island sealskins, valued at $1,750,000, which will be discharged and divided among the governments of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan.

Seventy per cent of the cargo of 52,466 skins will go to the United States, 15 per cent to Great Britain, and a like amount to Japan under the terms of the international sealing treaty. Skins were taken from young male seals on the Pribilofs in Alaska waters where the seals go annually to breed.

Aboard the Vega, commanded by Commodore C. W. Flynn, were H. J. Christoffers, superintendent in the Pribilofs for the United States bureau of fisheries and representative of a St. Louis fur company which will process the skins of the United States and Japan, sell them at auction, and forward the proceeds to the respective governments.

Great Britain's share of the pelts will go to London by way of Vancouver, B. C., and Montreal for processing and sale.

FCA TO EXTEND LOAN DUE DATES IN DROUTH AREAS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit administration, said today that farmers in drouth areas who owe money to FCA agencies "will get extended time in which to meet their payments provided their cases are meritorious." "No blanket extension of interest payments is contemplated," said the head of the federal agency which supervises more than 3 billion dollars loaned out on both long and short term credits to farmers.

"Where the drouth or grasshoppers have caused extensive crop failure and seriously restricted income," Myers said, the FCA agencies "will consider extension — treating each case on its own merits."

The farm credit head predicted, however, that even in the areas hardest hit many borrowers will repay loans from live stock sales or reserves. Myers said farmers voluntarily paid $45,000,000 on the principal of their indebtedness last year, although not required to make principal payments until 1938.

RAYBURN LAUDS UTILITY ACT AS 'FAIR PLAY' LAW

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, who introduced the public utilities act in congress, said today that the act, "and its clause pronouncing a five year death sentence on holding companies, is not radical legislation—it was chiefly aimed to bring about fair play for property interests."

"Your Democratic President and your Democratic congress," Rayburn said, "believe that it is becoming increasingly evident to the whole country that the system of individual enterprise and private property has got to be made to work fairly if it is to be preserved from the attacks of predatory rich men on the one hand and selfish demagogues on the other.

"It is a difficult thing for your government to steer this sound middle course today," he continued, "because the extremists to the right and extremists to the left are coming more and more to have a similar philosophy of government—both of them want to run everybody."

I. C. C. WILL PUT TIME PROBLEM UP TO CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Interstate commerce commission officials indicated today they would ask congress to solve the vexing question—who is to have authority to fix time standards? In a ruling last week, the commission redefined the eastern standard time zone to include the lower peninsula of Michigan, but denied a request for eastern time by the city of Chicago.

The order called attention to "the complete lack of uniformity" which was said to result from fixation of varying time standards by individual states and communities, without regard for federally designated zones.

Although they must be observed by the railroads and government offices, the federal time standards are not mandatory upon states and communities.

Universal Pipe and Radiator.

Investors' Guide: I am a stockholder in Universal Pipe & Radiator corporation. The stock has been removed or trading stopped on the board. Kindly furnish me with information of this company—N. E. B.

Answer: After a long period of declining revenues and losses had wiped out surplus and depleted working capital, Universal Pipe and Radiator company filed a petition for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy laws a year ago. A plan of reorganization was confirmed by the court July 30, 1936, and now is binding on all security holders.

Under the plan all assets were turned over to Central Foundry company, formerly a subsidiary, and a new company was formed. The new Central Foundry has a capitalization of $1,000,000 of 5 year 6 per cent first mortgage convertible bonds, $653,200 of 5 year 5 per cent general mortgage convertible bonds, 9,000 shares of $5 dividend convertible preferred stock, and 850,000 shares of $1 par common stock, of which 452,727 are outstanding.

Holders of Universal's secured notes receive new first mortage bonds on a dollar for dollar basis. One new common share is issued for each $10 principal amount of old debentures. For each old preferred share are issued 2½ new common shares. Common stockholders receive one new for each 20 old shares.

Universal securities were suspended from trading on the New York Stock exchange on Aug. 13, when it was announced that application will be made shortly for listing the new company's securities.

Business consists of the manufacture of cast iron pipe, boilers, radiators, plumbing and steamfitters' supplies, railroad brake shoes, and artificial stone for ornamental purposes. The company also operates by-product coke ovens.

Record net income, in 1926, was $1,230,000 or $2.58 per common share on the basis of the old capitalization. With the drying up of building activities, earnings declined sharply after 1928 to a depression low point in 1932, when net loss was $1,055,000. The company lost $215,000 in 1930, $499,000 in 1931, $594,000 in 1933, and $245,000 in 1934. Loss was $118,000 the first half of 1935. Later figures were not made public.

Farm Bureau Studies Plan to Insure Crops

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Confidence that a workable form of all-risk crop insurance could be developed under guidance of the federal government was expressed today by Roy M. Green, director of a financial division at the agricultural department.

Green has been directing a corps of workers in a study of crop insurance in recent months. Much of the data he has assembled has been utilized by Secretary Wallace in recent speeches. The agriculture secretary conferred with President Roosevelt last week on the matter of crop insurance.

At least four ventures by private companies into this field in the last thirty-seven years have met with either bankruptcy or a lack of public acceptance, Green said, but added that a study had revealed flaws which could be avoided.

No All-Risk Indemnity.

Insurance now available for farmers includes protection against hail, fire, and other specific risks, he said, but there was no known all-risk indemnity by private corporations, states, or other nations.

Green said the four attempts of private corporations at all-risk insurance failed because of drouth, sharp declines in farm prices, or too costly premiums.

The first was in 1899 by a company which offered a $5 an acre protection for about 5 per cent. Green said depressed prices sent it into bankruptcy.

Another attempt in 1917 by a company offered $7 an acre protection at a cost of 10 per cent, Green said, but drouth over much territory it had insured in the first season ended that attempt.

Skidding Prices Wreck Plan.

Three years later a number of insurance firms offered all-risk insurance. One company reported premiums of $800,000 and losses of $2,500,000 for the first year, when farm prices skidded downward. The company boosted premiums to balance estimated losses and farmers ceased buying insurance, Green said. The last attempt was in 1931-'32 by a company which protected up to $6.25 an acre for premiums of 50 cents to $1, Green said, adding that declining prices ended that effort.

Green contended these efforts failed because they were "income, not crop insurance." By having farmers pay their premiums in grain, and by paying losses the same way, he argued, the danger of price changes would be eliminated.

Green said that the government studies to date of wheat production yields on more than 50,000,000 acres of wheat land on a half million farms indicated that farmers could receive a 75 per cent crop protection in poor years by paying from one to two-thirds of excess yield above normal in good years only.

U. S. GUARANTEED LOAN TOTAL PUT AT $395,882,687

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Private banking and lending agencies with loans guaranteed by the government were disclosed by the Federal Housing administration today to have invested more than one-third of a billion dollars in improvement of private property since Aug. 1, 1934.

Altogether 1,086,423 loans have been made, housing officials said, involving investments totaling $395,882,687. The government did not advance any of this, however, since Uncle Sam's backing consisted entirely of insurance against loss by the lenders.

Single families were the heaviest borrowers, making 708,403 loans with a value of $211,188,696. Multiple residence properties were granted 208,928 loans with a total value of $67,031,342. Retail stores and service trades accounted for 80,163 loans totaling $55,719,417. Other loans made to commercial stores other than retail, totaling $16,621,644; farm property, $14,930,297; industrial, $14,859,074; institutional, $3,351,139, and unclassified property, $12,189,780.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES; HIGHEST SINCE MAY, 1930

Prices of Scrap Also Climb Sharply.

Steel works operations last week reached the highest level since May, 1930, increasing 1½ points over the previous week to 72 per cent of plant capacity, the magazine Steel said yesterday. The national average in the corresponding week a year ago was 20 points below the present rate.

Scrap prices rose to the highest levels in more than six years, further narrowing the spread between basic pig iron, Steel said. The magazine's scrap composite is now at $15.13, an increase of over 30 cents over the previous week and the highest since the last week in October, 1929, when it stood at $15.25.

Few New Stacks Built.

Steel pointed out that because of these sharp advances in scrap, which would lead to more extensive use of pig iron, steel works operators are studying the obsolescence of blast furnaces.

The journal said that since 1919 203 stacks have been dismantled and only 20 built, although the remodeling and enlarging of existing units has resulted in a present rated capacity of 49,777,893 gross tons annually, or only 100,000 tons less than in 1919.

The uniform open price plan, as inaugurated by the steel industry in March, has proved so successful, according to sellers as quoted in Steel, that its continuance through the fourth quarter is considered almost certain.

Price Up 6 Cents.

Steel's composite price of iron and steel prices is up 6 cents to $33.94, the highest level since April, 1930, as a result of the increases in scrap. The finished steel index is still at $53.40.

Operations in the Pittsburgh district were up 4 points to 72 per cent, partly due to the resumption of operations after employé vacations. The Chicago rate was up 1½ to 72½, New England 8 points to 78 per cent, Detroit 7 points to 100 per cent, Cincinnati 4 points to 76 per cent, and eastern Pennsylvania one-half point to 50½ per cent. Youngstown operations were down 5 points to 74 per cent, Birmingham 3 points to 64 per cent, and Cleveland 2½ points to 79½ per cent. Other districts remained unchanged.

The iron and steel industry has maintained higher average hourly earnings during the last seven years than the average in manufacturing, according to an analysis by the National Industrial Conference board. During the depression the number employed in proportion to output in iron and steel was above the general manufacturing average, and still is more than 10 per cent above that average, the board says.

LATIN AMERICAN CREDIT SITUATION IS CALLED BETTER

Continued improvement in credit and collection conditions in Latin American nations in the second quarter this year was reported yesterday by the foreign credit interchange bureau of the National Association of Credit Men.

Eighteen countries were classified among the prompt payers. Nicaragua, Bolivia, Paraguay, and Chile presented the only serious delays in the matter of exchange. Credit conditions gained in nine countries and declined in six.

Mexico, Cuba, Brazil, Porto Rico, and the Dominican Republic made the best credit records, with Peru, Colombia, Uruguay, and Haiti showing less notable gains. Guatemala, Venezuela, Bolivia, Nicaragua, and Paraguay revealed declines in their credit indices, with the latter three nations still classed as "very poor."

BONDS DECLINE ON WAR SCARES, STOCK SHAKEOUT

Low Priced Company Liens Show Largest Losses.

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—After turning in inconclusive performances most of the time, the bond market came under the influence of unsettled speculative and investment sentiment and sold sharply lower toward the end of last week.

Fears of lowering war clouds in Europe, which were held chiefly responsible for a shakeout on the stock market, were likewise the principal stumbling block for low priced corporate bonds. The sprinkling of issues directly tied to equities by conversion privilege and warrants yielded readily to the downward tide.

United States government obligations and high grade corporation liens offered such resistance, and offerings were so meager that the underlying trend was only slightly disturbed.

Domestic business news was of a constructive nature. Railroad car loadings continued to expand, the money market was not disturbed by effectiveness of the new federal reserve requirements, and the investment community demonstrated its eagerness for new securities by absorbing the second largest piece of new financing put out under the Securities and Exchange commission.

As measured by the Associated Press averages, the rails suffered the hardest bump, losing around half a point. The low yield group, which at one time was up to within a step or two of the highest level recorded since the averages have been compiled, lost only a small fraction. The industrials and utilities yielded very little.

Foreign dollar bonds generally moved contrarily with the tide of events in Europe. The Italian group was depressed during the early part of the week, even when foreign dispatches appeared to have a brighter hue, but moved upward when war clouds, from this distance, seemed to drop a little lower.

METAL SCRAP IMPORTANT TO STEEL INDUSTRY

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Recent advances in the prices of steel and iron scrap to the highest levels since 1929 and 1930 emphasize the important part played in the steel industry by ferrous metals reclaimed after years of use and by the return to the furnaces of leavings resulting from the making of steel itself and from the manufacturing processes of general industry.

Last year 19,500,000 tons of iron and steel scrap valued at about $250,000,000 were handled in this country, according to A. J. Clonick, president of the Chicago Scrap Iron Dealers association. Foreign nations, largely Japan and Italy, took about 1,500,000 tons.

Used in Open Hearth Furnaces.

In all steel produced in open hearth furnaces, scrap metal forms a part. The result is that as the steel companies increase their manufacturing operations they also take more scrap. When steel operations were at their low mark in 1932, the scrap metal business also was depressed.

Steel executives say that none of the scrap produced at the plants of the big companies is sold, being retained to go back into the furnaces. But all over the country there are vast amounts of iron and steel manufactured goods which have outlived their usefulness. These include automobiles, railroad rails, iron and steel parts of outworn cars, old boilers, pipes, and thousands of other items. In addition, machines which punch out steel objects in manufacturing processes leave small pieces, or scraps.

Scrap Business Organized.

To reclaim the metal that has outlived its use in old form and to collect the leavings of general industry, a well organized business has grown up. Old metal is collected by the small dealer, familiarly known as a junk man, or waste may be collected from a large industrial company by a scrap dealer with many employés.

Old metal and waste passes on to larger dealers from the small dealers until it is accumulated in amounts sufficiently large to be of use to the steel producing companies. The larger dealers, together with brokers, establish prices, which they say are governed by the laws of supply and demand. When the steel industry itself was operating at much reduced capacity and consequently had little demand for scrap in 1932, the price fell to $5 or less a ton as compared with the present price of about $16 a ton for heavy melting steel scrap, a basic scrap.

The steel output rate this year has increased steadily until recently it moved above 70 per cent of the capacity of the nation's plants. As the rate increased so did prices of scrap. Prices quoted at the Chicago and Pittsburgh markets, Clonick said, actually are an average of those asked by a number of important dealers.
